Round-the-clock security for Pomona schools?

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

A study of possible round-the-clock security patrol and installation of burglar alarms at all Pomona schools was ordered by board members Tuesday in an effort to prevent vandalism such as the disastrous weekend fire which leveled part of Yorba Elementary School.

Ironically, Asst. Supt. Lynn Rountree revealed, burglar alarms recently were installed in "key locations" at the heavily damaged Yorba school but not in the classroom which was destroyed.

Cost of silent burglar-type alarms to warn school security guards of intruders, has jumped from $13,361 annually in 1971-72, to an estimated $42,000 for the 1975-76 school year.

Equipping every school and classroom with such a system would hike costs further but probably lower losses due to vandalism, possibly a much more dramatic cost reduction than cost of a systemwide installation, Rountree said.

Also to be studied is a doubling of the present four-man security staff which now patrols all Pomona school sites from 3:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. leaving the hours of midnight to daylight unprotected.

Such additional costs for security could be offset partially by a lowering of fire insurance rates which have risen from $46,000 annually four years ago to almost $50,000 this fiscal year.

Board President Don Donnelly said dollar loss from such vandalism as the Yorba School fire is deplorable. But even more outrageous is psychological impact upon students and teachers, he said.

Pupils are forced to view the destruction in their daily treks to school while teachers housed in demolished classrooms may have lost a lifetime collection of teaching aids and personal educational materials, Donnelly said.

"This is devastating to children and teachers. You just can't put a dollar value on it," he said.

Board members also mulled possibility of offering a reward of $1,000 for a tip leading to the arrest and conviction of the arsonist who torched Yorba School. That decision will be made at the next board meeting.

Board member Ken Pine questioned effectiveness of the present school security system during the vandalism discussion. Rountree said the system is to be altered giv-

Veto overrides: certain on one, not the other

Powerless in oil price decontrols

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate appears to be unable to overturn President Ford's veto of a crucial energy bill, assuring higher prices for fuel, food and most manufactured goods.

Failing to pick up the votes of three or four eastern Republicans, the Senate's Democratic majority virtually threw in the towel even before Ford on Tuesday announced his long-expected veto of a bill extending controls on oil prices for six months.

Thus, it appeared Ford loyalists and oil-state senators would have about 36 votes — two more than needed to sustain the veto today.

The next step by the Ford administration would be to ask Congress for a 45-day extension of price controls. During that period, Congress would be expected to adopt a gradual phase-out of controls along the lines of the 39-month proposal offered by Ford.

The end result of such a move would be that U.S. oil prices would rise to the level set by the oil-exporting nations, currently about $13.50 a barrel. U.S. oil now sells for an average of $9.50.

All sides agree that such an increase in oil prices would raise the price of gasoline, food, clothing and most other goods. But since the energy battle between Congress and the White House began eight months ago, there has been little agreement on the size of the increases.

The Library of Congress has estimated Ford's plan to end price controls on oil would mean an increase of up to 15 cents in the price of a gallon of gasoline, raise the cost of living by nearly 2 per cent and throw 600,000 Americans out of jobs.

The Ford administration predicts that gasoline prices will rise no more than 6 cents a gallon, and inflation will increase by .8 per cent. The Agriculture Department calculates that retail food prices would rise by about .7 per cent over the next 27 months because of decontrol.

Even so, the White House has contended that the price would be a slight one to pay for reducing U.S. reliance on imported oil.

Sure to overturn school funds veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is considered certain to join the House in voting to override President Ford's veto of a $7.9-billion education appropriations bills.

If today's vote goes as expected, it would be the second time this session a bill had been enacted over Ford's veto. He has vetoed 10 measures.

The House tally on Tuesday was a lopsided 379 to 41, or 99 more votes than the needed two-thirds. Senate managers of the bill predicted a similar margin in their branch.

The measure exceeds Ford's request by $1.5 billion.

But members of the newly created House and Senate Budget committees disputed the President's contention that it is a budget-buster.

They said the measure would produce less spending in the current fiscal year, which began July 1, than Congress allowed last May in the congressional budget.

Ford, in submitting his $6.4-billion appropriations bill, estimated that $1.3 billion of this would be spent in 1976. The rest would produce outlays in future years.

Leaders of the budget committees said the $7.5 billion as it was sent to the President would yield $1.7 billion of spending in the current year. But they emphasized that, in the congressional budget, allowance was made for $2.2 billion of education outlays.

In adopting its budget, Congress fixed spending targets well above the President's proposals for education, health and some other domestic social programs.

But it promised to make up most of the deficits by cutting the military money bill and foreign aid.

The education bill contains $414 million more than Ford's request for aid to school districts with large numbers of children of federal employes.

It also exceeds his budget on aid to children of disadvantaged parents, which is the largest single federal aid to education program; on aid for libraries, on education for the handicapped, and on vocational education.

As usual, not all the money is expected to be actually spent during the year for which it is voted.

Congressional sponsors of the bill estimated that $1.7 billion would be spent this fiscal year. That would add $400 million to the administration's calculations for this year's deficit.

There are, however, vast differences between the administration's estimate of the 1976 deficit and congressional estimates. The administration puts the deficit at $60 billion; Congress at $68.8 billion.

Only a trace here

Rain hits southland, misses valley

Lightning, thunder and rainstorms which plagued much of the Southland Tuesday and today missed the valley, bringing only a trace of precipitation for the third day in a row.

But the deep layer of low clouds succeeded in blocking out the sunshine for most of the day and holding temperatures to the low 70s. More of the same is expected Thursday.

The cool spell is in contrast with normal September weather which generally keeps air conditioners going as students return to school.

The weatherman described the overlay of clouds as a "freakish occurrence" caused by a low pressure front. He said the clouds are barely moving and will take at least another day before they'll permit the sun to come through.

Meanwhile, temperatures will range from a low of 60 to a high of 72 today and Thursday. Intermittent drizzle is expected to continue in the valley.

Other places of the Southland were not as lucky. The California Highway Patrol reported dozens of motorists stranded in deep mud throughout the Mojave desert.

Spectacular lightning storms washed out many stretches of desert roadways east of the Sierra Nevada, particularly in Death Valley.

An unidentified woman was killed when her car was struck 20 miles north of Mojave by a wall of water that was at least six feet deep, the highway patrol reported.

State crews worked throughout the night to rescue stranded motorists and repair damaged roads.

Deodorant clothing

No sweat—with right idea

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — In the beginning, there was the roll-on deodorant, then the spray-on. Now, chemist Tyrone Vigo is looking for a zip-up deodorant.

Vigo and other scientists at the U.S. Agriculture Department's Southern Regional Research Center are trying to develop cotton clothing with a built-in deodorant.

"We're talking about shorts, possibly tee shirts, socks, things like that," Vigo explained.

The research center tries to find new uses for cotton and other domestic products. Among its prized accomplishments is the now-popular permanent press process.

There's no problem finding chemicals that will kill stench-causing bacteria, although there are several other questions, Vigo said.

One is how long the deodorant drawers would keep their guard up. Vigo's goal is to find a treatment that will stand up through 50 launderings.

It's also necessary to prevent skin irritation, itching and other miseries and to decide how tightly the garments should fit.

He said researchers have found several formulas with the strength to come out of the wash intact, and now they're trying to find out how to tame the chemicals so they can be worn next to the skin for all-day protection.

Vigo thinks no-sweat clothing may be an idea whose time is ripe.

"In Europe, this kind of thing is more firmly entrenched," he said. "In Germany, they're treating diapers that we would throw away here."

'Didn't intend to shoot President'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A Manson trial attorney says Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme confided during a jailhouse visit that she never intended to kill President Ford when she aimed a loaded gun at him.

"What are they mad about?" attorney Daye Shinn quoted Miss Fromme as asking. "The gun didn't go off."

Shinn said in an interview Tuesday that Miss Fromme, still loyal to mass murderer Charles Manson, claims she was seeking attention for Manson and three women followers she feels were unjustly convicted in the 1969 Sharon Tate murders.

The attorney quoted Miss Fromme as saying of the Ford incident here last Friday: "I wasn't going to shoot him. I just wanted to get some attention for a new trial for Charlie and the girls."

24 U.S. millionaires avoid paying taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-four American millionaires managed to avoid paying a penny in federal taxes in one recent year, according to Internal Revenue Service data released by a member of Congress.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, said in a House speech Tuesday that seven of the millionaires had a total adjusted gross income of $17,783,008, an average of $2.54 million per person.

"There were also 17 (other) millionaires who avoided any tax after calculating their tax deductions and credits," according to IRS information for 1973, Vanik said. He did not identify the millionaires or explain the tactics they had used.

In addition, there were "54 individuals with adjusted gross incomes of between $500,000 and $1 million who paid no federal income tax and 292 individuals with adjusted gross income of between $200,000 and $500,000 who paid no individual income tax."

Vanik, a member of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, also said that 15 major oil companies paid foreign governments about eight times as much tax as they did to the United States in 1974.

He said "it is appalling to note" that the companies listed payments of $9,554,112,000 to foreign countries, but only a reported $1,309,136,000 in U.S. federal income taxes.

Vanik added: "I have great doubts that the federal treasury actually received that amount of money in U.S. taxes."

He said the companies which reported that information to the Securities and Exchange Commission in usable form had approximate net income of $18,807,023,000.

Vanik identified the 15 oil companies as Occidental, Texaco, Mobil, Gulf, Atlantic Richfield, Standard of Ohio, Getty, Ashland, Standard of California, Standard of Indiana, Union of California, Sun, Phillips, Continental and Cities Service.

He said two other firms, Exxon and Shell, were omitted from the survey "because information provided to the SEC made computations impossible."

Vanik spoke as the Ways and Means Committee moved Tuesday to end farm tax shelters used by wealthy city dwellers to virtually escape paying taxes.

The panel voted 23 to 10 to end such benefits, under which the wealthy use packaged investments in cattle breeding and feeding, tree crops, vegetable and field crops and other farm items to build up accounting losses that they can apply against their tax liability.

Record number signed for valley horse show

The 31st annual Futurity Horse Show of the California Saddle Horse Breeders Association with a record number of entries will be held at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the Carnation Ring.

Four hundred fifty mounts, more than 200 more than were entered in the 1974 show, will compete for honors during the three-day show.

Dr. Daniel Felix Smith of Pomona, president of the association, in noting the tremendous total of entrants, said that there also is a substantial increase in the number of futurity nominations, notably in the number of weanlings.

Dr. Smith said that the horse show classes which have increased the most are the pleasure horse and all the driving classes, including the hackney and pony classes and the roadster.

"We are also pleased," Dr. Smith said, "with the number of entries from the north — the Redding Saddlebreds of Carmel, the Rural Retreat Stables of Los Altos, Mr. and Mrs. Philip B. Davis from Sonoma, and the Sining Hills Stable from Oregon City, Ore."

Two new perpetual trophies will be presented during the show. The Gerald R. Holtz Perpetual Trophy for the three-year-old three-gaited futurity champion is named in honor of the Palos Verdes Estates resident who served as president of the association the past two years.

The Bill Gerth Perpetual Trophy will be awarded to the champion of the junior three-gaited stake. It honors the late Bill Gerth who died in August after serving for many years as the official farrier at the show.

The association holds its first portion of the show Friday at 7:30 p.m. The show will continue at 1 and 7:30 p.m. in the Carnation Ring Saturday, with a similar show Sunday.

Pomona now enrolling for preschool classes

Fall enrollments in the State Preschool Program in Pomona's public schools are being accepted now in Portable C at Kingsley Elementary School.

Classes, to be taught at Allison, Arroyo, Kellogg, Lexington and San Jose elementary schools, began today. Hours are from 8:40 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

The program serves prekindergarten boys and girls from low-income families and children with special needs.

Parents are responsible for transportation. Hot lunches are served at school each day.

The program requires parent participation. Each child's family is responsible for two hours of classroom participation each week. Parent education classes are held monthly.

Registration is on a first-come, first-served basis. Parents are asked to bring birth certificates for their children and immunization records and either a Department of Public Social Services number or proof of income.

The family does not have to live in a school area to register there.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the district preschool specialist Judy Sneed at 623-5251, Ext. 317.

College offers Italian class

The Chaffey College adult education Italian grammar class starts Thursday.

Classes will be from 6:30 to 9 p.m. each Thursday in the multi-purpose room of Upland Public Library with Mrs. Rosina Pace as instructor.

Persons wishing additional information may call the Upland Library, 982-1561.

Is kidnaper steak tasty?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Whoever kidnaped Baby, a 300-pound, 2-year-old lion, may find the animal cranky and dangerous if they fail to discover her finicky tastes in food.

"Oh, she hates raw meat," said Florence Ennis, one of those at the Allco Auto Wrecking Yard who fed Baby. "If those people don't find her diet soon, she won't eat and probably will get very mean."

Baby was missing Tuesday morning when Mrs. Ennis and other employees showed up for work.

Mrs. Ennis said Baby turns up her nose, and occasionally bares a fang, at raw meat, but will eat it if cooked. What the lioness really likes, Mrs. Ennis said, is white albacore tuna and dog food, especially the moist, canned variety. Canned dog food? Baby has appeared in dog and cat food TV commercials and apparently picked up a taste for the stuff.

Brown gets the bill that may halt doctor strike

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has received a wide-ranging medical malpractice bill that the legislature's only doctor says should ward off a statewide doctors' strike.

The bill moved to the governor's office Tuesday after opponents abandoned a parliamentary maneuver to hold it up for a new vote.

The new vote would have been today, after the release of a legislative audit on insurance companies.

The measure by Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, had won a final 60-19 Assembly vote Monday on sweeping Senate amendments.

Said the only doctor in the legislature, Bob McLennan, R-Downey, in an interview: "This is as good a bill as we can get out of the legislature. In my opinion it will avert a walkout by doctors."

The amendments were strongly supported by doctors, and generally opposed by trial lawyers.

Backers of the bill said it cut doctors' insurance rates by at least 30 per cent through such provisions as a $250,000 limit on pain and suffering awards, a shortened statute of limitations, and curbs on lawyers' fees.

In other provisions, the bill strengthens the state Board of Medical Examiners, requires seven of its 19 members to be non-physicians, and initiates state review of large insurance rate increases.

Both Keene and McLennan predicted Brown would sign the bill.

"I don't think he can afford not to," McLennan said.

Keene said the bill's passage is a testimony of "political pressure by the medical community."

He said groups of doctors had been calling legislators' district offices urging them to vote for it.

Gun buyers facing extended wait now

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Senate narrowly approved legislation Tuesday that would force customers to wait 15 days before taking possession of a pistol purchased from a gun dealer.

The 21-18 vote sent the bill by Assemblyman Frank Murphy, R-Santa Cruz, to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. At least 21 aye votes were needed for passage.

Under current law, a five-day waiting period is required before a handgun buyer can take possession of the weapon.

Authorities use the time to run a check on the buyer to determine if he can legally own a handgun.

State law prohibits sale of pistols to minors, convicted felons and persons "adjudicated dangerous by reason of mental history."

Supporters argued that the bill would give authorities adequate time to check the background of a gun buyer. But critics contended that five days is adequate.

"It's an harassment that doesn't resolve a thing," Sen. H.L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, said of the bill.

But Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, said: "There is no way it is an harassment. The most you can say is it is an inconvenience.

"There is no reason why the gun buyer cannot wait."

The bill is AB 1441.

Stingy with power? Help may be coming

SACRAMENTO (AP) — People who use small amounts of gas and electricity would get a break in their utility bills under the so-called "lifeline" bill now on Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s desk.

A 50-8 Assembly vote Tuesday completed legislative action on the measure by Assemblyman John Miller, D-Oakland.

Currently, large commercial users of power get discounted rates.

The bill would freeze rates for small residential power users on Jan. 1, and those rates could be hiked only when they had fallen 25 per cent behind commercial rates.

The measure would affect only utilities regulated by the state Public Utilities Commission. Some cities, including Los Angeles and Sacramento, are served by municipal utilities not under PUC control.

Supporters of the bill said the "lifeline" system as adopted in several states has been an energy-saver and a protection for the elderly against increasing utility costs.

"More poor and aged users who can't afford the present rates will now be able to afford them," said Miller.

An opponent, Assemblyman Ken MacDonald, D-Ojai, said the bill would shift utility rate costs to large families and small businesses, "those least capable of bearing them."

The Assembly vote concurred in Senate amendments.

It is AB 167.

Passenger hurt as car hits home

A 16-year-old girl, injured when the car she was in struck a house in Pomona, was reported in good condition today in Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The accident occurred in a north-south alley between Russell Place and Bonnie Brae Avenue.

The driver, Steven J. Wells, also 16, 1739 Russell Place, told police his foot slipped from the brake pedal onto the throttle before the crash. He was treated for facial injuries at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Fontana.

Wells' passenger, Kim L. Warner, 918 Barbara Lane, Pomona, suffered a forehead injury and was admitted at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The house, at 1675 Russell Place, was damaged slightly, police said. It is the residence of Larry Taylor.

Boycott on Russ grain sales lifted for month

Unions consent after Ford heeds their fears on rising prices, jobs

WASHINGTON (AP)—AFL-CIO President George Meany and maritime unions are giving President Ford one month to ease the impact of future Russian grain deals before deciding whether to reimpose a boycott on shipments of corn and wheat.

After meeting with Ford on Tuesday, Meany and six maritime union leaders suspended the boycott of grain shipments for 30 days.

In exchange, Ford agreed to a six-point written plan designed to lessen the impact of Russian grain sales on consumer food prices and to make sure U.S. merchant ships with American seamen aboard deliver a significant portion of the grain.

"The country must have a new procedure for the sale of feed grains and wheat to such large state purchasers as the Soviet Union," Ford said in the agreement, released not by the White House but by a spokesman for the AFL-CIO.

In addition, Ford said he would immediately dispatch a negotiating team to Moscow to open negotiations on means of spreading out future Russian grain purchases, needed desperately this year because of widespread Soviet crop failures.

New crop forecasts due Thursday are expected to give the impetus for new grain sales this year to the Russians, in addition to 9.8 million metric tons they have already signed for with private U.S. grain dealers.

Ford said an existing informal agreement with the grain dealers to hold up on any further purchases would be extended until mid-October.

Further, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said at a news conference Tuesday that discussions with the Soviets have also begun on possible exchanges of Soviet oil surpluses for U.S. grain, a proposal frequently made by Meany.

The boycott by Gulf Coast longshoremen began July 30 with Meany's endorsement after it became clear for the second time in four years that the Soviet Union had purchased large amounts of grain and probably would return to buy more from U.S. farm surpluses.

Meany and the unions said they were motivated by fears of increases in the price of bread, meat and other food products, as well as their concern over the prospect of the grain being shipped in foreign flag vessels.

Court orders in both New Orleans and Texas postponed implementation of the boycott, but union officials had threatened to extend it port by port from the Gulf Coast to the Great Lakes to the West Coast.

The agreement announced Tuesday by Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop eases that threat and gives U.S. officials time to work out something with the Russians.

Negotiations over shipping rates the Soviets will pay for the grain deliveries resume between U.S. and Soviet officials in Moscow this week. Higher shipping rates mean more jobs for American seamen, and those talks reportedly were near to producing an agreement when they were politely suspended in Washington 10 days ago.

Fewer arrested noted

School rolls rise in Boston, Louisville

By The Associated Press

Increased school attendance is reported in Boston and Louisville, Ky., area schools under court-ordered desegregation employing massive busing.

Police in Boston skirmished with rock-and bottle-throwing demonstrators in the Charlestown section Tuesday night, but only 18 arrests were reported during the day.

In Kentucky, Jefferson County police said four pupils were arrested as the result of minor incidents, a far cry from the almost 500 persons who were arrested during four days of violent antibusing demonstrations after the new school term started Thursday.

Kentucky's Gov. Julian Carroll said he would ask the federal government to assume the cost of sending 1,000 National Guard troops and state police into Jefferson County early Saturday, after a night of demonstrations.

Boston police also broke up a 75-car antibusing caravan in the city's largely Irish Charlestown area Tuesday night, and they reported that a firebomb was found and destroyed in South Boston, another largely white section that has been a center of antibusing sentiment.

Boston school officials reported, meanwhile, that attendance at the city's 162 public schools on Tuesday was up to 65 per cent of the 75,000 pupils, compared with an attendance rate of 59 per cent on the opening day of the new term on Monday.

Under a temporary desegregation order issued by U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., 17,000 public school pupils were bused in Boston during the 1974-1975 term. The permanent order effective for the current term calls for busing 26,000.

Some 1,800 police and state troopers have been assigned to keep the desegregation effort in Boston as free of violence as possible this year. The officers cordoned off schools and guarded school bus routes.

Carroll said in Louisville that the guardsmen and Kentucky state police were called in at the specific request of U.S. District Court Judge James Gordon, who drafted the desegregation plan that calls for busing 22,600 of the 118,286 pupils expected to register for the 1975-1976 school year in Jefferson County.

"As far as I am concerned the guard and the state police are acting as federal peace officers," said Carroll, who added that he would go to court if necessary to obtain federal payment of the costs.

Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane estimated it was costing about $450,000 a week to keep the guardsmen and state police on hand.

Jefferson County school officials said attendance on Tuesday was 85,923, or about 73 per cent of the enrollment. Attendance on Monday was 67,151.

Can't tell all on pact —Kissinger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says his successful Sinai mission may yet "open a door to a general peace" in the area and promises fullest possible disclosure of secret elements.

But the American civilian technicians who will monitor the peace will not be Central Intelligence Agency men. Director William E. Colby, citing the controversy over the agency, barred their use as impolitic.

The Secretary of State, speaking at a news conference Tuesday, said the Ford administration "will go the absolute limit" to disclose secret parts of the Israeli-American agreement, but added: "There is an area of diplomacy that no country has ever made public."

Kissinger said he had the unanimous approval of the National Security Council before offering a U.S. presence as part of the peace agreement. He added the technicians will not take their stations before March.

A CIA spokesman, however, confirmed earlier press reports that Colby said his agents will not serve as technicians in the Sinai. "In the present atmosphere, we didn't want to be involved. It's the pure politics of the thing," Colby reportedly said.

Bullets fly; young theft suspect caught

A 16-year-old youth was arrested early today after a bullet-punctuated chase from a burglarized Pomona sportings goods store.

The youth, a Pomona resident, said he was shot in the right calf during the chase, but police were not so sure.

The physician who treated him at Pomona Valley Community Hospital said it was not a gunshot wound, but hospital records stated later that it was. In any case, the youth, who was not identified because of his age, was jailed after treatment.

The incident began shortly before 3 a.m. when police, answering a burglar alarm, said they saw the youth exiting the Big 5 Sporting Goods store at 676 W. Holt Ave. through a broken plate glass window. They said he had a revolver in one hand.

Patrolman Larry D. Kidney said his drawn pistol fired accidentally as he attempted to set the brake of the radio car and exit it to pursue the burglar. Moments later Kidney fired one round after the fleeing youth who refused to stop.

During the pursuit on foot, Officer Charles M. Heilman also fired one shot after the burglar before losing sight of him momentarily. The suspect was arrested later inside a storage shed at the rear of 758 W. Center St.

Police said they found three pistols, stolen from the sporting goods store, abandoned along the route of the chase.

The suspect said he was hit by "the third or fourth shot" but neither policeman was certain he had wounded the youth. The attending physician described the wound as simply a cut.

ONTARIO police Tuesday searched the home of Phillip John Parra, 27, of 1253 W. Rosewood Ct., the alleged "greasepaint bandit", and said they recovered a large quantity of stolen goods taken in recent valley robberies.

Police said they received permission to search Parra's Rosewood Court home from his wife. Detectives opened a locked closet, revealing a large amount of canned motor oil, packs of razor blades, a skateboard, lighters and $200 in cash believed taken in a number of valley service station and convenience market robberies since Aug. 27.

Parra was arrested Monday by a Riverside County sheriff's deputy during an alleged service station robbery, the sixth such robbery in Riverside since last Friday. Parra, when arrested, had a holdup note, a starter pistol, and a green hat similar to those used by a robber, dubbed the "greasepaint bandit" believed responsible for at least 12 robberies. Parra also had grease on the right side of his face covering four moles when arrested.

According to detectives, Parra had a record of other minor criminal offenses, but little recently. He is a graduate of Montclair High School and held his last job seven months ago with the Los Angeles Parks and Recreation Department. Police said that part of the loot taken in the robberies may have been given to his three children, a girlfriend's children and a sister's children in Riverside.

A POMONA man who chased a burglar from the backyard of a neighbor's home was shot at twice when he attempted to approach the man in the 1300 block of San Bernardino Avenue late Tuesday morning.

The burglar apparently used a .380-caliber pistol taken from the burglarized residence of Charles R. Fitzsimmons to shoot at the victim, Val Diaz, 45. Diaz gave up his pursuit of the man at that point.

Police said that the Fitzsimmons residence at 1758 James Place had been broken into by someone who removed the pistol, a coin bank and two rifles. Diaz, who was walking his dog, saw a man in the Fitzsimmons backyard with two rifles leaning against the garage. When Diaz challenged his presence there, the burglar fled with Diaz in pursuit.

Police later arrested a 24-year-old Pomona man and booked him in connection with the burglary and apparent attempt on Diaz' life.

Earnings up but buying power down 5% in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Americans earned more in dollars in 1974 than they did in 1973, their actual buying power decreased by nearly 5 per cent, the Census Bureau says.

The bureau reported Tuesday that 1974 median household income was $11,101. In other words, half the nation's households earned more than that and half earned less.

This was up from $10,512 in 1973. But the Census Bureau said that after inflation was figured in, the 1974 figure represented a 4.8 per cent decline in buying power.

It was the first drop since 1971, when the indicator fell nine-tenths of 1 per cent after adjustment for inflation.

In July, the bureau reported that median family income after such adjustment tumbled by 4 per cent, despite a $785 increase in dollar value to $12,836. That was the worst drop since the agency began keeping records of family income in 1947.

The family statistics traditionally have been a key indicator of Americans' standard of living, but they cover only two or more related persons living in the same quarters.

Household statistics also include persons living alone and unrelated persons sharing living quarters. The Census Bureau first used this measure in 1967.

Round-the-clock school security. . .

ing the school protection from school closing through nighttime hours until daylight.

However, Jack Jones, president of Pomona schools' Certificated School Employes Association, cited a state statute which forbids changing hours of employes. He said reassigning hours of security guards was forbidden but board members took exception to Jones' interpretation of the law and the matter was tabled for further study.

Board members also tabled a decision to rebuild the demolished Yorba School classroom pending study of the school census and whether the classroom needs to be rebuilt.

Donnelly was outvoted 3 to 1 by other board members (Mary Montes missed the meeting due to illness) when he objected to a $300 outlay to Roosevelt Elementary School for an appearance next Tuesday of a mariachi band in observance of Mexican Independence Day.

He said such funds would be better spent for improvement of "reading, writing and arithmetic" skills.

Four or five speakers from the audience challenged Donnelly's views with the line dissenter claiming Pomona schools were so topheavy with nonacademic expenditures that taxes were unrealistic.

Board members Pine, Gene Whitlock and C. Allen Braswell voted in favor of hiring a $100 per hour mariachi band for the celebration as a "cultural experience" for pupils at Roosevelt School.

In other action, the board:

—Agreed to send a letter to Pomona City Council outlining goals of the truancy program offhandedly urging city councilmen to encourage more Pomona police participation in the program.

—Set 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 25 for a day-long study session geared to developing long and short range programs for the school district — a meeting open to the public

—Agreed to have hour-long executive sessions to hear taxpayer grievances against school personnel an hour before regular board sessions.

—Heard a report on a pilot program to return expelled pupils to the system through a new counseling plan involving parents of expelled pupils.

—Approved appointment of five employes to represent the district in meet-and-confer sessions with district employe groups concerning wages, fringe benefits and grievances.

Asst. Supt. Sidney Moses was absent from the meeting. A district spokesman said he was in Washington, D.C. lobbying among Congressmen to override President Gerald Ford's veto of the $8 billion education bill.

Spacecraft No. 2 heads for Mars

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Viking II spaceship has joined its sister ship on a 505-million-mile journey to seek life on Mars, a planet once thought to be criss-crossed with canals constructed by intelligent beings.

A Titan-Centaur booster rocket propelled the four-ton spacecraft into a parking orbit around earth at 2:39 p.m. EDT, and less than an hour later, the Viking II was blasted out of orbit and on its way toward the red planet.

The craft followed Viking 1, launched nearly three weeks ago on an identical mission in the $1 billion program.

Officials said the launch caused a fire in a supposedly fireproof building 40 feet from the launch pad. Three firemen suffered smoke inhalation fighting the four-hour blaze, officials said.

Space agency officials would not comment on the cause of the fire.

Although scientists now believe the "canals" are dried up river beds, they hope the twin probes will reveal evidence of past or present life on Mars.

Palestinian guerrillas fuel Lebanon crisis

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Lebanon's recurrent plague, communal bloodletting, has been part of the Middle East picture all along, but the fact that the current outburst hasn't triggered wider trouble in the area thus far suggests change in the making.

However, if the present fighting should result in collapse of the delicately balanced system of government under which little Lebanon is ruled, there could well be a much wider crisis.

This explosion actually began two months ago, subsided, then burst out all over again with a fury rivaling that of the 1958 upheaval, when something akin to rebellion plus civil war brought crisis to the neighbors, a near Soviet-U.S. confrontation and the landing of American troops.

The crux of the Christian-Moslem quarrel, as ever, is the activity of Palestinian guerrillas based in Lebanon who mount attacks on Israel and thus invite massive retaliation, which in turn disrupts Lebanon's economic life.

Some 200,000 Palestinian refugees and their children are in camps in Lebanon. Palestine is central to the Arab quarrel with Israel and thus Lebanon is drawn into it. The refugees refuse to be settled permanently for fear of suggesting surrender of claims to properties whence they — or their fathers — were driven by the Israelis in the 1948 war.

Lebanon, a sun-washed country of 3 million, is a nation of Mediterranean traders that is often subject to heavy pressures from powerful neighbors.

In two previous major upheavals, 1958 and 1969, Lebanon was under pressure from the followers of Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt to join the "confrontation states" against Israel.

Since well before independence from France, Lebanon has been ruled by a delicately divided government on the supposition that the Moslem and Christian populations were equal.

But while Moslem sympathies go out to the Palestinians, Christians, many of them members of the flourishing business community, prefer not to invite the retaliation. Their armed militants object to the Lebanon-based guerrilla activity.

When the quarrel explodes in fighting, the government balance is imperiled. Should it come apart, outside interference, particularly from militarily strong Syria which sponsors Palestinian guerrillas, would be a distinct possibility. Then the Israeli finger would be on the trigger in anticipation of a Lebanon dominated by Moslems and bent on hostile action.

As yet, unlike the Nasser days, the trouble still seems confined mostly to Lebanon. This testifies to a striking difference in the leadership of Egypt, the main Arab actor in the Middle East drama. President Anwar Sadat has just traveled a difficult route to a new agreement with Israel. He wants to turn attention to Egypt's massive economic problems. He seems to have kept hands off Lebanon, and perhaps this has persuaded Syria to be circumspect about the situation. If so, there is hope for less dangerous days.

CMDR. STEVENSON
. . . relieved of command

Go-go gal: 'boosted morale'

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP) — "I've never seen such a bunch of smiling men go out to sea," a Fort Pierce go-go dancer says of her topless performance aboard a Navy submarine.

But at least one man on the USS Finback during the July 10 dance isn't smiling. Cmdr. Connelly D. Stevenson, skipper of the sub, has been relieved of command.

"I'm really interested in the Navy ... It really boosted the men's morale," Cat Futch said Tuesday of her 15-minute performance on top of the vessel's conning tower. "It didn't hurt them or me."

Miss Futch, 23, who listed her statistics as 34-23-35, said she performed "for patriotic reasons.

"It was definitely a way to make sure every guy was on the boat when they left port."

The hazel-eyed blonde said Stevenson "was just trying to do something for the men."

Stevenson, who is trying to regain his command, said he agreed to allow Miss Futch to dance as the boat pulled out of Port Canaveral to acknowledge extra work by his crew and to impress the rival Alexander Hamilton, a missile-firing submarine tied up in port.

Miss Futch, now working at a Fort Pierce club, blamed someone aboard the Hamilton for blowing the whistle on Stevenson, who has been given a desk job at Norfolk, Va.

She said she wasn't paid for her performance, but a crewman took up a collection and Stevenson gave her a twin dolphin, emblem of the Navy submarine service.

"That really means a lot to me," said Miss Futch, who called Stevenson "the best commander they ever had."

'Jaws' takes biggest bite

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Jaws" has taken the biggest bite of all.

Universal Studios said Tuesday that in only 78 days the movie about a seaside resort terrorized by a great white shark has become the most successful motion picture in American film history.

Box office gross at the end of 80 days was $124.3 million, Universal said, surpassing the previous record holder, "The Godfather," in both U.S. and Canadian receipts.

The show premieres abroad this December.

'Gentleman farmer' bill approved

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Income taxes for some 6,000 wealthy Californians would be boosted by a total of $25 million a year under a bill approved by the legislature.

It diminishes the "gentleman farmer" deduction that enabled former Gov. Ronald Reagan to pay no 1970 state income taxes.

The measure by Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, would reduce other tax shelters and seek to increase the minimum taxes the wealthy must pay.

A 54-17 Assembly vote Tuesday sent the bill to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who has endorsed it.

It is AB 1206.

Dear World

MY YOUNG SON starts to school today . . . It's all going to be sort of strange and new to him for awhile, and I wish you would sort of treat him gently.

You see, up to now he's been king of the roost . . . He's been boss of the backyard . . . His mother has always been near to soothe his wounds and repair his feelings.

But now things are going to be different.

This morning he's going to walk down the front steps, wave his hand, and start out on the great adventure . . . It is an adventure that might take him across continents, across oceans . . . It's an adventure that will probably include wars and tragedy and sorrow . . . To live his life in the world he will have to live in will require faith and love and courage.

So, World, I wish you would sort of look after him . . . Take him by the hand and teach him things he will have to know.

But do it gently, if you can.

He will have to learn, I know, that all men are not just, that all men are not true.

But teach him also that for every scoundrel there is a hero . . . that for every crooked politician there is a great and dedicated leader . . . Teach him that for every enemy, there is a friend.

Steer him away from envy, if you can . . . and teach him the secret of quiet laughter.

In school, World, teach him it is far more honorable to fail than to cheat . . . Teach him to have faith in his own ideas, even if everyone says they are wrong . . . Teach him to be gentle with gentle people and tough with tough people.

Try to give my son the strength not to follow the crowd when everyone is getting on the bandwagon . . . Teach him to listen to all men — but teach him also to filter all he hears on a screen of truth and take just the good that siphons through.

Teach him, if you can, how to laugh when he's sad . . . Teach him there is no shame in tears . . . Teach him there can be glory in failure and despair in success.

Treat him gently, World, if you can. But don't coddle him . . . Because only the test of fire makes fine steel . . . Let him have the courage to be impatient . . . Let him have the patience to be brave.

Let him be no man's man . . . Teach him always to have sublime faith in himself.

Because then he will always have sublime faith in mankind.

This is quite an order, World, but see what you can do . . . He's such a nice little fellow, my son!

SBA nomination goes to Kleppe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford Tuesday nominated Thomas S. Kleppe, administrator of the Small Business Administration, to be secretary of the interior.

Kleppe, 56, a Republican and former two-term North Dakota congressman, would succeed Stanley K. Hathaway, who submitted his resignation July 25.

The nomination of Kleppe had been rumored for several days, and North Dakota congressmen said last week they understood Ford would name him to the job.

Kleppe, of Bismarck, N.D., served in Congress from 1966 to 1970. If confirmed he would be the first North Dakotan to sit on a presidential Cabinet.

Hathaway, who served only six weeks in the interior job, resigned for health reasons.

Kleppe was named to the SBA post in January 1971 by former President Nixon and was asked by President Ford to continue in that job.

He lost Senate races to Sen. Quentin Burdick in 1964 and 1970 by substantial margins.

He is a former mayor of Bismarck and a one-time Minneapolis investment banker.

Kleppe's position on environmental matters is largely a matter of speculation since he has little or no public record on current issues in this area.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said, "The President believes he is the best man for the job and that's why he nominated him."

Kleppe, 55, was backed by a group of Western senators.

"I think he will make a good Interior secretary," said Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., one of the sponsors. "The fact that he has not been involved with a lot of environmental issues will be an asset. He is more middle of the road."

Kleppe's agency was shaken last year by a loan scandal in its Richmond, Va., office that resulted in the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars and the firings of two SBA officials.

Terror in Tripoli

Editors: The following report was telephoned to the Associated Press in Beirut Tuesday by a Tripoli resident who has lived through a week of savage sectarian fighting between Christians and Moslems. He asked to remain anonymous.

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (AP) — Bullets are falling like rain, mortar shells like melons. I have seen men so scared they are soiling their pants.

Looters are loose in Tripoli. Armed Moslems are blowing up Christian-owned shops and armed Christians are attacking Moslem-owned stores.

More than a dozen shops along the main boulevard leading into the city have been blown up by Moslems. These shops are owned by Zaghartans, people from the hometown of Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh.

Christians and Moslems set up sandbag barriers at street intersections and rifle wielding snipers from both sides are manning rooftop positions. The exchange of gunfire is intermittent, but shattering explosions were heard in the heart of the city.

Civilians rushed to the source of one explosion to find a shop owned by a Moslem resident of Tripoli blown up. These civilians quickly proceeded to a nearby shop owned by a Zaghartan and blew it to shreds.

People have given up hopes of defending their property. All they care for is to stay alive. Screams of women and men yelling for help are often heard in narrow alleyways near the inner souk (market) area.

Security forces cannot cope with the situation, and armed civilians shoot strangers without warning.

More than 60 people have been killed and nearly 100 wounded in the weeklong fighting between Moslems and Christians. (Security forces put the known toll in the week of clashes at 83 killed and predicted it would rise higher.)

It is like real war. They use very sophisticated weapons, and most of them are expert guerrillas. They use mortars, bazookas, 50-caliber machineguns, and they issue communiques through bullhorns.

Palestinian forces unleashed tens of rounds of mortar shells and rockets from the suburb of Kubbeh into Zagharta, five kilometers (about three miles) away. Zaghartan snipers managed to sneak into the city and capture rooftop positions. They shot one Palestinian guerrilla Monday night. He was badly wounded.

At daybreak Tuesday, Moslems marched on several fuel stations owned by Christians from Zagharta and blew them up.

On Sunday, the Christians blew up water pipes. Most of Tripoli became thirsty. Some residents relied on underground wells while others sought water in nearby pumping stations and streams.

Manson family minds 'eaten away'—Younger

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state attorney general says members of the Manson family "probably have taken enough acid that their minds are eaten away and they are mentally and emotionally ill."

One early member of Charles Manson's clan, Lynette Fromme, 27, was arrested Friday and charged with trying to murder President Ford, who found himself looking at a pistol while shaking hands in Capitol Park.

Younger said law enforcement officers can't just go out and arrest people who have become mentally and emotionally ill on drugs.

Manson and three members of his family were convicted of masterminding the seven Tate-LaBianca murders in Los Angeles in 1969.

Witnesses testified during the trial that Manson family members took LSD and other hallocenogenic drugs several times a day in large doses.

Prosecutors said Manson used drugs to program his followers to commit murder.

Younger feels there are "a lot of crazy people running around, but nothing can be done unless there is an act that is illegal," spokesman Al Gordon said in an interview.

Younger cited Sandra Good, 31, Miss Fromme's roommate, as an example of someone who is "incoherent and stands for everything that Manson does. But you can't just put her away because there is no reason for an arrest."

Miss Good was questioned and released after Miss Fromme's arrest.

Younger said he would be "disturbed" if the Secret Service did not have all of the information he had on Miss Fromme.

The state's top crime fighter said he had a thick file on the woman charged with attempted murder of the President and on other members of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson's cult-like family.

After Miss Fromme's arrest Friday, Douglas Duncan chief of the Secret Service Sacramento office, said he had no files on Miss Fromme, who lived eight blocks from the site of the attempted assassination Friday.

Duncan said he did not personally know she was in town and that the data his office had on her was "word of mouth."

Earlier, the public defender representing Miss Fromme said he will probably seek a gag order to prevent officials from talking about the assassination attempt.

Younger, who was Los Angeles district attorney when Manson was prosecuted there, said he has kept his eye on Manson family activities and his office has much background on the group.

Younger said the Manson file was available to the Secret Service.

"I will be disturbed if it eventually develops that we had in our files information that the Secret Service didn't have. I'll wonder why they didn't have it," he said.

But even with such information, Younger said he doesn't believe there would have been sufficient reason to lock up Miss Fromme before she reached the Capitol area.

Manson family...

The U.S. attorney's office said it was informed that E. Richard Walker, appointed to represent Miss Fromme, would file a request with the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco to prevent public statements by prosecutors and others.

A gag order would not prevent Miss Fromme from talking if she wants to. The 27-year-old member of Manson's cult-like family has many times expressed the desire to "have a courtroom" in which to express Manson's philosophy.

It appeared likely that she would use any future trial as a forum to give those opinions.

Keyes said he didn't plan to call Manson family members before the grand jury. Keyes will seek an indictment under the special law covering assassination attempts on presidents which carries a mandatory life sentence upon conviction.

Sandra Good, 31, Miss Fromme's roommate and sister Manson disciple, will not be a witness, but sources said she has been under investigation.

Miss Good was questioned and released last Friday because, Keyes said, there was no evidence against her.

No conspiracy charges have been filed,but authorities are still probing the possibility that others in the Manson clan may have known of Miss Fromme's plan to go to the Capitol area where Ford greeted spectators Friday.

Witnesses have said the redhaired woman pointed a gun at Ford before it was wrestled from her hand by a Secret Service agent.

Keyes said his investigators are still evaluating evidence confiscated from Miss Fromme's apartment — including a number of hunting knives in scabbards. He said no other weapons were found at the apartment.

The biggest job for investigators is reading through what the FBI called "stacks and stacks" of letters written to Miss Fromme and Miss Good by Manson, the convicted murderer and clan leader now serving a life sentence at San Quentin prison.

"There were sometimes five to six letters a day," Keyes said. He said there are also unmailed letters written by the women and "we have some of their writings."

SETTLE DOWN, NOW — A young Amish boy is held fast by a patient adult during a sale of household goods and antiques near Shenandoah, Ohio, Monday. Amish home-baked goods were available along with such items as a cast iron rug loom, a two-barrel cider press and a cast iron gear-driven slaw cutter.

Groom to sue church over poor wedding

LONDON (AP) — What is a wedding without music?

Because the organist allegedly forgot about the wedding and failed to turn up, Patrick Lambert, 23, claims the ceremony uniting him and his 18-year-old bride, Yvonne, was a "bad joke more like a funeral."

The reception afterwards was just as bad - "nobody felt like enjoying themselves."

The wedding night was terrible - "Yvonne was still upset: I didn't have the heart to disturb her so I slept on the sofa."

The honeymoon - "Yvonne was still distressed, so we came home four days early." "We might just as well have got married in a civil ceremony."

So now he plans to sue the church. The church has offered to refund him the $55 the ceremony cost, But Lambert declared "the wedding and honeymoon cost me $2.000 and I'm prepared to sue for everything."

European Market hits imported car probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has until May to decide if imported autos are being sold here at less than their fair price.

The European Common Market protested stiffly today the continuation of the government's investigation, voted 4 to 2 Monday by the U.S. International Trade Commission.

The Commission directed the Treasury Department to investigate charges that $7.5 billion worth of cars from eight nations are being sold here cut rate.

The executive commission of the Common Market said in Brussels, Belgium, the trade commision action meant the investigation would continue "with the harrassment, legal expense and possible disruption to trade which this implies."

TEEN LIVE-IN — Patricia Thompson, 15, and Ray Kuhns, 19, are the center of a controversy in the community of Creston, Iowa. A young social worker is to tell a juvenile court this week why he drew up a written contract allowing them to live together. Miss Thompson is a ward of the state.

Why Kansas City was GOP convention pick

WASHINGTON (AP) — For political reasons, Republicans wanted to go to the Middle West. When the showdown came, the chief factor in the choice of Kansas City was the comfort of the delegates.

The convention hall in Kansas City presented problems, the Republicans conceded, and there was a shortage of hotel rooms.

But the room shortage in Cleveland was even more severe and, in addition, there was a shortage of toilets.

The report of the Republican Site Selection Committee spelled out some of the considerations.

Cleveland could provide only 12,449 rooms with another 1,346 available in Akron, at least an hour's drive away. When an earlier plan to house delegates on cruise ships in Lake Erie fell through, Mayor Ralph Perk suggested building modular homes with an additional 1,400 rooms in groupings to be known as Lincoln and Eisenhower, Villages.

"This alternative is novel, has appeal, but in the final analysis is nonexistent, except on paper," the committee reported. It added that the plan for one bathroom for every two rooms failed to meet the requirement of first-class hotel rooms.

In Kansas City, the number of hotel rooms available was 15,755 with some 2,000 of them in the Topeka, Kan., area. Topeka also is about an hour away, but the committee said traffic there was less of a problem than in other cities.

When the issue came up for debate this week, after Sunday night's unanimous committee vote for Kansas City, the only question dealt with the hotel rooms in Topeka.

"I love Topeka very much," said California GOP Chairman Paul Haerle, adding that it might pose problems to house delegates there and transport them to Kansas City.

"It is not an ideal situation," conceded Edwin G. Middleton of Kentucky, vice chairman of the site committee.

But he noted that delegates often had to rise at least an hour to get to convention halls in San Francisco and Miami Beach and added that only "visitors and whatnot" would end up in Topeka.

With that detail out of the way, the committee voted to hold the convention in Kansas City.

Man, 75, burned in accident

A Mira Loma man suffered burns early today after a truck struck the rear of his small car in Chino, causing it to overturn and catch fire.

John Hughes, 75, was treated at Chino General Hospital for burns on his face, hand and arm. He was later released.

He was driving west on the Pomona Freeway about 3:30 a.m. when a truck operated by Ronald Campbell, 32, of Anaheim, struck the rear of his small vehicle. The accident occurred east of Ramona Avenue.

The impact caused the vehicle to overturn and catch fire. The driver was able to climb out the passenger door. The fire later engulfed the car.

The truck driver told highway patrolmen he was traveling about 55 miles an hour and did not see the car until he was almost on top of it. He swerved to the left but his front bumper caught the rear of the car, he added.

Campbell wasn't injured.

Kiwanis club to seat slate

Attorney Jay Knight will be installed as president of the Claremont Kiwanis Club Thursday at 6 p.m. at Griswold's.

The club observed Ladies' Night as well as induction of officers for the 1975-76 year.

Lt. Gov. Bill Davidson will cite the services of officers retiring, and Lt. Gov.-elect and Mrs. Sid Jones will install those who will serve for the new year beginning Oct. 1.

Knight has been presiding at club meetings as vice-president since President Guy Warfel's departure for Saipan in August.

Vocalists Dean and Marge Fowler will entertain.

Serving with Knight the coming year will be Tim Castleberry and John Keil, vice presidents; John Lang, treasurer; Jim Flagg, secretary; and Owen Brown, Cleo Burton, Phil Johnston, Stan Larson, Bob Omohundro, and Eero Omri, directors. Dell Sauter, a seventh director, is on leave.

Ganesha class

The Class of 1965 at Ganesha High School in Pomona is planning its 10th-year reunion.

Members of the class are asked to call 626-1273 days or 621-4224 evenings to help formulate plans.

St. Louis board split, forcing Wentz to wait

Pomona Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz will have to wait at least until tonight to find out if he is chosen superintendent of the St. Louis City School District.

Wentz, one of two principal candidates for the position, says he does not expect the appointment to be made until this weekend.

The St. Louis school board Tuesday night appeared split over the selection, according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The board went into a closed door session, which was disrupted by some parents angry over a "secret" meeting. They staged a sit-in outside the board conference room.

During the regular session, board President James L. Cummings angrily denounced an attempt by some board members to choose a new superintendent immediately and in secrecy.

He said the selection process should be done in a public meeting, and that it was too early to evaluate information from the two main candidates, Wentz and St. Louis Deputy Supt. Ernest Jones.

A third candidate, Charles Bernardo, superintendent of Providence, R.I. schools, may be considered for the post, according to Cummings, who disputed a story in the Post-Dispatch saying Bernardo already had accepted another job.

The board adjourned the meeting until this evening.

According to the Post-Dispatch, the split among board members may be a result of considerable local backing for Jones, a "hometown boy."

Cummings has said, however, that Wentz did not seek the job. "We sought him."

The 90,000-student district employs 7,000 persons.

Both Wentz and Jones were interviewed last weekend by members of 25 civic groups and organizations, in public forums. They were asked controversial questions, pertinent to St. Louis school problems.

Cycle, train, car in Ontario crashes

A Southern Pacific train engine rammed into the side of a car and a motorcyclist slid into a parked pickup truck in Ontario Tuesday.

Allen Ray Simmerman, 22, of 1092 E. Elma St., Ontario, was injured when a motorcycle he was riding south on Orange Street skidded on a puddle of water and slid into a parked pickup truck near Plaza Serena, police reported.

Simmerman was taken to Ontario Community Hospital for treatment and later was released.

Eula Faye Baker, 35, of 14939 Redwood St., Chino, was injured when her car was struck by a Southern Pacific train engine on Euclid Avenue near State Street.

Mrs. Baker was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital and later released. Police said the Chino woman told officers she was caught on the railroad tracks in heavy traffic when the crossing arms suddenly came down to move forward off the tracks but was unable to do so because of other cars stopped in front of her. The train hit the side of the car, spinning it around.

The engineer of the train, Larry A. Van Daele, 60, of Norwalk said he could not stop the engine in time to avoid the collision.

Third youth is arrested in shooting

A third 17-year-old youth has been arrested for investigation of attempted murder and burglary by West End Sheriff's detectives investigating the Sept. 2 shooting of a Cucamonga market owner.

Detectives Lenn Allen and Gary Eisenbeiz arrested the third youth, 17, from Ontario, in the case Tuesday afternoon as a result of a week-long investigation. Two other 17-year-old youths from Cucamonga were earlier arrested by the detectives in connection with the shooting of Lorenzo Cerda Rodriquez, 83, owner of Avila's Market on 24th Street in Cucamonga. Rodriquez was shot several times by a youth holding a shotgun outside of his store that had just been burglarized.

Rodriquez, after the shooting, said four to five youths confronted him after they allegedly broke into his store. One of the youths is believed to have a .12-gauge shotgun used in the shooting.

Rodriquez remains hospitalized at San Antonio Community Hospital recovering from multiple pellet wounds of the upper legs.

Seniors club maps trip to Marineland

The Chino Senior Citizens Club is sponsoring a trip to Marineland of the Pacific Thursday.

A bus will leave from the Chino Community Building at 9 a.m. and return at 4 p.m. Cost for transportation is $2.75, payable to the Recreation and Parks Department before the event. Admission charge will be $2.

The club also is planning a visit to the Los Angeles County Fair on Sept. 22.

Price for that trip is $1, payable in advance. A bus will leave the Community Building at 10 a.m. and return at 4 p.m.

Reservations may be made by calling the recreation office at 627-7344.

L.V. excursion set for Knott's

The La Verne Recreation Department will conduct an excursion to Knott's Berry Farm Oct. 11.

The fee will be $6 for adults and $4 for children under 12. Those who are interested in the day long-trip may obtain more information by calling the recreation office, 593-4571.

$28 million pacts given to Dynamics

Two contracts totaling $28.1 million have been awarded to General Dynamics Pomona by the Navy, Rep. James Lloyd, D-35 Dist., announced today.

A $22.8 million contract calls for the production of standard Type One missiles. A separate contract for $5.3 million has been granted for operations and maintenance of the Naval Industrial Reserve Ordnance plant.

A spokesman for General Dynamics said the contracts would enable the company to continue present ongoing projects.

Orange Show theme sought

The National Orange Show in San Bernardino is now accepting theme entries for its 1976 show in March.

The winner will receive $150 and a season pass to the exposition.

Entries should be two or three words, sent on a post card to Theme Contest, National Orange Show, 689 S. E St., San Bernardino 92408. Entrants should include address and phone number.

Previous years' themes have included "This is America," "Citrus Serenade," and "Citrus International."

PB story sparks outburst by school board members

Two Pomona school board members Tuesday night proposed withholding from the public information on upcoming board meetings because of their feud with the Progress Bulletin.

Board President Don Donnelly and member C. Allen Braswell cited alleged inaccuracies in a Monday Progress Bulletin story which outlined an additional 10-cent tax hike per $100 assessed valuation for Pomona School District taxpayers.

Crux of the outburst from Donnelly and Braswell was wording of the story which appeared on the front page of the second section Monday. The pair alleged that the Progress Bulletin misstated facts and made it appear that the board had a choice of hiking taxes 10 cents.

They explained their hands were tied and statutes demanded the 10-cent hike with no choice given board members.

Reason for the additional 10-cent hike was outlined in statements from Asst. Supt. Lynn Rountree, district business manager.

He said that when the school budget was adopted last month, only estimates and not actual figures were available from utilities within the district. That estimate was based on a 2½ per cent increase in utility valuations. But utility valuations actually fell almost $3½ million when actual figures were made available to the district.

The 10-cent tax hike became mandatory to meet requirements of the budget already adopted and automatically would be assessed with or without board approval which was not necessary, Rountree explained.

At that point, Braswell unleashed a tirade upon the Progress Bulletin citing "constant inaccuracies." Donnelly followed with a tirade of his own.

"The public press is interested only in sensationalism and blood and guts and not fact," Donnelly charged.

A representative of the League of Women Voters, Helen Coonrod, defended Progress Bulletin coverage of school board meetings as factual.

But Donnelly interrupted her stating:

"There are inaccuracies and the editorial policy of the Progress Bulletin is . . . . well, I shouldn't go into that . . ."

Donnelly's apparent reference to the Progress Bulletin's editorial policy referred to this newspaper's opposition to the tax override proposal of $1.10 this past summer. (Voters approved the override.)

Both Donnelly and Braswell urged board members Ken Pine and Gene Whitlock to join them in ending the policy of furnishing advance board meeting agenda to the PB for publication so that Pomona School District taxpayers can be informed of issues to be discussed in upcoming board meetings. Action was tabled until the next meeting.

This policy, if adopted, would serve to cut off one channel of communication between the district and taxpayers.

Claremont council to meet with planners over RUD requirements

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council will meet with the Planning Commission to discuss the concept of a residential unit development (RUD). The board decided on the session after learning Tuesday that the Armstrong Development Corp. is withdrawing its application for such a development in unincorporated county territory.

Under an RUD approved with conditions, a developer can increase the density of his homes by dedicating to the city a certain percentage of land for use as open space, such as parks and equestrian trails.

The Planning Commission Sept. 2 approved a conditional use permit to allow Armstrong to develop 80 units under an RUD north of Miramar Avenue extension between Indian Hill Boulevard and Forbes Avenue.

Developer Robert Armstrong as part of the RUD arrangement proposed dedicating to the city as "visual open space" 6.5 acres of lemon grove bordering on the northwest boundary of the tract, but asked that the city lease back to Dr. Robert Harn the 6.5 acres for lemon farming for 15 years.

At the Planning Commission hearing, neighboring property owners complained about the proposal of fencing the grove, and the commission made one of the conditions of the permit that the proposed open space be adopted with an extension to the trail system along Thompson Creek, and that the open space be not a secured area, and not a lemon grove.

Armstrong in his letter to the council Tuesday night said that the (city's) scope of requirements "has reached a degree whereby the development is not economically feasible."

"We further regret," Armstrong said," that this is the first time in our 20 years of development in the city that such a decision is necessary. We have not reached this conclusion lightly as we have devoted considerable expense to the project to date."

Armstrong said that if the firm reaches a satisfactory agreement with Dr. Harn, it will resubmit a new tentative plan with a proposal for lots of 13,000 square feet developed in the conventional manner.

The Armstrong tract is part of a larger 138-acre Annexation 50 which will be heard by LAFCO Sept. 24.

The council was assured that the county has approved a tentative tract map for Armstrong which could be annexed to the city under county zoning standards. The city had also approved a tentative tract map on the same property.

City Manager Norman King told the council that the Planning Commission needs better directions on what the city wants developers to dedicate as open space.

"We have serious procedural problems which finally have surfaced," he said. "Discussion is needed between council, planners and concerned residents."

"Do we really want the RUD?" Mayor Bertye Smith asked.

Against former principal

$900,000 suit a 'crime'—trustee

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Chino school trustee Al McCombs Tuesday night blasted a $900,000 libel suit against former Chino High School principal Terry Terril as "spiteful" and a "crime against students."

The suit, filed by the Chino Federation of Teachers (CFT) in July, alleges that Terril injured the union with charges of "unprofessional conduct." His comments were reported in three local newspapers.

Terrill resigned in April, charging that a handful of teachers were campus troublemakers. He identified them as members of CFT, an AFL-CIO affiliate.

McCombs made his comments after the school board approved the hiring of an outside attorney to defend the district's part in the libel action.

"The teachers' union should realize that by forcing the district to spend money to defend itself, funds will be used that could go into the general educational program," said McCombs.

With "competent counsel," the district will not be forced to pay damages, he added, predicting a "victory" for the board.

McCombs added, "We are still forced to use educational dollars to protect ourselves from a spiteful suit, and that is a crime against students of this district."

CTF president L.A. Olson, commenting on McCombs' charges after the meeting, said, "I don't see how a lawsuit can be spiteful. That was an innocuous comment."

Teachers were exposed to public ridicule by Terril, and "allowing themselves to be walked on is a worse crime than spending money in defense of a suit," she said.

Supt. Royce Lapp, in recommending the board hire an outside attorney, explained that Terril must be defended as a former agent of the district.

The suit names Terril individually and as principal of the high school within the Chino Unified School District.

Lapp added that in "no way" can the district defend him as an individual person.

"The risk is too great," he said, indicating the district must defend its alleged part in the suit. "If you let it go by default you're subject to attorney fees and a default judgment."

Lapp told the board that Dep. County Counsel Craig Jordan informed him the complaint must be answered by Sept. 15. Jordan suggested hiring an outside attorney because he has no experience in libel cases, Lapp said.

Jordan's fee would be $35 an hour, but a private attorney would cost much more, officials indicated.

Trustee Pete VanderPoel noted he "did not particularly want to lose this case", and called for hiring the attorney.

Board members asked Lapp whether the district is "responsible" for Terril's defense. The superintendent indicated since he was an employe, the district was involved.

"I don't think Terril was admitting he acted on behalf of the district," said McCombs.

But VanderPoel argued that "You can't wash your hands of the situation."

McCombs reported, "We might want to take the stand that Terril was acting on his own. If we defend him, it may be an admission of guilt."

He favored hiring outside legal help to defend the district's "best interests", not Terril's. (Lapp said Terril told him he had not retained an attorney to defend himself.)

The question remains to be resolved in court whether Terril acted alone or as an agent of the district, trustee Lyle Briggs declared.

The board will decide by the next meeting the name of the attorney to be hired.

It's no time for trading

"Like the rebounding of a landmass after the lifting of the weight of a glacier, the nation of Portugal continues to float on a wave of euphoria following the ending of more than four decades of rightwing dictatorship . . .

"One is reminded of the happy throngs in the streets of Havana on New Year's Day, 1959, after dictator Fulgencio Batista had fled the country and Fidel Castro and his victorious army entered the city — and then one thinks of what happened in the ensuing months . . ."

We wrote those words some 14 months ago. The euphoria of the Portuguese has long since been transformed into fear and the happy throngs into destructive mobs. The human "landmass" of Portugal is in greater upheaval than ever and the future of the nation hangs daily in precarious balance.

It took no special insight or powers of prediction to warn that a people which had no experience with democracy, which had none of those institutions that in a democracy safeguard freedom and permit the orderly interplay of competing interests and transference of power from one party to another, might find that, like the Cubans, it had merely traded a dictatorship of the right for a more oppressive one of the left.

That this has not happened in Portugal is due to one thing only — the determination of the overwhelming majority of the Portuguese that it not be permitted to happen.

While the non-Communist political spectrum in Portugal is infinitely fragmented, ranging from socialists to monarchists, from moderates to extremists of the right, it is united in a desire for a new day in Portugal of democratically constituted rule. In the first free election in the country's history, the Communists received only 12 per cent of the votes.

But the will of the people has been thwarted by an equally determined and better organized core of Communists and pro-Communists who have seized control of the government, supported to an uncertain degree by the army.

Thus the people have taken to the streets to express their will, burning and sacking Communist party offices, and everyone wonders which side the army may yet come down on.

All of this has been a severe setback to the Communists, who are currently on the defensive. But no one can predict what may happen in Portugal in the coming days or weeks. The nation's long ordeal is not yet over.

Wrong time, wrong item

No doubt state legislators wouldn't mind an increase in the per diem rate they receive for expenses: who would? But this is the wrong time for such an increase, not to mention a dubious item to be increased in the first place.

The per diem, currently $30 a day, $210 a week while the Legislature is in session, is theoretically to reimburse members for the cost of establishing a second home in Sacramento — this despite the fact that many legislators have their first home in Sacramento and maintain only a nominal (and sometimes sublet) residence in their districts. The per diem rate, last increased in 1971, is set by the State Board of Control.

And the amount is untaxed, although the Internal Revenue Service is taking another look at its untaxed status. The legislators are getting in expenses alone what many people would be happy to have as a salary.

So when Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy says, as he did last week, that there is "very substantial support" for increasing the per diem, first concede his analysis is probably accurate and second wonder what he and his colleagues are up to.

A vote on a legislative pay raise will be up in the Assembly sometime this week, and next to a weekly per diem increase of $98, which is one figure bandied about, the weekly pay increase to be voted on, about $40, doesn't look immense.

But it is just such items as per diem increases that arouse opposition to the more justified pay increases, so that the per diem suggestion is not so much a decoy (if that were its intended purpose) as a red flag. A good many legislators seem not to have realized this. — Riverside Daily Enterprise.

Integrity in government

Time is running out on congressional working days for 1975 and still Congress has failed to deal with the energy crisis and governmental accountability.

John Gardner, director of Common Cause, and many concerned citizens have been insisting that Congress move us at least a few steps beyond the quicksands of special interest manipulation.

HR 15 regarding lobby disclosure and HR 3249 regarding financial disclosure deal effectively with these issues, but they have been bottled up in the House Judiciary Committee since last March.

Finally, Rep. Flowers, chairman of the committee, has set a date, Sept. 11, to begin hearings. However, unless citizens and media insist that priority consideration is given these bills and they go to the House floor by Thanksgiving, there will be little chance for action this year.

The process these bills would establish would substantially improve the climate for integrity in government. With less chance for corruption, Congress just might be able to devote itself to finding real solutions to our nation's problem unfettered by special interests pulling them first one way and then another. We need to urge our representatives to co-sponsor these bills and press for prompt action.

Hit man's lament

WASHINGTON — Once you become a trigger man for the Mafia, it's dangerous to change your ways.

This has been the experience of John Patrick Tully, an admitted "hit" man for the murderous Campisi Family of the New Jersey underworld.

The repentant Tully became a witness for the state. Now he is locked in solitary confinement for his own protection. There has already been an attempt upon his life.

Meanwhile, the men he helped put behind bars got off with lighter sentences than he did. And another government informer, whose testimony was less crucial, has been provided a new identity and turned loose to seek a new life.

We were caught up in the Tully case a year ago. He called us and asked us to help arrange his peaceful surrender. He read to us from his wanted poster and told of his flight to Venezuela in 1971 to avoid a multiple mob murder charge.

The FBI reached Tully's hideout a couple hours ahead of our associate, Jack Cloherty. Since Tully has been in custody, we have kept in continuing contact with him.

We encouraged him to cooperate with the prosecutors. Within a week after his decision to testify, all nine of the Campisi mobsters pleaded guilty in return for reduced sentences.

The cooperative Tully was promised a sentence lighter than those given to the mobsters he helped to convict. Yet he was sentenced to 15 years, while two of the Campisis got off with three-year terms.

Another informant, Ira Pecznick, a three-time killer, walked away from the courthouse a free man. Pecznick was the first to sing for the state. But it was Tully who gave the charges credibility and, therefore, is credited with breaking the case.

Pecznick is described by federal prosecutors as "a dangerous psychotic." Yet he is out on the street, complete with a new identity arranged by the Justice Department, in return for his testimony.

In contrast, Tully has been described by federal probation officials as "a new man" who has undergone "a complete metamorphosis."

We have held wide-ranging discussions with Tully during the past year, and we have noticed a dramatic change in him. In his first call, he was a hard-bitten tough. But slowly, he began to change.

Now he speaks convincingly of serving his time and starting a new life. This former gunman, once regarded as the most brutal of the Campisi mob, wept openly when a federal judge gave him a sentence that allows for immediate parole.

The judge acted upon the report of parole officials. But it won't help Tully unless his state sentence is reduced.

Meanwhile, the only safe place for him is in solitary. He is marked as a "stool pigeon," and the mob is out to get him.

There is no way to wipe out Tully's past. He murdered for hire. For this, he owes a debt to society. But in light of the treatment of Pecznick and the Campisis, the state is demanding a curiously high price from John Patrick Tully.

CANCER CONTROVERSY: The Chicago chemical company, Velsicol, is conducting an undercover campaign to discredit Environmental Protection Agency chief Russell Train. His offense: he banned two of the firm's pesticides, heptachlor and chlordane, as cancer agents. The company insists its pesticides don't cause cancer. Meanwhile, letters have gone out from Velsicol to 120,000 corn farmers urging them to deluge Congress with letters and telegrams attacking Train.

KIDNAP PLOT: Supporters of the Greek junta scoffed at our story last April that the military dictatorship plotted to kidnap a prominent Greek exile, Elias Demetracopolous, and return him to Greece to be killed. We now have a copy of a confidential government memo, dated Oct. 24, 1973, describing how Greek information official Dimetrios Petrounakos was supposed to "undertake a special mission of extermination of the reactionary, Elias Demetracopoulos, active in the USA." According to another startling memo, the junta expected "the cooperation of the various agencies of the U.S. government" to help kidnap the exile.

Our Man in Washington

The open road still beckons

By TERRY M. WADE
PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The millions of motorists who traveled the nation's highways during the Labor Day Weekend provided ample proof America has no intention of putting the old jalopy on blocks.

Even while conservationists and many congressmen plot ways of keeping the family car at home, in the garage, the American public daily answers with a collective flip of their ignition switches.

Their answer, despite rising fuel costs and slower speed limits, is unquestionably clear — they're going to keep on driving as long as there is gas at the pumps.

No one is happy with the higher fuel prices and there are not too many motorists who like the 55 mile per hour national speed limit, but they continue to fill the highways at every opportunity.

This apparently calloused attitude toward the nation's every growing energy problem could be baffling if a basic precept of this nation is forgotten.

Americans have grown so accustomed to freedom, not philosophical, but real freedom of movement, they are reluctant to give it up.

Maybe, just maybe, 100 million drivers can't be wrong.

The automobile is the most visible energy consumer and air polluter around. Consequently it is only natural it should get the brunt of conservation-crazed environmentalists' attention.

While they are probably right when they point out the automobile is the most wasteful fuel consumer in the country, perhaps they are wrong when they advocate an end to the auto.

Wouldn't it be a better idea to convert our factories and homes to some alternative source of energy leaving the only fuel that can operate cars for that purpose?

After all coal is the most plentiful energy source in this country and most factories could run just as well on coal as they have been running on oil and gas.

Coal can be used to generate electricity. Electricity can both heat and cool our homes.

There really is no sense debating the issue. If an urban American will put up with the traffic jam and parking costs prevalent in our cities today, higher fuel prices and prohibitive laws aren't going to keep cars off the roads.

It's time Congress and the rest of the nation gets down to the serious business of making more economical cars, but at the same time developing alternate energy sources for our industry and homes.

The American motorists will never give up that silent internal cry each morning "start your engines."

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Do you want to know what's wrong with today's senior citizens besides arthritis, bifocals and hearing impairments? Well, after interviewing a reasonable cross section of the Under Thirty crowd I have unearthed some rather interesting answers to that question.

Since most senior citizen couples insist on getting married before living together, they are squares.

Because older men are inclined to treat women with a little courtesy and respect, they're domineering, chauvinistic males.

Since most older folks aren't inclined to grease the political hand that's feeding them, they don't know their way around.

Older folks would rather walk five blocks instead of driving their cars, which proves they're penny pinchers.

They usually pay the asking price, which shows they don't have any connections.

And when it comes to music appreciation they're so dumb they even like Lawrence Welk.

After all, as most of the young folks I interviewed pointed out, there's no fool like an old fool. — And with this last accusation I heartily agree. We oldsters are certainly fools to let the youngsters get away with that sort of bad mouthing.

Without reform it's pie in sky

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There is growing evidence U.S. economic aid is largely wasted in those underdeveloped countries where farmers don't own their own land.

Yet, strangely, it is precisely for such countries that the bulk of individual U.S. aid is currently earmarked — lands like India, Pakistan and Bangladesh.

Moreover, there is no evidence that pumping multimillions in assistance to such nations encourages effective change. Unlike trends in the U.S., Japan, Taiwan and South Korea, the rich get richer and the poor poorer, and infant mortality remains at alarmingly high rates.

Our aid to countries lacking land reform seems to fail, even when we directly and indirectly pump in millions for dams, roads, electricity, currency support, cooperatives and for agricultural improvements — where land reform is missing.

Some of the countries with the worst showing, in fact, are those in which, with fanfare, we introduced major new strains of rice–as a part of the green revolution. The escalation in oil prices, blamed by many, applied to most underdeveloped countries and therefore does not explain away the startling contrasts between those which made major strides and those which did not.

Listen to Dr. Roy Prosterman, of the University of Washington, who, with colleagues, has recently completed a comparative study of land reform, infant mortality and other factors which, statistically at least, correlate with increasing agricultural productivity and self-sufficiency in underdeveloped countries:

" . . . technology, without motivation, is not enough, and the tenant farmers and landless laborers of countries like India and the Philippines have shown — in every single country, every one — that they will not make the vital on-farm improvements, such as new drainage and water systems and land levelling, that are crucial to producing a good first crop and absolutely prerequisite to producing any second or third annual crop. Non-owners will not make these or other essential agricultural improvements . . ."

According to Prosterman's data, the three nations in East Asia which have done best in increasing rice production in the past quarter century — Japan, South Korea and Taiwan — ended their landlord systems before 1953.

By contrast, increases in rice output per acre in India, Pakistan and the Philippines, where there has been little or no progress in land reform — have been a third to a fourth as great.

The wheat story is the same. Mexico, which redistributed land effectively years back, more than tripled output per acre between 1951 and 1974. Pakistan and India, despite large amounts of agricultural aid and technical assistance, did only a fourth as well.

In passing, Prosterman notes that collectivized rice farming in North Vietnam has done barely better than the landlord system of India or the Philippines in productivity increases. And China has been outpaced by Japan, South Korea and Taiwan in improved rice yields. Mexico has far outpaced the collectivized Chinese wheat farms.

Interestingly, the decline in infant mortality is most significant in those lands where the farmer owns his land or, according to local custom, has the equivalent of ownership.

In Mexico, infant mortality was reduced from 105 per thousand the first year of life, to 61. In Taiwan, the reduction was from 71 deaths per thousand to 18, in Japan from 67 to 12, in Barbados from 152 to 31, in Jamaica, from 90 to 31, in Trinidad and Tobago from 71 to 18.

The rate in India was 139 per 1,000 in 1951-61. It was unchanged in 1972-73.

Telephone company lax, customer says

The telephone company should be able to supply information to those who dial for it at least as good as that to be found in the local directories.

My recent experience is that this is not so and that the personnel at the supervisory level strongly deny the customer's right to this service.

First I sought the number of the only hospital in the Big Bear area, where I had been given a tetanus shot following an accident last April. The shot had caused a severe reaction and I needed to know the specific kind of shot given.

I had forgotten the hospital's name. Two persons who answered my 555-1212 call conscientiously combed lists available to them to find a hospital number. They also looked in their yellow pages list. There was no number under "Big Bear Hospital."

It was suggested that I call the Big Bear Chamber of Commerce to obtain the number I sought.

The Chamber of Commerce official who answered my call agreed that it was a bad business for such an important number to be so difficult to find but questioned whether it was the fault of her community.

She said the telephone information service so often referred calls to the Big Bear Chamber of Commerce that she wondered whether her office wasn't doing part of the phone company's business (for nothing).

After giving me the hospital's name, Bear Valley Community Hospital, and number, she checked her local directory.

There WAS a listing for "Big Bear Hospital" in the white pages and it keyed the reader to the "Bear Valley" name.

When I called back to complain to the supervisor, she tried to interrupt me before I gave her my full story. She said it was not reasonable to expect the phone company to keep such information as the "Big Bear Hospital" key, even though it was to be found in the local phone directory. — L. M., Claremont.

You thought your problem was with General Telephone but that company told us çentralized directory assistance for the entire 714 area is handled by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

After we contacted Pacific, you received an apology from Miriam Matthews, district staff manager of operator services.

She said the company's directory assistance bureaus try to provide customers with telephone numbers requested if at all possible based on details supplied by the customer and records available to the operator.

In your case, she said, the number should have been found.

Miss Matthews also apologized for the rudeness you encountered in your subsequent contact with a directory assistance supervisor.

"The behavior you described is not consistent with our standards and, fortunately, does not reflect the conscientious efforts of most of our employes," she said in the letter addressed to you.

Thank you for your help in clearing my account with World of Beauty Club.

The refund of $1 I received has been donated to fight muscular dystrophy. — Mrs. B. M., Walnut.

Your principal problem was getting your account straightened out to avoid having it turned over to a collection agency.

You received the $1 refund in the process and chose a good way to use it.

I accepted an offer of Sports Illustrated for a three-year subscription for $24, payable in three installments.

As you can see by the enclosed canceled checks, I made these payments.

The magazines have stopped coming although I have written to the company three times.

Can you help me get a refund? — R. L., Pomona.

E. Shane of Sports Illustrated said the difficulty was a mistake in the zip code. This resulted in suspension of mailing after copies were returned as undeliverable.

He sent you a refund of $14.76 representing the copies still owed you.

Shane suggested you send the check back in return for extension of the expiration date. You said thanks but you would keep the money.

For Thursday, Sept. 11, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Though you may not be aware of it, you have a way of phrasing things today to inspire listeners. You might forget what you said. They won't.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have the ability today to turn a dormant situation into something worthwhile for yourself and another who shares this interest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The results of today's efforts will be beneficial for you, because you're willing to cooperate and be helpful.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll have a strong desire today to do something special for one you love. You'll do it secretly, without seeking credit.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take a little more time to primp today if you're going to appear before new people. All eyes will be focused on you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your keen insights will be put to a profitable use today. Let your hunches guide you in commercial affairs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're able to use words in a masterly fashion today. Put your thoughts on paper — the results may surprise even you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Material things come your way today without too much effort. If you do feel energetic, it's a good time to hunt for bargains.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're far more assertive today than you've been the past few days. If you're set on accomplishing something, you'll not be deterred.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Opportunity presents itself today to take some positive steps toward a secret ambition of yours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're very convincing today in swaying others. You should speak out. Your ideas are better than theirs.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Important ventures you're involved in have an excellent chance of succeeding in the next few days. Dare to think big

Your Birthday, Sept. 11, 1975

The coming year will be very rewarding, provided you always act in accordance with your highest ideals. The path may be narrow, but it's also profitable.

Ann Landers

More on 'gruesome grabbers'

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from the gal whose sisters, aunts and cousins descended on her mother's house like a pack of vultures and picked the place clean hit very close to home. The writer signed herself "Can't Stand Grabbers." Well—I hope your advice "MAKE A WILL" was heeded by all those nice people out there who just assume their belongings will go to the people they want to have them.

When my husband's darling mother died, his sister arrived first. She was grief-stricken. For about 15 minutes. Then she pulled herself together and went through the house like a streak of lightning. When I walked into the bedroom to use the phone I saw drawers open and boxes strewn everywhere. The place looked as if it had been burglarized. I couldn't believe it.

When "sis" left she had all the jewelry, silver and every piece of art worth owning. She also had her name taped on the best pieces of furniture. "I'll send you some of Mother's nice things," Sis promised as she left.

After the funeral, I received a dozen plastic hangers, a jar of cotton balls, some old clothes and a moth-eaten fur piece.

My husband adored his mother and so did our children. They don't have one thing worth keeping as a memento. Of course the poor darling never wrote a will — and she'd turn over in her grave if she knew what has happened. — Heartsick In Boston

Dear Heartsick: Your letter says it far better than I could — but I'll make another attempt. MAKE A WILL. It's the only way to be sure your money and personal belongings will go to those you want to have them. Otherwise "The Grabbers" will move in fast.

Also, the attorney in charge of the estate should make certain nothing is removed from the house of the deceased until the will has been read.

Dear Ann Landers: I can't be alone in my misery. Please help us all.

My mother-in-law, for the third time this year, is coming to visit for two weeks. I could put up with her if she'd just be a guest. But the minute she arrives she begins to clean the house, rearrange the furniture and make suggestions on how to improve the looks of the place. ("Your kitchen needs new curtains. The bathrooms could use a coat of paint," etc.) She starts every sentence with, "Why don't you?"

Now she has started to interfere with the way I feed and dress our child. "He's not getting enough roughage. He needs vitamins. His room is too hot. His play clothes are tacky . . ."

I find myself getting nervous before each visit. By the time she leaves, I'm on tranquilizers and my husband and I aren't speaking. He says, "She's just trying to help." Get the picture? — Sign Me Berserk

Dear B.: One thing is certain — you will never change your mother-in-law, but you can change a few other things.

First: the frequency of her visits. Ask your doctor to inform your husband that his mother's visits are too taxing and should be cut to twice a year.

Second: when your M.I.L. makes suggestions, smile and say, "You're probably right. I'll think about it . . ." Then develop amnesia.

Third: if she wants to clean your house and rearrange the furniture — let her. Maybe she'll get a hernia.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism — Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Closing the generation gap

As if I don't have enough on my mind, my daughter told me the other day my ozone was in trouble.

As a college graduate, I knew right away either (a) the antifreeze had leaked out of my car (b) my sinus cavity was ready to crest (c) someone had flicked their Bic near all the papers stored in the basement.

But I wasn't sure. She is always laying new pharses on me and then becoming super critical because she thinks I don't keep up on what's going on in the world.

"Tell me," I said. "If your ozone was in trouble, what would you do about it?"

"My ozone IS in trouble," she said. "And I am going to do something about it. I'm not going to use anymore aerosol cans and you shouldn't either."

Of course. She was talking about aerosol cans that eventually are going to take over the world. Those little devils have been playing havoc with people for years.

"I know what you mean," I said. "The other morning I mistook a can of hair spray for the deodorant and pffft . . . right in the old . . . ozone?"

"I know," she nodded to my relief. "Do you have any idea what that little pffft meant?"

"It meant that even when I quit, my underarms went on and on and on . . . you know like you've just flown from Denver to Chicago without a plane."

She winced, "I meant a deeper implication than that, Mother. Are you aware that the House Commerce Committee is drafting a bill that will include a ban of spray cans using fluorocarbons?"

"I wouldn't have gone so far as to take it to Congress," I said.

"Mother! Surely, you've seen firsthand how the fluorocarbons in pressurized cans can harm the atmospheric layer which screens the sun's radiation."

"Of course," I nodded. "Not to mention what happens when you mistakenly spray tub and tile cleaner on your hair. I mean, who wants hair that foams and deodorizes?"

"I can't believe it," she smiled. "Do you realize, Mother, this is the first 'meaningful conversation' we've been able to carry on in years."

I passed the bathroom and gave my under-arms a spritz with air freshener. These may just be the only two ozones I'll ever get, and I plan to take care of them.

Dr. Lamb

Blood fats his problem

DEAR DR. LAMB — About five years ago I had a heart attack, so my doctor said that I should lose weight. At that time my weight was 220 pounds.

I went on a high protein, low fat diet, and my weight came down to 175 pounds. This made me very weak, and I tired easily with no pep or energy to do anything.

So, I brought my weight to 185 pounds, and I could do most anything, play golf, cut grass, work on my car, etc., but I had added to my eating angel food cake and some candy (chocolate). Well, my triglycerides came up to 145 and cholesterol to 220.

I am having a hard time trying to bring my triglycerides down below 100. I've changed my eating habits and eat mostly chicken breast, chop suey, very little boiled potato, also at least two slices of Italian bread with Egg Beaters for breakfast. Also all the orange and grapefruit juice is half juice half water.

Can you help me with a book on what to eat to bring down the triglycerides? What substitute can I have for breakfast which is the toughest meal to prepare? I cannot eat only Egg Beaters every day!

Can you tell me how many grams of carbohydrates it takes to get into the blood? Is the carbohydrate burnt up by body energy physically? Is there any cereal recommendation that I could substitute for breakfast?

DEAR READER — Yours is a common problem. The knowledge that one should be on a low-fat, low-calorie diet is widespread, but the specifics of how to do it are not well communicated to the public.

That is exactly why I prepared a fairly large book on this subject. You should be able to get it at your library rather than buy it, but if you want your own copy get your bookstore to order it. It's called, "What You Need To Know About Food & Cooking for Health," (Viking).

You are doing pretty well, and your cholesterol level is okay. It would be better if you can lower your triglycerides, the fats in your blood. To do that you need to lose weight. Rapid loss of weight leads to fatigue and the symptoms you describe. Also overly enthusiastic restriction of carbohydrates will cause this in some people. I note you felt better after adding sweets.

I'd like to see a greater portion of your diet from vegetables, particularly the leafy ones in salads, fresh fruits and cereal products. Use the whole grain cereals, such as bran, shredded wheat products and whole oats. These will give you needed bulk and are low in calories for the volume you would eat. Breakfast is discussed in detail in my book; recipes and calorie contents of foods.

Breakfast is a good place to get your cereal to start the day off right. You could use fish for breakfast if you want more protein and a low-fat breakfast.

I'd also like to suggest that you start an exercise program. Start by walking a little every day and gradually increase your walking until you can and do walk three miles a day. There are good studies that show that exercise will lower triglyceride levels. Once you are walking regularly an hour a day you can check your status with your doctor to see if you can do anything more vigorous or not.

The ostrich is supposed to stick its head in the sand on the theory that no one will be able to see it. North's bidding of today's hand was along the same lines. He couldn't raise from two to three diamonds, since that call would encourage his opponents to bid on to game.

Maybe it would, but our experience is that when East opens the bidding and his partner gives him a raise, he is going to game with any sort of excuse.

Anyway, when East did bid game our ostrich-like North pulled his head out of the sand and bid five diamonds.

Perfect defense would have set South three tricks, but after the defenders failed to shift to clubs on time, South was able to set up dummy's jack of hearts for a club discard.

"Nice play, partner," said North. "Down 300 isn't bad."

"Like tilting at windmills," replied South. "If you had bid three diamonds right away you wouldn't have been impelled to bid five. Neither would I and we would have set four spades one trick to show a profit of 100 points instead of a loss of 300."

A reader from Rhode Island wants to know the correct standard American opening bid with:

♠ K 10 9 ♥ J 10 5 4 ♦ K 3 ♣ A K J 9

The correct opening bid is one notrump in spite of the fact that you only have 15 high-card points. You should count the two 10s and two nines as a 16th point.

Late watchers use the tonic

Those men who continue to watch television after 10:30 p.m. use a lot more hair tonic than do the fellows who go to bed early. So reports a marketing surveytaker who says he can't explain this phenomenon. Why can't he? It's the older citizen who's most likely to hit the hay early. And the elder the citizen, the less hair he's likely to have. You don't need the tonic, if you don't have the hair, what?

ESCAPE

Why should a would-be escapee from a penitentiary bother to dig a tunnel under the wall? All he has to do is get a friend to telephone the warden, claiming to be a representative of the governor and saying that said prisoner has been pardoned. Certainly the warden will simply unlock the gate and let the convict out. That's what happened at the Sante Prison in Paris in 1927. The French political prisoner Leon Daudet just walked away.

Buy own town? —Amboy for sale

DANA POINT (AP)—For only $50,000 down and $2,000 a month you can be mayor of Amboy, Calif., and police chief, and dog catcher — anybody you want.

You'll own the town.

One consideration, however: Lovely little Amboy is situated smack dab in the middle of the Mojave Desert.

But it does have its attributes, says its sales agent, Anchorage Investments of Dana Point, which is trying to unload the town for owner Buster Burris.

There is plenty of fresh air and sunshine for one thing, no city taxes for another. A rail line brings water-laden trains through town, and there's gold mining nearby.

The asking price includes a population of 20 (not guaranteed), a post office, a 30-room motel, private airport, gas station and a cafe featuring homebaked pies.

The town is 40 miles north of Twentynine Palms on what used to be famed Route 66. Just two miles away is Amboy Crater, site of a volcano that erupted 350,000 years ago.

Minority doctor program unveiled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Southern Christian Leadership Conference has announced a program to back members of minority groups who want to become doctors if they pledge to spend their first five years practicing in low income areas.

The Medical Assistance Program was announced Monday at Martin Luther King Hospital in Watts. Dr. Julius W. Hill, former president of the National Medical Association, a black organization, will head the program for the SCLC.

Hill said that while black persons make up 11 per cent of the nation's population, they account for less than 2 per cent of its doctors. Of the 6,000 black doctors, he added, 2,000 are in teaching.

"The need for black doctors is acute," Hill said. "Their caseloads are heavy. The fatality rate of black doctors is high because of the pressure and overwork they face daily."

Hill said the Nixon Administration had launched a project five years ago to increase the number of black persons enrolled in medical schools.

At the time the half-million dollar project was started, black persons made up 2.5 per cent of the enrollment in the nation's medical schools. The figure now stands at 11.9 per cent, Hill added.

The Rev. H.H. Brookins, head of the SCLC on the West Coast, said his organization would seek gifted students in junior and senior high schools and try to channel them into the medical profession.

In return for scholarships, they would pledge to work five years "in minority communities where the need is greatest," he said.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, who also attended the news conference along with Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., said his parents had wanted him to become a doctor but he had neither the motivation nor the money.

"Now the money is there and so is the motivation for young people to aspire and become members of the medical community," Bradley said.

A medical advisory committee will supervise operation of the program, which will seek $4 million in initial funding, Hill said.

Goldwater Jr. tops GOP Senate choices

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., is by far the leading choice of his party's voters for next year's GOP nomination to the U.S. Senate seat now held by John Tunney, the California Poll reported today.

And Tunney holds a commanding, though slightly diminishing, lead over ex-student radical Tom Hayden — his only declared opponent for the Democratic primary.

Since Houston Flournoy withdrew as a possible candidate, Goldwater has widened his lead over four other Republicans considered probable opponents, pollster Mervin D. Field said.

A poll conducted last month showed Goldwater preferred by 45 per cent of the state's Republicans; former Lt. Gov. Robert Finch by 18 per cent; retired San Francisco State College President S.I. Hayakawa by 16 per cent, and Rep. Alphonso Bell Jr. by 6 per cent.

Should Goldwater, who is not yet an announced candidate, decide against running, 35 per cent of those polled said they would prefer Finch and 26 per cent picked Hayakawa.

Tunney is preferred by 55 per cent of California's Democrats, the poll showed, while only 16 per cent favor Hayden and 29 per cent are undecided. In May, 65 per cent picked Tunney and 13 per cent chose Hayden.

U.S. energy plan viewed too narrow

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A proposed national plan for energy research has been criticized for paying too little attention to promoting alternative forms of energy and neglecting conservation.

The testimony came Monday during the first day of a two-day hearing by the federal Council of Environmental Quality, which is gathering input on the proposed $15.3 billion research program announced by the Energy Research and Development Administration earlier this year.

The plan will determine to an extent how ERDA research funds will be spent in developing current and new sources of energy to ease the nation's growing energy debt.

Mark Braly, energy coordinator for the city of Los Angeles, criticized the gap between funds marked for nuclear energy development and those planned for solar and geothermal research.

"I could not characterize this level of effort as appropriate for the energy needs of this nation," he said.

"There is clearly a public mandate for a maximum effort to develop new, environmentally acceptable energy sources and technologies," he said.

Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes also contested ERDA claims that solar energy research had been given the highest priority in the proposed budget.

"In my opinion, the comparative amount designated for solar energy is entirely too little," Hayes said. "The stated high-priority commitment ought to have been backed up by a greater commitment with funds to this area of research."

Pomona slashes aid to community agencies

Pomona City Council won't support community-based agencies this year with federal revenue sharing funds.

The council declined the support by a 3-2 vote at Monday's City Council meeting based on the recommendation of City Administrator Jerrold Gonce.

In the past two years, the council has allocated $140,000 and $100,000 to community agencies to provide social services to poor people in the community.

Gonce, however, described the budget situation for next year as "horrendous" and said that some city employes might even have to be cut in order to balance the 1976-77 budget.

He urged the council to hold all possible funds in reserve to help ease the deficit, including the over $50,000 of unallocated revenue sharing funds.

Ken Stewart, director of the South Hills Neighborhood Service Center, appealed to the council to continue funding the local agencies. Others speaking in support of the agencies were Jess Henderson, Sandy Hester, and Henry Ella Smith.

They said there was a great need for the type of services offered by the community based agencies, and that the city would suffer an increase in juvenile and related problems if the funding were ceased.

Councilman Charles Bader, however, cited the city's budget problem as the overriding priority.

"I see no way we can continue as we have in the past. We're just running out of money," he said.

He was joined by council member Georgia Grove and Mayor Ray Lepire in the majority vote not to allocate any funds this year.

In other business at the meeting, the council adopted a street lighting master plan that outlines the general goals of the city over the next five years in providing street lights throughout the community.

The plan includes recommended lighting levels for residential, commercial and industrial areas, along with possible financing methods.

Director of Public Works Ron Kranzer estimated that full lighting of the city would cost about $6 million.

Since the city is in no position to allocate funds in that amount, the plan suggests that residents in unlit areas be encouraged to form assessment districts to pay the cost of lights, aided by the city through federal grant funds.

The council also approved a $13,000 loan to the city's Bicentennial Committee for the publication of a "History of Pomona." It is expected that about 2,000 copies of the 200-page book will be printed, and will be available to the public by December.

The loan will be repaid from the proceeds of the book, which will sell for $10 in hardback and $5 paperback. Day

Demoted Pomona officer presses court for hearing

A disgruntled Pomona policeman is following the legal course which recently won a fellow officer a hearing before the city's Merit System Commission.

The officer, Gordon Zbinden, is seeking a writ of mandate in Los Angeles Superior Court which would give that court jurisdiction in his grievance with the city. A hearing on the request is scheduled in Los Angeles Oct. 16.

Zbinden, a veteran of 12 years on the Pomona Police Department wants the court to force the city commission to hear his side of the case in which he was reprimanded, demoted and transferred within the department last year.

Police Lt. Charles H. Milliken recently used the same civil suit method to force a commission hearing on his three-day suspension and reprimand which occurred in 1974. The hearing resulted in victory for Milliken.

Zbinden, like Milliken, claims that because of Police Department procedure in which grievances must follow the chain of command, time ran out for his appeal before the commission and it was denied.

During the latter part of last year, Zbinden, then a detective in the narcotics detail, was reprimanded, demoted to patrolman and transferred to the patrol division. The action was the result of an incident in which Zbinden was accused of keeping three suspected heroin dealers in jail over the 48-hour period allowed without a complaint being filed against them.

Zbinden said he protested the action, saying the suspects were held with the knowledge of the district attorney's office while the investigation continued. He filed a grievance and was promptly fired, Zbinden said, but was rehired less than a month later after he filed a second grievance. But, instead of being rehired as a detective, Zbinden said, he was rehired as a patrolman step 4 at a reduction of $280 a month in pay.

Zbinden, who now is a Patrolman step 5, said he wants the commission hearing in an attempt to clear himself in the jailing incident and in an effort to recover the wages he lost.

He is represented by Stephen H. Silver of Los Angeles, the attorney who also represented Milliken. Silver of Los Angeles, the attorney who also represented Milliken. Silver is retained by the Pomona Police Officers' Association and represented that group in the recent pay dispute with the city.

Amateur magicians team up for county fair show

An unusual partnership of two amateur magicians will perform for the first time at the Los Angeles County Fair which opens Friday.

The partners are Robbie Maas, former Pomona restaurateur, and John Swink, a senior electrical-mechanical engineer at Aerojet.

They will demonstrate and offer for sale their innovation, Computa-Card, a new approach to the hidden card trick.

Their booth will be located on the promenade adjacent to the Monorail loading platform.

The booth will feature also "Squirmle," the nationally advertised "Fuzzy-Wuzzy" that creeps out of water tumblers and runs up and down your arms, seemingly all on its own.

"Computa-Card," the duo's own idea, will allow a spectator to make a selection from an ordinary deck of playing cards, then locate and spell out the selected card on two computer cards.

Maas, former owner of Robbie's dinner house on the Pomona Mall, was an amateur magician in his youth. Swing is currently one of the best amateur magicians in the Southland.

Seabee unit to reunite

A reunion is planned for the 77th Construction Batallion at the Casa Sirena Motel in Oxnard Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Jay Aaron, a local spokesman for the Seabee unit, said most of the 150 former members who live in the valley plan to attend.

West End crimes show 15% increase

A 15.1 per cent increase in serious felony crimes has been reported in 350 square mile area patrolled by the San Bernardino County West End Sheriff's substation deputies during the past fiscal year.

The rapid rise in felony crimes in the West End county area may be attributable to the vast influx of new residents into the area, a high unemployment rate, and a high recidivistic rate by prior offenders, according to staff officers working on the crime reports.

The report showed that the number of serious crimes, including crimes against persons, narcotics violations, residential and commercial burglaries, grand theft, auto theft, check offenses, sex offenses and others rose from 1,494 in fiscal year 1973-74 to 1,720 in fiscal year 1974-75.

Residential burglaries showed the greatest increase in the West End area with 108 more reported during the last year than the year before. The only drop in serious crime in the area was in the number of thefts reported.

The West End substation, under the command of Capt. Edward Noon, has a total of 49 sworn deputies who worked a total of 12,096 overtime hours to meet the crime increase.

West End substation officers pointed out that through the efforts of the deputies the 15.1 per cent crime increase in West End was below the national average of 18 per cent reported by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Four assigned to O-M school roles

Four educational administrators, two from the Ontario-Montclair School District, one from Duarte and one from La Verne College, have taken over posts with the Ontario-Montclair district.

Robert Oyler, formerly coordinator of pupil personnel services in the Duarte Unified School District, was named director of pupil personnel services. Robert Bell, formerly southeast area director, was promoted to assistant superintendent of instruction. Richard G. Dyer, vice principal of Serrano Junior High School in Montclair, was promoted to principal, and Tom Cross, La Verne College instructor, was appointed principal of Imperial Junior High School in Ontario.

Oyler, father of three, holds a B.A. and M.A. in psychology from Occidental College and a doctorate in educational psychology from USC. He had previously taught at the USC graduate school and Cal State Los Angeles. He lives in Upland.

Bell, a resident of Ontario, has a certificate in elementary education and holds a master's degree and doctorate from USC.

Dyer received his bachelor's degree from La Verne College and his master's degree from Cal State Los Angeles. He did post-graduate work at Pepperdine College and UC Riverside. He is a resident of Upland and the father of two.

Cross, father of two children, holds a bachelor's degree from Seton Hall College, Pennsylvania, and his master's from Hofstra College, N.Y. The 6-foot-9 educator formerly played semi-professional basketball in the Eastern League.

Blind dancers to perform at fair

One of California's most colorful and unusual performing groups — Brailler Institute's Exhibition Square Dancers — all of whom are legally blind, will appear on the Plaza of States stage at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona Saturday at 11 a.m.

The specially-trained group is led by Marlin Hull, popular Southland square-dance caller, who volunteered his time and talent to provide a square dance class for Braille Institute's varied program of training, education and special services.

Hall has trained his legally-blind dancers to perform some of the most complex square dance formations — quadrilles, for instance, which are difficult for sighted dancers.

The annual agreement with Pomona Chamber of Commerce was approved by the council. The chamber will receive $35,000 to promote industrial and commercial growth in the city.

The council also approved an increase of $1 in dog license penalty and animal boarding fees as requested by the Humane Society of Pomona Valley.

The council adopted a compromise resolution lifting the city's total ban on the outdoor display of merchandise. The compromise was sought by used furniture dealers who claimed the ban would put them out of business.

The council approved the resolution recommended by the city Planning Commission, which will allow the outdoor display of three items.

The council also awarded a $19,728 contract to the Mr. Bracey Construction Co. of Ontario for the construction of handicapped rampways at the City Hall-Council Chambers and Pomona Public Library.

Chino Hospital gains 2-year accreditation

Chino General Hospital has been accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH), according to administrator Dean Garrison.

The accreditation, which covers from May 22, 1975 to May 22, 1977, is the result of an on-site survey made by JCAH field representatives.

The action indicates the hospital has chosen to operate according to JCAH standards, and that the facility has met those standards.

Surveys are voluntary. It is not legally necessary for a hospital to be accredited. Health care facilities have sought accreditation because it represents a "benchmark of quality" higher than governmental licensure alone, officials say.

The standards set forth optimal achievable goals of excellence against which a facility can measure itself and be measured by the JCAH survey.

Reds next for Dodgers

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Having disposed of the Giants twice, the Dodgers welcome the champion Cincinnati Reds for two games beginning tonight.

Burt Hooton (15-9) goes after his 10th straight win tonight against Pat Darcy (9-5). Rick Rhoden (1-2) and Jack Billingham (15-7) will pitch Thursday.

The Dodgers and Reds are 8-8 against each other for the season. But at Dodger Stadium, the hometowners have won five of seven.

The Dodgers' 8-3 win over San Francisco Tuesday gave the Angelenos the season series, 10 games to eight and a 6½ game lead over the Giants. But, not surprisingly, the 14,344 turnout was the smallest of the season for the second night in a row. But it was still the largest in the majors.

You have to go back to April 6, of last year to find a smaller turnout. In an afternoon game with the Padres, the attendance was only 14,284.

Charlie Hough (2-6) pitched excellent 2 2/3 innings of relief to get credit for the victory over the Giants.

Relieving starter Doug Rau with two runs in, nobody out and runners at second and third in the seventh inning, Hough got Gary Thomasson and Gary Mathews on fouls and struck out Willie Montanez on knucklers.

Switching to fastballs in the eight and ninth, Hough gave up only a harmless single.

"I've been throwing more and more fastballs," Hough explained, "and, hopefully, it makes the knuckleball that much more effective."

"My knuckler has been better this year than it's ever been. But it's also been more erratic."

Hough admitted a "super catch" by Steve Garvey for the second out was the big play of the inning. Mathews lifted a foul down the right field line angling towards the stands. Garvey, running at full speed, stabbed it with one hand just before it hit the ground.

The Dodgers wasted no time tying the game in their half of the seventh. They jumped on Jim Barr (11-13) for three runs. Willie Crawford singled. Garvey smashed a triple to right centerfield and Ron Cey walloped his 23rd home run.

The runs batted in were the 87th and 88th for Cey and the 81st for Garvey.

Barr came back to get Henry Cruz on a fly and fan Steve Yeager and Bill Russell. But in the eighth, he couldn't get anybody out by Hough.

Davey Lopes singled and stole his 67th base. Lee Lacy singled for one run. That was all for Barr. His successors, Gary Lavelle and Charlie Williams gave up two walks and a two-run double by Ken McMullen and a two-run triple by Yeager.

Barr had blanked the Dodgers on two singles through the first six innings. The Giants scored a single run off Rau on two hits and a walk in the fourth. But that was all the scoring until the seventh.

DODGER DATA — Lopes now has scored 92 runs.

Cey's 23 homers ties him for the club record for third baseman, with Dick Allen. Allen, playing left field and first base in addition to third, hit 23 in 1971.

Yeager made three bad throws in the game and was saved an error through generous scoring in the Giants' seventh. After Bob Sadek opened with a single, Barr bunted. Yeager fielded the ball and had a play at second. But his throw went over Russell's head and quick fielding kept the runners from taking an extra base. It was scored a sacrifice and fielder's choice.

Lacy has hit in 11 of his last 12 games, 17-for-48 and has raised his average to .314 in 235 at bats.

Barr, who made headlines in San Francisco last week by blasting manager West Westrum in the newspapers and on radio on successive days, apparently has patched things up. Westrum now says Barr, "is like a son to me."

Trojans go to a running QB

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California opens the football season against Duke Friday night with an extra running back in the backfield—the quarterback.

Coach John McKay said Tuesday his quarterback Vince Evans is a hard-charging runner with "big legs and he's run the 40 in 4.6 seconds. He'll do more running for us than we did last year."

The Trojans were 10-1-1 last year with Pat Haden at quarterback. Haden, an excellent passer, rolled out on option passes and "made some great first downs for us when he dropped back to pass and had to scramble, but Vince will be doing more planned running."

However, Evans has worked hard on his passing this preseason and McKay said USC will throw against the Blue Devils.

"We spend a tremendous amount more time on our passing game in practice than we'll ever use in the game, but we do it for two reasons. First, it's a good conditioner for the players. They have to run 40 yards on every pass we throw.

"Second, there will be times when we're behind and we'll have to throw.

"You must throw the football when you want to, not when they want you to throw it, but sometimes you're forced to."

McKay said a lot of his inexperienced players would be ready for Duke and even though he felt they were talented, "the inexperience of being in the pressure cooker will be tough." He said he hoped to be able to get a lead "so the youngsters can get in there.

"You don't put them in when the other team is on your 10-yard line," he said. "You put them in when they're on their own 20. You use the freshmen to spell the regulars when you have the advantage."

In Duke, McKay said he'll be facing a team that uses a slot-I formation with a split end— "basically a two-running-back offense." McKay said he had heard that senior split end Troy Slade was "a definite pro rpsopect."

Slade is a 6-foot-2, 180-pounder who caught 31 passes last year for 489 yards and returned 39 punts for 440 yards.

The Blue Devil quarterback is prelaw student Hal Spears, a 6-1 senior who doesn't often throw long but throws accurately.

"They feel they have their best team in 10 years and in the past few years they have beaten a few teams that were supposed to beat them just like we are.

"They beat Stanford 9-3 in 1971 and Stanford went on to win the Rose Bowl. And last year they ended the longest scoring streak in major college football by shutting out Georgia Tech 9-0." It was the first time Tech had failed to score in 108 consecutive games.

McKay said he wasn't too surprised at Missouri's 20-7 victory over Alabama on Monday night

DIGGS DIGS USC's Shelton Diggs is looking forward to the 1975 season, which opens Friday night when the Trojans host Duke. The receiver from San Bernardino was a Rose Bowl hero.

Diggs wants to lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He hadn't caught a pass all day and Shelton Diggs kept telling himself, "I gotta do something right for a change."

So when he lined up on the right and heard quarterback Pat Haden call the signals, Diggs could think of only one thing: "This is my last chance to do something right. I better do it now."

This wasn't just any ball game. It was the Rose Bowl game and it was Diggs' University of Southern California team against Ohio State. The score was 17-16 with the Buckeyes ahead. There were two minutes left and USC was lining up for a do-or-die two-point conversion attempt.

"It was supposed to be an in pattern," said the sophomore flanker. "But I started to run into the linebacker, so I made an out move." Haden rolled to the right and threw the ball.

"I was running a snake pattern and when I changed directions at the last second, I knew Pat would see me. He's got great anticipation."

Diggs cut sharply back toward the center of the field as Haden released the ball. The pass was low. Diggs said, "I knew it was going to be close."

"But, no, I didn't think about having to dive for the ball. I just reacted. I knew I had to get to it, one way or the other."

The result is history. The 6-foot-3, 195-pound Diggs cradled the ball in both arms as he hit the sod deep in the end zone, giving the Trojans two points and an 18-17 victory.

"Last year was tough for me," said
(McKay) and Anthony (Davis) were the stars of the team and I'm really a leader. I like to be a leader, but last year I couldn't.

"Not only that but I didn't get thrown to a lot. Pat and Johnny had played together for a long time and they knew each other. Pat and I never got our timing down."

Diggs, blessed with speed, quickness, strength and great hands, caught just eight passes in nine games and knew he was No. 2.

"There were times when I'd go down field and beat my man and the pass to Johnny was incomplete and I was tempted to go back in the huddle and say, 'Hey, I know I can beat that man.' But I didn't do that because I was just a sophomore.

"But this year may be different. I hope it is. I think I'm going to feel like one of the leaders. I know I'm going to have to give 100 per cent, you know, run 40 yards on every play, but now when I come back to the huddle, I can talk."

Diggs has been unlucky in his career at USC. He caught just four passes as a freshman because of a number of minor injuries and capped the season by suffering a shoulder separation in the 1974 Rose Bowl game, causing him to miss spring practice the next season. He missed three games in 1974 with a foot injury and missed several days of spring drills with a broken left finger, an injury which still limits his catching ability.

Diggs and this year's No. 1 quarterback, Vince Evans, "came out here every day during the summer to work on our timing. He'd throw 'em and I'd catch 'em for hours. We know each other pretty well, and I think our timing will be the big thing this year.

"At least I think I'll be the No. 1 target and that's important."

Diggs acknowledged that USC's famed I formation has made great use of tailbacks and has reduced the passing attack to a secondary weapon. Last year, with Haden and Coach John McKay's son making aerial connections, passing received a bit more attention.

In fact it was a 38-yard Haden-to-McKay bomb that scored the touchdown last Jan. 1, setting up Diggs' heroic catch.

"We've just got to show the coaches we can pass," said Diggs. "Vince has a great arm—he throws very hard. I think we'll be all right."

Diggs admitted he felt confused by USC his first season. Here he was, a wide receiver in a run-oriented attack. His background had been as a runner.

"I really like to run the ball," he said. "All my life I've been a tailback, so when we run the end-around, I like that."

His 12 career catches for the Trojans have gone for 289 yards, an average of 24 per catch. And he's carried the ball 17 times for 98 yards for a 5.8yard average on the flanker reverse.

"He's big, fast and a good blocker," said McKay when spring drills started. "There are no bounds to how good he can become—if he stays healthy."

McKay foresees new division

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association, hoping to better manage its major sports programs, will soon discard its three-division setup and establish a new four-division format.

That's the opinion of Southern California football coach and Athletic Director John McKay, who feels it's one way for major colleges and universities to have more control over their athletic budgets.

"I'm certain they'll set ap another division," said McKay Tuesday. "It would probably be the top 75 schools in the country."

McKay, discussing college sports financing, said he didn't feel colleges could continue to operate at present levels under the same financial system that exists today, but he doubted that the top 75 schools would leave the NCAA and form a super conference.

"We can't keep doing what we're doing now, and there are only two solutions: to bolt the NCAA and set up another organization, or to go to the university presidents and ask them is there some way you can give us the money." He said the NCAA had done a lot of good recently, especially in the area of reorganizing.

A resolution by Long Beach State President Stephen Horn to the recent NCAA special convention on economics advocated that about three-quarters of all television revenue be divided up among all NCAA schools playing football. McKay said such a plan would only be self-defeating.

"Notre Dame plays next Monday night at Boston College on national TV," saidMcKay. "Now, that probably means $300,000 to Notre Dame, but then they have to come right back the next Saturday and play at Purdue. Well, if they had to give up all that revenue, they'd tell the NCAA they can have their Monday night game—they just wouldn't play it."

He said the Monday-Saturday setup is physically very hard on the players, and were it not for the great revenue involved, any team would turn down such a schedule. But television, he said, "dictates an awful lot of schedules because of the money involved."

The new four-division setup, he theorized, would have a number of major conferences in the new top-dog division, as well as a few independents, like Notre Dame.

"San Diego State dropped out of the PCAA probably because they realize that this is coming and they want to be part of the new Division I, or whatever they call it," he said.

McKay said the present Division I would be be split and presumably the two divisions formed out of it could operate under different rules.

McKay said this wouldn't solve all of the financial woes of the major universities today, but it might help to define the areas of need.

He said he didn't know what good it would do to drop sports like golf, which require very little money to operate. And the cost of running a golf program at a very small school and at a large school are almost the same.

Board out at Coliseum

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams and the Oakland Raiders may find it tough to get on the scoreboard Thursday night because someone broke into the Coliseum press box and took a hammer to the computer equipment that runs the big board.

Charles Colbert, 19, of South Los Angeles was booked for investigaion of burglary Tuesday after police found him asleep in a press box chair amid all the clutter of smashed equipment, officers said.

Officials estimated damage at up to $1.5 million.

Besides the computer equiptment officials said teletype and videtape machines were also broken.

Jerry Nielsen, assistant manager of the Coliseum, said "there is a chance" the damage could be repaired by this weekend.

"It's our biggest weekend in terms of football," he said. "It's the only three-game weekend of the season."

After the Rams host the Raiders in a National Football League game Thursday night, Duke plays Southern California Friday night and Iowa State meets UCLA Saturday night in college football games.

Another spokesman, Glen Mon, said, "We are looking for a temporary replacement, and we hope to be able to find something satisfactory. But with the computers out, the main scoreboard can't function."

Super Bowl is old news

Vikings hope to return

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings have been pro football's best cold weather team, but they haven't been able to win the warm weather game in January.

"We hope to be good enough to get back to the Super Bowl," said Minnesota Coach Bud Grant. "Right now we can't even think about what has happened to us at the Super Bowl. Besides, there's nothing worse than old sports news."

Grant is a strong leader and his teams personify his personality — efficient, calculating, imperturbable, and normally victorious.

"You've got to have the talent to win football games," said Grant. "And we've got the players."

In the last six years, the Vikings have posted a 64-20 record with three National Football Conference titles and five divisional championships in the NFC's frigid Central Division.

"I think we have three major additions this year in the return of Bobby Bryant and John Ward and our new punter, Neil Clabo," said Grant. "But on the other hand, I don't know how we're going to make up for John Gilliam's experience, but it's not like we're going with rookies there."

The Vikings will open the season with youngsters Jim Lash and Sam McCullum at their wide receiver posts. McCullum, a ninth-round draft pick from Montana State in 1974, inherits Gilliam's post.

Lash, who is beginning his third season, caught 32 passes last year on the opposite flank from Gilliam, who left the Vikings to go to work for the nowdefunct Chicago Wind of the World Football League.

"We'll be stronger if our second-year players keep coming on," said Grant.

That group prominently includes McCullum, tight end Steve Craig, safety Randy Poltl and linebackers Fred McNeill and Matt Blair.

The 6-foot-3, 231-pound Craig is in a battle with veterans Stu Voigt and Doug Kingsriter for the regular tight end job.

McNeill has enjoyed a brilliant preseason at linebacker and on the special teams. He began the season as a backup for 33-year-old Wally Hilgenberg, who probably enjoyed his best season in 1974.

Blair played quite often as a rookie last season behind Roy Winston, who is in his 15th season with the Vikings.

Poltl appears to be the heir—apparent at free safety where Paul Krause continues in his 12th season.

As Grant continues to move new blood into the line-up, he has probably turned the one-time defensive club into more of an offensive team.

"In terms of experience and playing together, the offensive line is perhaps our most solid unit," he said. "And we've got Tarkenton at quarterback and are good in numbers at the running back position."

The 35 - year - old Tarkenton enters the 1975 season within range of nearly every career passing record in the NFL.

He has already passed for 35,846 yards and 266 touchdowns and rushed for another 3,521 yards and a remarkable 5.9 average.

"Tarkenton will probably go down as the greatest quarterback of all time," predicts Grant.

The key man in Tarkenton's offensive gimics is 207-pound running back Chuck Foreman.

In two seasons, Foreman has rushed for 1,578 yards and caught 90 passes for another 948 yards and scored 21 touchdowns.

He will be joined by veteran Dave Osborn, Oscar Reed or Ed Marinaro at fullback while Brent McClanahan, who has enjoyed an excellent preseason, will be the backup halfback.

Mick Tinglehoff, who is supposedly too old and too small, will be at center for his 14th season. The 240-pound Tinglehoff held off the training camp challenge of John Ward, who is coming back after a two year absence with a broken leg.

Ed White and Andy Maurer are set at the offensive guards with Charlie Goodrum and All-Pro Ron Yary at the tackles.

Dr. Fred Cox is back for his 13th season of kicking field goals and extra points.

The front four is the same with Doug Sutherland and everybody's All-Pro, Alan Page, at the tackles and veterans Jim Marshall and Carl Eller at the ends.

Middle linebacker Jeff Siemon is only 25 and has an able backup in Amos Martin.

The secondary gained a regular when cornerback Bobby Bryant returned after missing the 1974 season with a broken arm, but strong safety Jeff Wright won't be able to play for a couple of months because of a knee injury.

Nate Wright, who enjoyed his finest year last season, joins Bryant, Krause and Terry Browns in the regular secondary.

Clabo has been the sensation of the preseason averaging 47 yards a punt to give Minnesota its best kicking game in several years.

At a glance

1975 finish—First in NFC.
1975 record—10-4.
Team's strong points—Quarterbacking headed by Fran Tarkenton and the offensive line.
Team's weaknesses—Unproven receivers to replace All Pro flanker John Gilliam, who is playing in the World Football League. Also must improve upon special team deficiencies, particularly in the return and punting areas.
New faces—Rookie punter Neil Clabo and rookie return specialist Mike Strickland.

Boryla to start Saturday

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Boryla, the second-year sensation from Stanford, will be the Philadelphia Eagles' starting quarterback Saturday in the preseason finale with the Atlanta Falcons.

Coach Mike McCormack, announcing Tuesday that Boryla has bumped 13-year veteran Roman Gabriel out of a starting job, also said he would lead the Eagles in their regular-season National Football League opener against the New York Giants.

"It's been obvious that Michael has moved the club better than Gabriel," said McCormack. "Again, I don't think it's been all Gabe's fault, but Mike has a certain spark. I think he's ready."

Boryla, 24, started the final three games of the 1974 National Football League season, leading the Eagles to victories over the Giants, Green Bay and Detroit. The spurt allowed Philadelphia to finish with a 7-7 won-loss record.

For the preseason, Boryla completed 41 of 85 passes for 506 yards and four touchdowns. He was intercepted two times and sacked five. Gabriel was 29 for 70 for 232 yards and one TD. He was intercepted five times and sacked seven.

Boryla took his promotion philosophically.

Gabriel, acquired from Los Angeles in 1973, also took the demotion like a pro.

Shorter says track athletes are pros

WASHINGTON (AP) — "We're all professionals," says Olympic gold medal winner Frank Shorter. "There is no distinction between amateur and professionals in track and field."

Shorter, winner of the marathon in Munich in 1972, said, however, that U.S. amateur athletes aren't treated as well, even with illegal subsidies, as their European counterparts, especially those in Western Eruope.

Asked during the opening session of hearings by the President's Commission on Olympic Sports how he would have been treated after winning the gold medal had he been from a Communist country, Shorter replied: "I would have rather been a Finn."

"Had I been a Finn and won a gold medal," he told the 22-member panel investigating amateur athletics. "I would have had my house built for me and an auto company would have given me a car, all tax free. I would have gotten endorsements and subsidies such as $2,000 to set foot on a track. Had I been a businessman, I would have had all sorts of cash flow coming into my company."

What did you receive in the United States after winning, Shorter was asked by Donna deVarona, a commission member who also is a gold medal winner in swimming.

"I haven't even received my Olympic ring from the committee yet," he replied. "I won the Sullivan award which I really appreciate. I always thought only swimmers won that award."

SAN DIEGO CHARGERS — Veterans: Running backs Bob Thomas and George Amundson, offensive tackle Jay Douglas, wide receiver Harrison Davis, defensive back Benny Johnson, all waived.

Rookie quarterback Neal Jeffrey placed on injured reserve list.

Second-year linebacker Ken Hutcherson acquired from Dallas for undisclosed draft pick.

Angels' boss not pleased

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick Williams, who has seen better days as a manager, can't be blamed if at times he expects too much.

His California Angels had scored a 5-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night, but Williams wasn't totally pleased because "they made it close with two runs they shouldn't have."

Nyls Nyman singled past Bruce Bochte at first base with one out in the seventh and Williams thought Bochte should have "made the play even though the ball was hit hard."

And Brian Downing followed by dumping a single to left. Williams thought left-fielder Dave Collins broke back on the ball instead of in. Both runners eventually scored on a single by Jerry Hairston.

"Maybe I'm asking too much of them and I'm thinking in another era," said Williams who managed the Boston Red Sox to a pennant in 1967 and the Oakland A's to a pair of world championships.

However, Williams was pleased with the relief pitching of left-hander Jim Brewer. After Hairston singled home two runs off winner Ed Figueroa, 13-12, Williams called on Brewer who retired the last seven batters with ease to gain his third save of the season.

"It was a great relief job and he had a good screwball," said Williams.

White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner agreed and added "We saw some screwgies we haven't ever seen before."

Wilbur Wood, 14-19, suffered the loss and had most of his trouble with the bottom of the batting order as Mike Miley drove in two runs and scored one on a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly and Andy Etchebarren had a pair of singles, drove in a run and scored another.

The winning run, however, came in the top of the seventh when Lee Stanton walked, stole second and scored on a double by Bochte.

The Angels stole three bases to run their season total to 205.

Nyman, Downing and Jorge Orta had two hits each for the Sox while Pat Kelly doubled in a run and Bill Melton doubled and score another.

The two teams close their two-game series tonight with Jim Kaat, 20-11, going against Frank Tanana, 14-7.

READY FOR TOURNEY — Doug Kirby and Hanna Butler, a pair of 10-year-old table tennis champions from Montclair, practice for the 27th annual Pacific Coast Open Table Tennis Championships this weekend at the Chaffey College Gymnasium in Alta Loma. Doug won the California state title by defeating Hanna in the under 11-year-old competition.

T. T. tourney set at Chaffey

Chaffey College will be the site of the 27th Annual Pacific Coast Open Table Tennis Championships this weekend, the first time the Pacific finals have been held in the local area.

The tourney, which decides state championships in some 28 categories, is the largest competition of its kind ever in this area and is certain to be one of the best attended.

Sanctioned by the United States Table Tennis Association, this year's tourney is sponsored by the Upland Table Tennis Club with cooperation from the Upland Parks and Recreation Department and host Chaffey College.

Many of the best table tennis players in the U.S., and possibly some world-ranked performers, are expected to be on hand as the tourney swings into action at 8 a.m. Saturday morning.

All championship events will be held Sunday, with the major ones slated to start at 7 p.m. All tourney action will take place at the Chaffey gym.

Three locals are among the top-ranked players expected to be in action at the two-day tourney.

Mary McIlwain of Alta Loma, a veteran table tennis competitor and U.S. National Senior Women's Singles champion in 1968, is favored in the Women's Senior Division at Chaffey.

Also in action will be young Doug Kirby of Montclair in the 11-and-under division. Doug will be playing in his first Pacific Coast Open tourney but could well take it all in his division. He is already the 11-and-under California State champ and recently won the Santa Monica Open.

Montclair's Hanna Butler should also do well at the tourney. Miss Butler, slated to compete in the Open Singles division since no girls' event will be held at Chaffey, is ranked number two in the State in her age group.

Scrimmages next for SAL

Coaches have questions

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

After two weeks of football practice, San Antonio League coaches all seem to be playing a game of 20 questions.

Since none of their squads have seen game-type competition, the local grid mentors are sporting a lot of question-marks around with them.

Answers to all those questions will start to come Saturday, as the eight SAL schools tangle in pre-season scrimmages. Since the hitting for real will start next Friday, it's obvious that now is the time for the locals to settle on who's going to play where, and what formations they are going to be playing out of.

Pomona High head coach Mike Clifton is not too worried about where to play his personnel, but the past couple weeks have produced a few grey hairs for Clifton and his staff over the offensive formation the Red Devils will utilize this fall.

"I changed our offense around last year at the Ganesha game in mid-season," recalls the Pomona skipper. "At the time it was a desperation move to keep us in contention, and of course it worked so well that we made the playoffs."

If Clifton sounds a little vague about what exact formation he's referring to, it's because he is. It's not that hard to describe, but Clifton and his aides have never taken the time to give it a tag.

The coach of the two-time defending SAL champs explains his offensive alignment thusly: "We line up our fullback (which will be Hank Zibell again this fall) directly behind the quarterback and about a yard back of him. Our two slot backs line up on either side of Zibell, but at a distance from him, sort of like upbacks position themselves in a punt return formation. Then we use two tight ends.

"I don't know if anybody has ever used it before or not. It's kind of like the offense that Notre Dame uses occasionally but they don't position the backs quite the same. I don't know what to call it, all I know is that it was very effective for us last year."

Clifton's what-ya-call-it formation, as the Pomona mentor is the first to admit, worked well last year because of the hard-driving Zibell at fullback and the darting Raymond Butler at one of the slotback spots.

Butler is gone on the Citrus JC this year, but Clifton feels he has a better backfield since fleet runners Charles Cole and Harold Walker join Zibell in the backfield.

"Right now, it looks like Mark Soto will be our quarterback," notes Clifton is rounding out the potential Pomona backfield. "Soto is a senior and saw some game action last year so we are hoping he can make things work."

"I'm really excited to see it in a game, as we have been trying to iron the bugs out of the formation in practice. That's why our scrimmage Saturday will be an important one from a coaching standpoint."

The Devils will be squaring off against Eisenhower High in San Bernardino at 9:30 Saturday morning in one of the SAL scrimmages on tap for that day.

The other scrimmages involving SAL schools should also prove interesting. Chino will be squaring off against Alta Loma at 4 p.m. at Chino High, while Claremont will face Chaffey High at 7 p.m. at the Tigers' Graber Field: Damien takes on host La Puente at 7 p.m., while Garey will battle North at UC Riverside, also at 7 p.m.

Ganesha gets its feet wet for 1975 vs. Northview at Covina Stadium at 7 p.m., while in two Saturday morning contests Montclair hosts Pacific at 9:30 a.m. and Upland travels to Bishop Amat for a 9 a.m. matchup.

Offense stands out in S.D. grid camp

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Correspondent

Saturday will mark the first inter-school scrimmages of the season for the five valley entries in the Hacienda League, and so far the reactions of the coaches as they try to fine-tune their squads for the coming season range from delight to disappointment.

Coach Bob Baiz of San Dimas is the most optimistic of the lot. "Our defense is supposed to be our strength," he said of a unit which features nine returning starters from last year's young team.

"But so far in practice," he went on, "it's been the offense that stands out. We have six returning starters on the offense and where we lost kids we've come up with players that are bigger and faster."

Baiz is pleased that he is able to maintain fairly distinct offensive and defensive units. He has just three players going both ways at this point—Steve Campbell (split end and safety), Don Edwards (center and middleguard) and Sonny LaFargue (tackle).

The offensive backfield also has Baiz smiling. "Steve Loumagne has been very sharp at quarterback," he said, "and all three running backs look good." That trio consists of tailback Fred Carter and fullbacks Roosevelt Johnson and Bob Pleasant.

The competition between Johnson and Pleasant for a starting role is one of three position battles that indicate depth to Baiz. Mike Lee, up from last year's JV team (which posted a 7-2 record) is pressing veteran Edwards for the middleguard job, while newcomers David Garrison and Bob Tatalovich are dueling to be LaFargue's partner at defensive tackle.

Biaz will get a good look at all his candidates for starting positions Saturday when the Saints travel to Charter Oak for a scrimmage at 8 p.m.

Ontario's Doug Brooks is likewise pleased with the practice sessions he has seen. "The kids have really been hustling," he said. "They look good."

Brooks says the best surprise of the preseason has been the performance of Larry Cutbirth — who will apparently take away Ramon Flores' starting role at quarterback. Cutbirth broke a leg during Ontario's third league game last year, but is completely healed now.

Fullback Doug Brooks Jr., however, is still bothered by an injury he suffered last year which required an operation during the off-season.

Brooks is looking for Saturday's 6 p.m. scrimmage at Riverside Poly to be informative. "I hope they throw a lot so I can get a look at our defensive secondary—it's pretty green," he said. Safety Freddy Vigil is the only returnee in the secondary.

Pete Lopez, whose Bonita team landed the Hacienda League title last year, is perhaps the least enthusiastic of the five coaches at this point.

"We've been pretty spotty so far," he said. "We've made some good plays but we've looked poor on the others. I guess you could say I'm displeased overall."

Adding to Lopez' problems is the loss of linebacker Ralph Chalifoux, who will miss two weeks with a shoulder separation.

The coach is happiest with the play of quarterback Sanford Coggins, running backs Scott Johnson and Bobby Bidari and Defenders Bruce Hines and Steve Benoit.

"We've had trouble moving the ball," said Lopez, whose Bearcats will entertain Costa Mesa in a scrimmage Saturday at 11 a.m. "But the defense is always ahead of the offense at this point. It's just a matter of time and patience until we get things going."

Alta Loma's Tom Cook is generally happy with the progress of his team, especially that of his lineman — Cliff Houtz, Mike Thacker, Jerry Barba, Gary Ornelas, Garry Diaz and Mike Couch.

Cook is also expecting big thing from flanker Rob Ward. The junior speedster wrenched a knee in practice last week, but the coach hopes he will be ready to go for Saturday's scrimmage at Chino at 4 p.m.

Coach Ken Gunn of Walnut can't decide whether he's pleased or disappointed with what he's seen in practice.

Gunn is still not set on a starting quarterback, though he gives a slight edge to Kevin Loggins, a junior who played backup for the varsity last year. "But Pat Flaherty, a kid just up from the frosh team, is pressing him pretty hard," said Gunn.

The seventh-year coach will take a look at the two QB prospects Saturday when the Mustangs entertain Bassett in a 9 a.m. scrimmage.

Injuries strike at NFL

By Associated Press

National Football League owners may be paying four fewer salaries a year, but with players dropping right and left from injuries this preseason, coaches are nearing their wits' end with 43-man rosters.

"I'm selfish. I'd like to have as many players as possible for my team," says Coach Charlie Winner of the New York Jets. "Right now I've got 19 guys who are injured in one way or another.

"In practice today, I had only one running back—Steve Davis—who could run. So we had to walk through all our plays.

"I had only five defensive backs who could run and three wide receivers, so you can see that if we were going into a league game, we'd be in a difficult situation."

Most teams in the NFL are in the same rocky boat—playing with skeleton crews while the injured skeletons heal.

Miami Coach Don Shula was a member of the committee which cut rosters from 47 to 43 because of "the economics of the sport.

"I sat in when those rules were made. After they're made, you abide by them. You can't bend the rules to fit your own particular situation," said Shula.

That's not to say he wouldn't like to. Shula was brought to the painful decision of placing linebacker Nick Buoniconti and safety Dick Anderson on the injured reserve list, rendering them ineligible for the entire season because of the new roster rules. Previously, a player could be placed on injured reserve and brought back before the season ended.

No longer.

"This year, he's gone for the season as far as you're concerned," says Winner. "That leaves you two choices: count him on the active roster and play short for a time, or put him on injured reserve. If you get people hurt at key positions, you're in trouble with rosters the way they are."

That means the New Orleans Saints are in trouble. Quarterback Archie Manning is out for a month with a chipped elbow. The New England Patriots are in trouble; quarterback Jim Plunkett underwent surgery Sunday for a shoulder separation and will be lost for six to eight weeks.

Likewise the Atlanta Falcons, without defensive end Claude Humphrey through a knee injury; likewise Buffalo, which has lost defensive backs Tony Greene and Robert James.

Further evidence was supplied by Ed Garvey, Executive Director of the NFL Players Association. In a news release Tuesday, Garvey said he had surveyed 21 of the 26 player representatives and that "they indicated that their head coaches and their staffs favored the 47-man squad or some arrangement for this total.

"They feel that with additional injuries during the season that will keep players out one or more games, (there will be an) affect on the quality of football played for the fans. It could hurt (a team) seriously if two players at the same position were injured and had to miss a game or more," said Garvey.

Big names gone in cuts

By Associated Press

It was the Stock Exchange at midday. It was rush hour in midtown.

It was cutdown day in the National Football League.

Players retired, went on waivers, or were otherwise discarded with the rapidity of machine gun fire Tuesday as coaches frantically pared their rosters to the 46-man limit.

And some big names fell victim to old age, poor health, or the simple inability to cut the mustard.

Tight end Marv Fleming, the only player to appear in five Super Bowls, was cut by the Washington Redskins. Center Bill Curry of the Green Bay Packers retired, as did defensive back Cornell Green of the Dallas Cowboys. And veteran linebacker Bobby Bell was placed on waivers by the Kansas City Chiefs in major moves by coaches who get to do it all again next Tuesday, when the final trim to 43 players is due.

Fleming, a 13-year veteran, had played in two Super Bowls with the Packers and three more with the Miami Dolphins.

Curry, an 11-year man, had played with Fleming on the Packer team that beat the Kansas City Chiefs 35-10 in Super Bowl I eight years ago. He had been away from the Pack for eight years with the Houston Oilers and Los Angeles Rams before returning to Green Bay in a trade this year.

Green ended a 13-season career and gave Dallas Coach Tom Landry pause to remember the player's first day at training camp those long years ago.

"He put his hip pads on backwards and wondered why he was getting all that pain in front," recalled Landry. But Green went on to become all-pro at strong safety and cornerback, intercepting 34 passes and once playing 182 consecutive games. He'll become a Dallas scout.

Bell asked to be placed on waivers. "He's not sure what he wants to do," said a team spokesman. "He may retire or he may try to get with another team."

If there's room, that is. There were enough bodies shifted Tuesday to stock a lot of teams for a long time. Running backs and draft choices changed hands like bargains at a bazaar.

The Chiefs acquired defensive lineman Randy Beisler and a draft choice from San Francisco in exchange for defensive back Nate Allen. The 49ers also sent cornerback Frank Oliver to the Buffalo Bills for a draft pick.

Orioles not dead birds

By Associated Press

A funny thing is happening to the Boston Red Sox on the way to the American League East pennant.

They're slipping—and the Baltimore Orioles could have the last laugh.

The Orioles, all but given up as dead birds less than a week ago, kept their fluttering hopes alive with a 9-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday night.

Coupled with Boston's 3-2 defeat in 10 innings at Cleveland, it moved the Orioles within five games of the top—the closest they've been since July 8.

And it raised Baltimore hopes of repeating last year's performance.

"It's impossible to say how many we can afford to lose," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "Last year they were nine up on us and we beat them by seven. That's 16 games we made up in a month, and we made up nine in 10 days. It all depends what Boston does. They slumped at the end last year, but they haven't had a real slump since."

The Orioles and Red Sox both have 19 games left, including two against each other in Boston next Tuesday and Wednesday.

"If we don't get rained out before then, I'll pitch (Jim) Palmer and (Mike) Torrez against them," Weaver said, referring to the two aces of his staff.

While the Red Sox and Orioles were trying to decide the outcome of the American League East, the Oakland A's strenghened their chances in the AL West with a 2-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals in 14 innings.

Elsewhere, the California Angels whipped the Chicago White Sox 5-4; the New York Yankees defeated the Detroit Tigers 9-6 and the Texas Rangers took a doubleheader from the Minnesota Twins — 3-0 and 4-2.

Lee May and Dave Duncan keyed a pair of four-run rallies and Doyle Alexander pitched a four-hitter, leading Baltimore's rout of Milwaukee. The victory was the 10th in 15 games for the surging Orioles.

"The fact that we have veterans who have been winners could be advantageous," said Weaver. "The big thing is the fact that they have been winners before keeps them from giving up. They know how they would kick themselves if they lost games now and then saw Boston go into some sort of monstrous slump."

Indians 3, Red Sox 2

Alan Ashby's run-scoring single in the 10th led Cleveland over Boston. George Hendrick doubled and eventually scored on Ashby's hit to left. The Indians' victory gave them a 9-5 edge over the East leaders, the only AL team to hold the upper hand over Boston this year.

"These things happen," said Boston Manager Darrell Johnson. "We've caught Cleveland twice in a hot streak. Fortunately, they're the only team we've done that with."

A's 2, Royals 1

Bill North's run-scoring single with two out in the 14th inning gave Oakland its big victory over Kansas City. The victory boosted the A's lead to seven games over the Royals in the American League West.

A two-out error by Kansas City shortstop Fred Patek opened the door for the A's winning rally. Bert Campaneris, who reached base on Patek's miscue, stole second and raced home with the gamewinner on North's dramatic hit.

Gene Tenace, who had a tworun homer in Monday night's 82 Oakland victory, hit his 23rd homer of the season leading off the bottom of the seventh, tying the score at 1-1.

Deny teams will move

By The Associated Press

It was difficult to sort fact from fiction today after a published report that baseball's franchise committee would recommend that the Minnesota Twins move to Seattle and the San Francisco Giants shift to Toronto.

Committee members appeared as mystified regarding the story published Tuesday in the Toronto Star that the committee would suggest the moves at a meeting in Kansas City on Sept. 24.

"I called the American League office and asked them what the hell was going on," said Minnesota Twins Owner Calvin Griffith, who added that the committee had not contacted him on a possible move.

"I haven't heard anything like that," said New York Mets Board Chairman M. Donald Grant, a committee member who labelled the story "erroneous."

"I flatly deny this story," said Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "The franchise committee has not made any reccommendations and there's no guarantee it will happen in Kansas City."

That's where conflicts begin to arise. Griffith said: "There's no quesion they'll be meeting on this."

Giants Owner Horace Stoneham told The Associated Press: "We're not ready to sell, and if and when we are, the Giants will be sold in place. They are not going to leave San Francisco."

However, Stoneham was quoted by the San Francisco Examiner as saying: "If the new owners want to move, that's not my concern. The Giants will be sold and—that's right—there will be no stipulation that they can't be moved."

"I don't know where they got anything on Minnesota going to Seattle," added Griffith.

Writer Neil MacCarl's story quoted a well-informed U.S.-based source who asked not to be identified.

"If there was anything to it, you'd sure think I'd know what we were going to do," said Griffith.

TIGHT BATTLE — This duel between Grand National champ Kenny Roberts (1) and Gary Scott (64) may well be reenacted Oct. 5 and 6 at the Champion Spark Plug Classic at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Mosley retires

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Mosley, who started racing championship cars at the age of 20 and later survived two serious crashes at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, announced Tuesday he is retiring.

"I want to save my family and my happiness," he said in a telephone call to his chief mechanic, Jud Phillips, from his home in Fallbrook, Calif.

Mosley, now 28, appeared in eight Indy races and his best finish was eighth in 1968, his rookie year.

He was seriously injured in both the 1971 and 1972 races after mechanical failure sent his car into the fourth-turn wall.

"It's really a relief," he said of the retirement. "I wasn't happy doing it and it's something I had to do. I've wanted to quit for a long time but I didn't because there were so many people that wanted me to keep going."

Ironically, Mosley's last race was at Milwaukee in August where he outlasted former Indy winners A.J. Foyt, Johhny Rutherford and Gordon Johncock for his third championship car victory.

L.B. Prix adds 3 drivers

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jody Scheckter, Jean-Pierre Jarier and Chris Amon have joined the field for the $102,000, Sept 28 Formula 5000 race through the streets of Long Beach.

The trio brings to eight the number of Formula 1 drivers who have entered the race to gain experience for the March 28 Long Beach Grand Prix over the same course.

Scheckter of South Africa will race a Lola T332 for Carl Hogan of St. Louis as David Hobbs team mate. He won the U.S. Formula 5000 series in 1973 but has been competing in Europe on the Grand Prix circuit exclusively this year.

Jarrier, a Frenchman, is the No. 1 Grand Prix driver in the UOP Shadow stable.

Amon, a New Zealander, has been one of the ranking Grand Prix drivers for a number of years.

Other Grand Prix drivers entered in the Sept. 28 race are Mario Andretti, Jackie Oliver, Vern Schuppan, Brian Redman and Hobbs.

Al Unser added to IROC field

RIVERSIDE — Al Unser, a two-time Indy 500 winner and the third most victorious driver in USAC history, has been named as the final driver for the 1975 International Race of Champions.

Unser, the 36-year-old brother of defending IROC champion Bobby Unser, will be making his first appearance in the three-year-old series which matches 12 of the world's top drivers in identical Chevrolet Camaros.

The first of four races in the IROC will be held Saturday on the two-mile high-banked oval at Michigan International Speedway.

Besides the Unser brothers, both of Albuquerque, N.M., the IROC field includes A. J. Foyt, Mario Andretti, Brian Redman, Richard Petty, David Pearson, Bobby Allison, Benny Parsons, Emerson Fittipaldi, James Hunt and Jody Scheckter.

The second and third races of the $212,000 series will be held October 25-26 on the road course at Riverside, Calif., and the fourth race will be held next February on the 2½ mile tri-oval at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Al, who along with Andretti has been racing for several years on Parnelli Jones' Viceroy team, has won more USAC championship car races (28) than anyone but Andretti and Foyt.

In 1970 and 1971 he became only the fourth man in history to win the Indianapolis 500 back-to-back. He also won the USAC championship in 1970 and he was the national USAC dirt track champion two years ago.

A week ago, Al won his first major road race, beating Redman and Andretti in the Atlanta Formula 5000 Championship and now ranks second to Redman in season standings for that series.

With Al's contribution, the IROC field this year can boast eight Indy 500 wins. Foyt has won three, Bobby and Al two each and Andretti one.

Each of the four IROC events will be weighted equally this year with the winner of each event receiving 12 points and each position down being worth one point less. Only the top nine drivers in the point standings after three races will continue on for the fourth race at Daytona.

The winner of the IROC championship will earn at least $50,000.

Cyclists set for OMS duel

The perennial battle for the American Motorcycle Association's Grand National Championship between Californians, Kenny Roberts (from Villa Park) and Baldwin Park's Gary Scott looks like having its climax in the very last race of the season . . . the champion spark plug motorcycle classics at Ontario Motor Speedway on October 4th and 5th.

Roberts, the Yamaha factory team leader, has captured the title for the past two seasons while Scott has occupied the Cinderella runner-up spot for no less than three years in succession.

This year, however, things are different. Scott, on an all-American Harley-Davidson team bike, holds the points advantage and midway through the year seemed uncatchable.

The tenacious Roberts, however, had other ideas. He closed the point gap with a win in the recent Laguna Seca road race (only other West Coast road race of the year in the Camel Pro series tour) and then pulled a masterful surprise win out of the bag on the Indianapolis mile dirt-track recently.

One reason for Scott's lead is the horsepower advantage that his Harley enjoys over Robert's Yamaha dirt-trackers but for the Indy mile Kenny had one of his 120bhp four-cylinder water-cooled road race engines shoehorned into a flat-track frame and snatched the win in the last few feet of the very last lap.

Several of the monster Yamaha fours (which will be running 180mph in road race guise at Ontario) showed up at Indy but Roberts was the only rider capable of mastering one. And even he admitted to being "scared stiff" of the awesome horsepower on a loose-surface dirt-track.

Prior to the champion spark plug motorcycle classics there are two more mile dirt track events where Kenny will have to screw up his courage and try and white-knuckle the beast to more valuable points.

If he can do this and continue to whittle down the margin between Scott and himself, then the odds are on a three-in-a-row Championship streak for the 23 year old star.

Yamaha's road racing machinery is currently the tops and Roberts has the talent to wring every last ounce of speed out of the streamlined 180mph projectiles.

The champion spark plug motorcycle classics will feature two days of International road racing with stars from nine countries clashing in both the Lightweight (250cc) race and the big one of the weekend . . . the Formula 750 race, that will be run in two 100 mile segments.

Confirmed entries have been received from all of the American factory teams plus World 250cc Champion, Walter Villa, who is flying in to spearhead the Harley-Davidson team alongside Gary Scott.

Stott holds slim lead

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ramo Stott, always a contender but never before a champion, holds a slim lead in the battle for the U.S. Auto Club stock car driving title with only one race left this season.

Stott, from Keokuk, Iowa, leads four-time stock car king Butch Hartman, South Zanesville, Ohio, by 2,210 points to 2,135, with 250 points going to the winner of the 200-mile race Sept. 21 at Trenton, N.J., International Speedway.

If Hartman wins, Stott must finish third or better to keep the title.

Jimmy Caruthers, Anaheim, Calif., has won the USAC Championship Dirt division over Tom Bigelow, Arnie Knepper, Billy Cassella and Bill Engelhart.

Sleepy Tripp, Costa Mesa, Calif., previously put the midget division title out of reach.

Indy-type racers affected by ruling

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U.S. Auto Club, unable to come up with a suitable alternative, has frozen current engine specifications for at least five years.

But that, and the board's action to require a simple powerrestricting valve, could result in major changes next year in Indianapolis style racing.

"We would have liked to tried something else," said USAC Technical Director Frankie DelRoy. "But nobody who was going to help us on testing gave us an engine to work with.

"Everybody said they were willing to help, but they lied. So we had to make the changes with the valve."

The 21-member USAC board Monday night voted to require a valve controlling engine manifold pressure at 75 inches. Such a valve set at 80 inches is now used for qualifying.

"That should put the Cosworth V8 engine in business next season," DelRoy said. "I expect to see Cosworths on Dan Gurney's cars, and probably Parnelli Jones', Roger Penske's, and McLaren. Maybe even A.J. Foyt or George Bignotti."

A bitter fight has raged between advocates of stock blocks, the costly $35,000 fourcylinder Offenhausers and highly competitive V8 powerplants developed by Foyt.

"The pressure relief valve should knock about 50 horsepower off everybody's engines," DelRoy said.

Nearly every side has advocated reducing the costs of racing, and put a damper on speeds which were climbing at an alarming rate.

"They (USAC) tried to save everybody some money, but what they wind up doing is putting a lot of the 'little people' in racing out of business," said master mechanic George Bignotti. "It's not going to bother somebody like me so much, because I can afford to test until I find something that's competitive."

Bignotti said keeping current 1.8 miles per gallon fuel allotments and lowering manifold pressure restrictions "will make all present engines obsolete in two years."

He added, "What they've done is open the back door for something like the turbocharged Cosworth engine."

Larger, non-turbocharged Cosworths power most Formula I cars.

Bignotti has helped develop a new Offenhauser that he says should be ready to sell next season at a cost of about $20,000. That's roughly equivalent to the Cosworth price tag.

Southland racing

SAN BERNARDINO — The Orange Show Speedway will be hosting late model stock car racing Saturday night on its quarter-mile asphalt oval. Sharing Saturday's bill with the late model stocks will be the hobby stocks. Time trials will begin at 6 p.m. with racing slated to get underway at 7:30 p.m.

GARDENA — Ascot Park will feature dirt-track motorcycle racing on Friday and sprint cars on Saturday. Friday's motorcycle action gets underway at 7:30 p.m. as does Saturday's sprint car competition. Feature race Saturday night will be the inaugural running of the California 100 Sprint Car Championship on the half-mile dirt oval at Ascot.

SAUGUS — Saugus Speedway has a full card of stock car racing on tap for Saturday night beginning at 8 p.m. Six heats, a semi-main and three main events are slated for oval racing fans, while a destruction derby has also been added to the card. Main events will include sportsman, limited stock and figure 8 competition.

EAST IRVINE — Orange County International Raceway will hold Fun and Grudge drag racing this evening beginning at 5:30 p.m. and will also feature AMC Motocross racing tonight. On Friday open Motocross competition will begin at 7:30 p.m., with a 45-race card on tap. Saturday the East Irvine facility will host E.T. bracket semi-pro drag racing with gates opening at 1:30 p.m. and time trials beginning at 2 p.m.

VALENCIA — Indian Dunes Park will feature motorcycle racing on all three of its dirt tracks Friday night, with action getting underway at 8 p.m. Class "C" short track cycles, NMA minicycles and AME motocrossers will be in action.

MOORPARK — Valley Cycle Park has a daylong program of motorcycle racing slated for Sunday on its 1½ mile European-style obstacle course. The first heat is scheduled to leave the starting gate at 9:30 a.m. and upwards of 300 riders, representing all novice and professional riding divisions, are expected to see action.

Do Packer fans expect too much from Starr?

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Clean cut, articulate, always proper and a football folk hero in Wisconsin, Bart Starr has an image problem.

At a glance

Green Bay Packers

1974 finish: Third in NFC Central.

1974 record: 6-8.

Team's strong points: anticipated improved leadership under new Coach Bart Starr; defense which ranked fifth in NFL last year; superb fullback in John Brockington and one one of the league's best placekickers in Chester Marcol.

Team's weaknesses: lack of depth, especially at wide receiver and linebacker; lack of speed at wide receiver and running back.

New faces: rookies Bill Bain, guard-tackle, and Willard Harrell, running back.

Because of his remarkable record of success, Starr worries that fans may expect too much too soon from him as new head coach and general manager of the Green Bay Packers, the team he quarterbacked to five National Football League championships in seven years in the 1960s.

"I'm just learning how to coach. I need all the time I can get," said Starr, whose tactical brilliance could hypo an offense which ranked 10th among the 13 National Football Conference teams and scored only 210 points—94 by placekicker Chester Marcol—last year.

"We're thinking in terms of building for the future—a solid foundation," he said. "We're more concerned with that this year than wins and losses."

"We feel a solid foundation is very important," he said. "Gimmicks and gadgetry and frills aren't solid. The temptation to use them is great, but we won't do it."

Dan Devine, Starr's predecessor, didn't help the building process last fall when he traded first, second and third-round draft picks of this year and a first and second in 1976 to Los Angeles for 35-year-old quarterback John Hadl.

Starr lost two players of All-Pro caliber this summer when linebacker Ted Hendricks, who had played out his option, signed with Oakland and guard Gale Gillingham retired. Compensation from Oakland for Hendricks still is to be determined and could relieve a critical shortage of depth at several positions.

Most urgently in need of help is the offensive line, where guard Bill Lueck has been traded, tackle Dick Himes played hurt most of last year and center Larry McCarren has been inconsistent.

Bill Hayhoe, the other tackle, had appeared headed for stardom until he broke his leg midway through the 1973 season. He broke it again a year ago and missed all of last season, and recently was declared lost for 1975 after a third break.

Bill Bain, the Packers' top draft choice, probably will start in Hayhoe's spot, although the coaches would have preferred to let the rookie gain experience more gradually.

Hadl, while showing no traces of arm troubles he was said to have had at Los Angeles, nonetheless has had an inconsistent exhibition season. Much of the problem has been the line's failure to consistently fend off opponents' pass rushes.

Hadl's passing targets include Rich McGeorge, considered one of the NFL's better tight ends. However, most of Green Bay's wide receivers lack sufficient speed to run deep patterns.

Offensive line breakdowns were blamed in part for John Brockington's failure to rush for more than 1,000 yards for the first time in his four-year pro career last season. He gained 883, but averaged only 3.3 yards per carry.

Brockington is likely to miss the blocking ability of traded MacArthur Lane, for whom no standout successor has emerged at halfback. Rookie Willard Harrell, a preseason sensation, adds needed speed but at 180 pounds probably will be restricted to spot duty and kick returns.

Except for Hendricks, the starting unit of the defense which ranked fifth in the league last year returns.

The front four of Clarence Williams, Mike McCoy, Alden Roche and Dave Pureifory or Steve Okoniewski has proven effective against the run, but needs improvement in the pass rush.

The coaches are high on the potential of Tom Toner as Hendricks' replacement, but the third-year linebacker lacks game experience. He played defensive end in college, started only three games at linebacker as a Packers rookie and missed all of last season with a broken clavicle.

Middle linebacker Jim Carter, who suffered a hairline leg fracture early in training camp, is expected to be ready for the start of the regular season but may need time to round into shape.

Fred Carr is more than adequate at right linebacker, as are Ken Ellis and Willie Buchanon at the cornerbacks and Jim Hill and Al Matthews at safeties.

The Packers' schedule, which includes two games with Minnesota and single contests with Denver, Miami, Dallas, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles, is one of the toughest in the league.

Lions enjoy playground

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Just two years after groundbreaking, a peat bog has been converted into the beautiful $55.7-million Pontiac Metropolitan Stadium, the new playground for the National Football League's Detroit Lions.

At a glance

1974 finish: second in NFC Central.

1974 record: 7-7.

Strengths: Play of tight end Charlie Sanders, defensive backs Lem Barney, Levi Johnson and Dick Jauron, tackle Rockne Freitas, defensive tackle Herb Orvis.

Weaknesses: No running attack, few outstanding receivers, linebacking lapses, tendency to commit penalties, failure to capitalize on mistakes.

New faces: Veteran center Jon Morris, acquired from New England; rookie offensive linemen Steve Myers of Ohio State and Craig Hertwig of Georgia, both All-Americans; rookie wide receiver Dennis Franklin, former Michigan quarterback; guard Lynn Boden, No. 1 draft choice from South Dakota State.

But what was also needed two years ago was a machine to rebuild the team itself. The Lions haven't been a title contender lately and, if anything, it appears they have regressed heading into this season.

Detroit, runnerup in the National Conference Central Division the last six years, has looked terrible in losing four of its first five preseason games.

Suddenly it must be transformed into a team than can challenge Minnesota for the division. That prospect seems remote.

Just how long the beauty and newness of "PonMet" will keep the anger of Lions' fans in abeyance remains to be seen.

"When the season begins, you will see a lot of things come together in a hurry," offered veteran Lion cornerback Lem Barney, one of the few truly outstanding players on the squad.

"I don't know why it happens that way, but it does," he continued. "I think we can be a real team. Wait and see."

Coach Rick Forzano hasn't said anything nearly as optimistic.

After Detroit's last loss, 22-14 Saturday to Cincinnati, Forzano ripped into his players in a candid display that perhaps was geared toward shaking them up a bit.

"We did play poorly and the fans deserve to boo," he said.

"I don't see anything that looked good at all. I thought our defense was terrible. I thought our tackling was bad. We dropped passes. We were offside. We had penalties. We were just a bad football team today."

Forzano might have to record that quote to play back during his post-game interviews the rest of the season. There's not much to indicate that assessment can be drastically altered before the opener against Green Bay at Milwaukee on Sept. 21.

The Lions follow that with a game at Atlanta, then host Dallas in a Monday night national television game Oct. 6—the "official" debut of PonMet. The patchwork, fiberglass fabric roof is scheduled to be completed by then. It will be inflated with giant air blowers around the top of the stadium.

Greg Landry is Detroit's quarterback, having won the job from Bill Munson, who has been bothered by injuries. Landry has never lived up to the potential expected of him in his seven years at Detroit.

The Lions' running attack is almost nil and they've had to move 5-foot-10, 200-pound halfback Altie Taylor to fullback since power runner Steve Owens hasn't yet recovered from knee surgery.

Perhaps the brightest note in exhibition play has been the performance of wide receiver Dennis Franklin, the rookie who was a star quarterback for the University of Michigan.

No. 1 draft choice Lynn Boden of South Dakota State could possibly be a starter, while rookie linemen Steve Myers of Ohio State and Craig Hertwig of Georgia, both All-Americans could see a lot of action.

Center Guy Dennis quit, but offensive tackle Jim Yarbrough returned after quitting briefly.

Tight end Charlie Sanders remains the team's prime star-caliber player on offense, while cornerback Lem Barney owns that distinction on defense.

Other plusses include defensive tackle Herb Orvis, cornerback Levi Johnson, safety-punt returner Dick Jauron, offensive tackle Rockne Freitas, kicker Errol Mann and punter Herman Weaver.

McLain takes Memphis job

MEMPHIS (AP) — Denny McLain, 31, former American League Cy Young award winner, was named general manager of the Class AAA International League Memphis Blues Tuesday.

Blues' President Dr. Bernard Kraus said that McLain "will add something which has been missing from our general manager's office, namely an enthusiastic attitude..."

McLain has spent the last two years as a play-by-play radio announcer for the American Association's Iowa Oaks.

Government tests for unemployment statistics criticized; may be revised

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Does that 8.4 per cent unemployment rate depict the real state of affairs in the job market today or is it another of those statistics that seem to float, unanchored to reality?

Criticism of labor statistics isn't uncommon. Academics, labor leaders, businessmen and others maintain there are defects of definition, concept and technique that result in an inacurate picture.

A bit surprising is the position taken by Julius Shiskin, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The debate, he says, is healthy. And by inference he suggests the criticisms might possibly have some validity.

Conceding there are "widespread points of view" on the accuracy of government jobless surveys, Shiskin said in an interview that he has recommended that a blue ribbon committee be appointed to review concepts.

If Labor Secretary John Dunlop agrees, Shiskin said he hopes the committee will be formed before the year is out. Existing concepts are the product of a similar committee's work 13 years ago.

The call for a re-examination comes at a critical time. The government relies on at least two surveys for its figures, a survey of households and one of employers. During the summer the two surveys varied on the number of jobless.

Shiskin minimizes the differences in the two sets of figures, both of which he said are used in the final compilations. "Quite often there is a divergence," he said. "It's a natural kind of thing. We were not alarmed."

The differences, he said, are usually short-lived. In fact, the August jobless figures showed the divergence was cut sharply. But, the critics ask, why should differences exist at all if the concepts are correct?

Asked if the household survey might have found fewer jobless individuals than would be the case because unemployed workers were away on vacations, Shisken answered that the possibility was taken into consideration.

But one critic, Albert Sindlinger of Sindlinger & Co., which compiles its own jobless figures from surveys of 1,125 households a week, currently has one million fewer employed and one million more unemployed than the government.

Sindlinger is critical of government techniques. "When they find nobody home they go next door until they do. And the reason that family is home is because the breadwinner has a job and can't be away on vacation."

This, he said, distorts the employed figures upward, the unemployed downward.

Sindlinger, a pioneer in the development of consumer confidence as an economic forecasting tool, maintains that other concepts and methods also are defective. Is a jobless auto worker considered unemployed? Not always, he says.

"You have to be actually looking for work in order to be considered unemployed," he said, observing that "a lot of automotive workers are unemployed but not looking for work because they've got guaranteed incomes."

The very definition of unemployment, it seems, is itself the cause of further confusion. Shiskin points to one: a student who cannot find a summer job is considered jobless in the same sense as a head of household.

Some critics, Shiskin said, believe such students should be dropped from the jobless lists. But others maintain that since total household income is down because of the situation the student should indeed be counted.

More controversial is the matter of "discouraged" workers, who aren't counted. When a long-term unemployed worker gives up trying he is dropped from the list of unemployed. He is, so to speak, erased.

Critics claim you can't erase him and that eventually he will reappear to further distort the figures. That is, when the job market improves he re-emerges as a job seeker. He was there all the time, the critics say, and should have been counted.

Shiskin concedes there is reason for debate and admits it is very difficult to determine who is and who isn't a job seeker. Many people would like a job, but only at a certain pay and in a certain place, he said, adding: "That isn't the real world."

What determines who is to be counted, who ignored? "It's very subjective," Shiskin answered. "How many discouraged workers there are we don't know.

Some also might question the definition of employed. In the household survey used by the government, unpaid workers in a family business are considered employed. But in the survey of firms, only those on payroll are counted.

And then there is the matter of "statistical quirks" or "flukes," often associated with seasonal adjusting.

Almanac

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 10, the 253rd day of 1975. There are 112 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1813, an American naval force under Oliver Perry defeated the British in the battle of Lake Erie in the War of 1812.

On this date ...

In 1608, John Smith was elected governor of the Jamestown colony of Virginia.

In 1775, 5,000 Acadians were banished from Nova Scotia.

In 1846, Elias Howe of Spencer, Mass., received a patent on his sewing machine.

In 1898, Empress Elizabeth of Austria-Hungary was assassinated by an anarchist in Geneva.

In 1907, the British colony of New Zealand became a dominion.

In 1939, Canada declared war against Germany.

Ten years ago: United Nations Secretary General U Thant held conferences with the disputing sides in the India-Pakistan war.

Five years ago: Vice President Spiro T. Agnew denounced the Democratic Congress as reactionary, derelict and dominated by cave-dwelling leftists.

One year ago: President Ford weighed the possibility of pardoning those convicted of crimes in Watergate and related scandals.

Today's birthdays: Golfer Arnold Palmer is 46 years old. Former baseball star Roger Maris is 41.

Thought for today: Show me a hero and I will write you a tragedy. — novelist F. Scott Fitzgerald.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, George Washington wrote his brother: "We are well and in no fear or dread of the enemy." He said he wished for nothing more than to see the enemy out of its strongholds.

Joyce Brothers

The stronger sex

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a 13-year-old girl and, more than anything, I'd like to be an astronaut when I grow up. My older brother says this is silly and that even if I were smart enough, they wouldn't use me because I'm a girl and men don't want females up there. He says you have to have a lot of emotional strength and that women get too mixed up and probably couldn't keep track of everything — S.P.

Dear S.P.: As I'm sure you know, the Russians have already had a female astronaut and by the time you're grown, I feel certain that Americans will have overcome the last remnants of prejudice against women.

Your brother might be interested in knowing, for instance, that several years ago a University of Texas psychologist watched a team of ten aquanauts in an undersea lab for seven months, and he found that on most measures, the female aquanauts not only matched the men, they outperformed them. Robert Helmreich, who directed the behavioral studies for Tekite 11 reported that people who were puny in childhood, grew up in small towns and came from small families, handled the stressful situations best. Women generally had fewer problems adjusting to the stress than males did. On this program, four scientists and one engineer were women.

Even the researchers are not quite sure why those who grew up in small towns, or came from small families tended to perform better. They did find a strong relationship between getting along well with others and doing a good job: those who were outgoing and friendly seemed able to do a better job.

The psychologists theorize that growing up in a small town may help because it's like living in a goldfish bowl. Maybe people early in life get used to dealing with the stress of living with others whereas in larger cities people are often isolated in a large group where they don't have as much opportunity to acquire a higher sense of their own abilities and confidence.

Other studies have revealed that women are not always more emotional than men. Although men have long thought of themselves as having better control of their emotions and being less subject to temperamental outbursts, recent studies of hundreds of men and women fail to support this view. They found that while women are more easily irritated by little things, they are much better able than the average man to remain calm in a major crisis. Men are much more apt to fall apart over a broken or unhappy love affair. A woman may scream at a mouse, but in a real disaster she'll probably be comforting and reassuring to the man. The fact that women outlive men may say something about their capacity to endure stress and crises.

Tests by behavior scientists at California State Polytechnic College revealed that women seemed to have the most active imaginations and the most abundant flow of new ideas. Unfortunately, they are often not encouraged to express these ideas. This is changing, however, and by the time you and your brother are adults, you may realize your ambition.

Adrianna Morris is wed in Upland

Miss Adrianna Morris of Upland and Kenneth Jones of Upland were married recently in St. Joseph Catholic Church in Upland.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Morris of Upland and the son of Mrs. Edna Jones were married in a double-ring ceremony read by the Rev. Peadar Brennan.

Honor attendant was Mrs. Julianna Morris of Ontario.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Florianna Hanna of Ontario, Debbie Jones of Upland and Miss Deanna Di Censo of Upland.

Standing as best man was Larry Robertson of Ontario.

Ushers were Ron Robertson of San Dimas, and Eddie Korgan and Greg Swailes, both of Ontario

Flower girl was Karri Robertson of San Dimas and John Morris of Upland was ring bearer.

Following the rite, a reception was held at the hall of the church. When the couple returns from a wedding trip to Mission Bay, the newlyweds will establish a home in Lemoore where the groom is stationed at Lemoore Navy Base.

Quality protein

"Prime" meat does not provide better-quality protein than lesser grades of meat. The grade of meat refers to eating quality rather than to protein or nutritional quality.

GOP women attending meet

Two members of the Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club will attend the 18th National Federation of Republican Women biennial convention Thursday through Saturday.

Delegates are Mrs. Paul F. Weisend and Mrs. Jack Fulton.

The three-day event will be held at the Dallas Convention Center, Dallas, Tex.

Speakers will include President Ford, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, U.S. Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, Republican National Chairman Mary Louise Smith, former Texas Governor John Connally and former California Governor Ronald Reagan.

The Pomona Valley Republican Women will assist in staffing the Republican booth at the Los Angeles County Fair under the direction of Mrs. Hollis Page, member of the local club and Fair chairman for the Los Angeles County Federation of Republican Women.

Juniors assist police

The Claremont Junior Woman's Club is aiding the Claremont Police Department by presenting burglary prevention meetings.

Mrs. Michael Rick, safety chairman, is setting up neighborhood day and nighttime coffees to inform citizens about ways to prevent office and home burglaries.

PROJECT IDENTIFICATION is presented by officer Larry Widger and the film is narrated by Raymond Burr. Citizens are asked to use the Project Identification home engravers to mark their personal property. The project has proven to be successful in the return of stolen property.

The Claremont Juniors recently presented two engravers to the police department to encourage more citizen participation in the project.

For information on having the program presented to clubs, contact Mrs. Rick at 621-4100.

Financial planning course set

Beginning Sept. 29, UCLA Extension will offer a weekly course on financial planning for women. Offered will be "how-to" information to those women who are heads of the household, manage money and join in financial discussions.

There will be nine lectures in the series covering such aspects of money management as how to increase income through investments, how to protect personal capital and how to minimize tax liability.

The program is open to the public and will meet on Mondays from 12:30 to 3 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall, Westwood United Methodist Church, 10497 Wilshire Blvd., Westwood. Fee for the series is $65.

Further information can be obtained by calling (213) 825-4520.

Gayle Grove wed in Texas rituals

The First Presbyterian Church in Mount Pleasant, Texas, was the setting for the marriage of Miss Gayla Grove of Dallas and John Thomas Leftwich of Mount Pleasant, Texas.

The couple was married by the Rev. Thomas H. Schmid in a double-ring ceremony followed by a reception held at the Mount Pleasant Country Club.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin L. Grove of Pomona. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Leftwich of Mount Pleasant.

Mrs. Dennis Gillespie of Alta Loma was honor attendant. Serving as best man was Howard Leftwich of Mount Pleasant.

The bridesmaids were Miss Betty Hetherwick of Little Rock, Ark., Miss Kerry Krouse of Dallas, Mrs. Palmore Currey Jr. and Mrs. W. L. Means; both of Texas.

Flower girl was Miss Melinda Gillespie of Alta Loma.

Ushers were Palmore Currey Jr., William L. Means Jr., of Mount Pleasant, Richard M. Adams of Houston, and David McHam of Dallas.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Cozamal and Cancun in Mexico and will be at home in Mount Pleasant.

White Shrine men's night scheduled

The meeting of Pomona Valley Shrine, Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, will be conducted by the men members on Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Pomona Masonic Temple.

Harvey Wilkin is chairman for the evening which will conclude with refreshments in the dining room.

For stress

It's important to remember that the need for protein is increased during and following periods of stress such as surgery, high fever, severe burns, infection, or other "wasting diseases." These result in actual tissue breakdown, requiring extra amounts of protein in order to rebuild or replace the destroyed tissues.

AAUW charts brunch

The Pomona Valley Branch, American Association of University Women, will hold a membership brunch with the theme of "The Spirit of Seventy Six" on Saturday at the home of Mrs. David Armstrong, 929 Miramar, Claremont.

New and current members are invited to attend the brunch from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Mrs. John Mason will present a program on the plans and goals for the group in the coming year. Interest groups include: Book Review, Status of Women, Fellowship, fund raising, Bridge, and Scholarship.

The estimated population of Iran is 31,837,000, made up of Iranians, Kurds and Azerbaijanis.

BPW Club will meet Thursday

The Montclair Heights Business and Professional Women's Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the music room of Suntown Convalescent Hospital, 9620 Fremont Ave., Montclair.

September has been designated as Membership Month, according to Mrs. William Carlson, president. All business women in Montclair are invited to the meeting.

The program chairman, Mrs. Arthur Fies, has arranged for a speaker from the Claremont Colleges ROTC program to discuss the role of women in today's armed forces.

Persons wishing additional information may call Mrs. Carlson, 621-4751.

Chili con carne has a romantic history

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — A robust pot warrior from the frontier past is joining the war against ever higher food prices in thousands of the nation's kitchens today.

It is chili con carne, conqueror of cheap meat cuts, all of the Southwest, and once the hot pepper courage of the poor.

There are many chili recipes, but all of them must trace their ancestry to bi-cultural city of San Antonio where the dish was born to sustain the lowly and to praise both God and Texas.

The great "bowl of red" they called it when the first padres built the first missions. Then, as today, in its primal versions, it beaded the brows of its eaters, formed dew upon upper lips, and stimulated an utterly reasonable desire among dinner partners to nibble each other ears.

San Antonio's chili, and subsequently the world's is commonly held to be a Mexican concoction. It is true that it owns a parental Mexican heritage as does the city itself. But it is folk-fact that the dish did not come north across the border. It originated in the local adobe huts or jacals of the founding mission campgrounds.

Any dates of origin are clouded, but in 1828, one J.C. Clopper, a rover from Cincinnati, came through San Antonio en route to that wiregrass emptiness which was later called Houston. He wrote at length about chili con carne. He called it a stew made by the poorer classes "with nearly as many peppers as meat."

According to Santone historians, that "stew" consisted of "bite-sized beef cooked slowly with the pulp of chili peppers, crushed oregano, ground cumin seeds and fine-chopped garlic cloves." There was debate concerning the presence or non-presence of suet.

There is always debate about chili. In some circles, the fall of the Alamo is attributed to a Mexican sniper whose lucky shot busted the last clay potful of chili in the mission fortress.

By 1840, San Antonio enjoyed a lively export trade in chili. It shipped "big red" in brick form. The brick, hard as the heart of a Mexican duena, was made of dried beef, fat, dried chili peppers and salt. It was made edible by boiling, and boiled it was whereever men travelled the long, harsh trails of the Southwest. Quite possibly, it was the predecessor of the U.S. Army's C-ration.

Obviously it was not a dish for the effete. Its basic formula had not yet been subject to all the cookery whims of innovators such as President Lyndon B. Johnson, whose Pedernales River chili included tomatoes and onions and excluded suet. The fundamental dish was certainly not chili verde con carne made with fresh green chili pepers — which really have to dry out before they can detonate. And the primal recipe did not contain sweet peppers, parsley or monosodium glutamate.

San Antonio's early export brick was probably "jailhouse chili."

Almost until the year 1900, chili was outlaw diet in nearly all the jails of the Lone Star State. It was cheap, filling, and in the hands of carcel cooks it could make cactus-fed longhorn meat at least as tender as the toughs it fed. Western lawbreakers even ranked jails by the quality of chili served behind their bars.

But the best chili, and long before there was a United States, was eaten in San Antonio by starlight or by torchflame on the city's plazas. It was served by folk-heroines called "chili queens" who doled out the "red" from clay pots to customers who sat at long wooden tables. According to memories of men still around, each "chili queen" was a lissome, sloe-eyed maiden. What else? It is better to recall heartbreak than heartburn.

And chili is a romantic dish as well as nutritious one. True enough, it can help any homemaker stretch a food budget, but it does so with guitars, with spices, and echoes of frontier passions in a time fraught with soybean burgers.

A famous San Antonio recipe known as Argyle chili makes a most courageous dish as follows. One pound each of lean beef and pork. Cut into cubes with salt, pepper and flour. Fry in bacon fat until brown. Remove from fat and fry two onions chopped with cut up green red peppers. Add flour to same fat to make gravy. Add can of tomatoes, two teaspoonfuls chili powder, one teaspoonful cumin seed. Add meat and simmer until tender. Additional water may be needed before done.

Mexican women were given the right to vote in a presidential election for the first time in 1958.

Economy meals can be made glamorous

A food expert who trains restaurant managers from around the world says that both economy and pizzaz can become "naturals" in any kitchen.

Jim Harrison, a 22-year veteran of the restaurant business and food and beverage instructor at Holiday Inn University near Memphis, Tenn., knows what it means to cook on a budget. But, he's also learned how to make economy meals look glamorous and taste like a gourmet delight.

One of Jim's favorite low-cost eyebrow-raisers is a recipe he calls Sky-High Pork Chops. Hamburgers, tuna and other economy meats can always turn into a casserole when monotony strikes, but pork chops take a bit more thought.

Be sure to buy extra-thick pork chops for this dish, planning one chop per person. Brown the meat and transfer it to a baking dish. Now you're ready to build a tower of succulent pineapple rounds, sauteed pepper and onion rings, fluffy white rice and rich tomato sauce that is guaranteed to "wow" any family and leave your grocery budget intact.

SKY HIGH PORK CHOPS

Double-thick pork chops (1 per person)
Canned pineappple rounds
Green pepper (small)
Onion (medium)
Quick-cooking rice
Condensed tomato soup

Salt, pepper and flour the pork chops and brown in skillet with small amount of cooking oil. Place browned pork chops in casserole dish. Cut onion in ¼-inch slices; saute until golden brown, place one slice on each pork chop. Top onion with one pineapple round. Top pineapple rounds with ¼-inch ring of green (bell) pepper. Secure pepper, pineapple and onion to pork chop with toothpick. Prepare rice according to package instructions, using only 2/3 of the steaming time (4 minutes). Cool. Spoon rich into a mound in each pepper ring. Prepare condensed tomato soup with ½ can milk and pour over five-layered pork chops. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Serve with chilled rose wine and green salad.

Cyclamate industry holding breath over FDA's decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials plan to decide in January whether to lift the controversial ban on the use of cyclamates as an artificial sweetener.

The decision will be an effort to end arguments spanning the last six years on whether there is a link between cyclamates and cancer in rats.

If scientists fail to establish a link, Food and Drug Administration officials say cyclamates could be used commercially in diet soft drinks and food next year.

It would take at least four months after the FDA decision to meet requirements for public comment and publication, so cyclamates would not likely appear on grocery shelves before the middle of next year.

Meanwhile, as scientists weigh new cyclamate research along with that which generated the ban in 1969, they are studying similar research which suggests a link between cancer in rats and the other major artificial sweetener, saccharine.

The FDA decision on whether to ban saccharine, the principal replacement for cyclamates in diet products, is not expected by FDA officials before 1977.

The FDA's decisions on the artificial sweeteners depend on research with animals fed extremely high doses of the chemicals — the equivalent of more than 1,000 diet soft drinks a day for a human being. These studies are being examined under rigorous standards by scientists inside and outside the FDA.

FDA officials now say highlevel Nixon administration officials rushed through the cyclamate ban in 1969 without allowing normal scrutiny of supporting research.

The debate over FDA standards and procedures concerns not only bureaucrats and scientists: production of low-calorie foods and diet soft drinks is a billion-dollar-a-year industry.

An estimated 20 million Americans drink diet sodas each day, and millions of other eat diet foods sweetened with saccharine.

The cyclamates decision awaits findings of a scientific panel working under auspices of the National Cancer Institute and reviewing all research on cyclamates and cancer in animals.

FDA officials say privately the panel's decision, due in January, will be adopted by FDA.

In preparation for that report, the FDA is trying to decide related issues, such as whether the chemical can cause organ damage.

Even with a decision finding there is no cancer link, FDA sources say some limits may be imposed on the possible future use of cyclamates, perhaps like the present but little-known one-gram-a-day-a-person limit on the use of saccharine.

If the panel concludes cyclamates cause cancer, the chemical will remain banned.

If the panel fails to reach a conclusion, the FDA still will make a decision, FDA sources say.

"Whereas we have to make a decision, scientists don't feel the same kind of necessity," said one official.

More than three years ago, the FDA commissioned a committee at the National Academy of Sciences to review all saccharine research much as the cancer institute panel is now studying the cyclamate research. Late last year, that panel concluded it could not decide whether saccharine causes cancer in rats.

The National Academy of Sciences panel recommended, and the FDA agreed, that a decision should wait until a comprehensive series of studies by the Canadian government on saccharine is completed about 18 months from now.

Saccharine, which is 300 times sweeter than sugar, has been in use since 1879, and cyclamates — 30 times sweeter than sugar — have been used since 1944. Both have been subjects of research for years.

Before 1969, both chemicals were studied by various National Academy of Sciences panels and by outside researchers. Most of these studies suggested that some limit be imposed on the daily intake of these sweeteners, but a limit high enough to permit considerable consumption of diet soft drinks.

On Oct. 13, 1969, the FDA was told that a study by an independent laboratory under contract to Abbott Laboratories Inc. showed bladder tumors in four of 240 rats fed a combination of 10 parts cyclamate and one part saccharine as part of their diet.

Five days later, after a hurried series of meetings with officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the rushed meeting of a National Academy of Sciences committee, cyclamates were banned.

"The decision went somewhat around the FDA ... It did not receive the kind of staff work that these kinds of problems usually receive," said Richard Ronk, head of the FDA division of food and color additives.

For several reasons, there now are serious questions about basing such a major decision on the tests by Dr. Bernard Oser. The test was not designed to detect cancer-causing activity and was not designed to conclude anything about an individual chemical.

Dessert secret is in sauce

The success of a meal is often determined by the dessert . . . since it's the last thing eaten. And often the unique and elegant desserts that come to your rescue are comparatively simple to prepare and serve.

Rhine Butter Sauce makes just such a dessert.

Made with imported German white wine from the Rhine valley, the sauce reflects the characteristics for which German wines have long been known . . . light, fruity bouquet and soft, refreshing flavor.

Rhine Butter Sauce turns ordinary pound cake into a gourmet dessert. And, when served as a dip for fresh strawberries, it provides a truly elegant ending to any dinner.

Creamy and rich, Rhine Butter Sauce can be made in advance and stores well in the refrigerator for several weeks.

A perfect complement to this new dessert is Sekt, the sparkling wine from Germany, which embodies the same fruity, full flavor found in all German wines.

RHINE BUTTER SAUCE

2 whole eggs
2 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
2/3 cup Rhine wine
½ pound butter, melted

In top of double boiler, beat eggs, egg yolks, and sugar until thick, 3 to 5 minutes. Slowly beat in wine and butter and continue beating until blended. Then place over simmering water and cook and stir until thickened. This will take about 10 to 15 minutes. Cool. Serve as a sauce over pound cake or fruit or as a dip for cookies or fresh fruits.

Apple polishers getting big crop to work on

A bumper crop of apples is ripening in orchards across the nation and the large supplies should mean lower retail prices for the fruit through the coming year.

The Agricultural Marketing Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture predicted that this year's apple crop will be almost 174 million 42-pound boxes, an increase of 13 per cent over last year.

While bad weather has threatened harvests of other crops, from corn to onions, the apple growers have been lucky.

"This year it just seems everyone had good weather," a USDA spokesman said.

Authorities in the state of Washington, the country's top producer, expect a fresh apple crop 19 per cent larger than last year's; growers in New York State, the second largest producer, say they should harvest their biggest crop in half a century.

James Garlik, assistant commissioner of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, said more of the 1975 crop than usual would probably be sold for eating fresh, because many of the big apple processors have supplies left from last year.

"The price of apples for the consumer is going down some and the quality is going to be up," Garlik said.

The Washington State Apple Commission said the average price of a bushel of apples (equal to 42 pounds) was $7.50 at the wholesale level for fruit from the 1974-75 crop. They expect the average wholesale price for the 1975-76 crop to be about $6 a bushel, a drop of 20 per cent.

That does not necessarily mean a 20 per cent drop in the price consumers pay, however. Transportation, packaging, labor and storage costs all add to the bill. USDA figures show that in the fourth quarter of 1974, apples were selling at about 31 cents a pound. The farm value was a little more than a dime.

The New York-New England Apple Institute in Westfield, Mass., said consumers should expect to pay about 79 or 89 cents for a three-pound bag of apples in stores this fall. Prices will be higher later in the season because the apples being sold will reflect storage costs.

"One of the big costs of storage is electricity and you know where those costs are," said Robert Goldman of the Connecticut Department of Agriculture.

The large crop also is expected to cut prices of items made from apples. Irving Silverman, an Easton, Conn., orchard owner, said that cider, which was selling for up to $2 a gallon last year, may drop to $1.50 a gallon this year.

While consumers may cheer the lower prices, the size of the apple crop is causing a few problems for growers. In some areas there is not enough labor to pick the crop. And officials in New York expressed concern that low prices paid to farmers might put some of the state's 1,300 apple growers out of business.

The USDA says the average American ate almost 26 pounds of apples last year. Almost 16 pounds were eaten fresh. The rest were consumed frozen, dehydrated, in the form of juice or as applesauce.

Chicken casserole —freedom

These crisp edged days of fall are so activity-packed we feel we are on a time budget. In fact, even our informal entertaining is dominated with casserole cookery. Dishes of this kind release you from the stay-home-and-cook syndrome. Such a one is this intriguing Dutch - influenced frozen hash browns and bread cubes stuffing with chicken. Prepare it early and join the crowd at the game.

This casserole has a lot to offer. The combination of a traditional potato and bread stuffing is updated with the deft readiness of frozen hash browns. For a quick thaw of the potatoes, put them in a strainer. Pour boiling water over them and drain immediately. Let stand for fifteen to twenty minutes. Then separate and add to the bread cubes, cut and toasted while the potatoes thawed. This seasoned mixture forms the base for chicken breasts that bake right along with the stuffing. If the casserole must stand for a while, cover it with aluminum foil to keep it moist.

Now as every hostess knows, conversations at this time of the year are dominated by sports. And the excitement of instant individual re-plays can keep dinner in a holding pattern longer than planned. There's no problem with this casserole. Just go ahead and ready the tossed green salad and heat the herb-buttered bread. Then, as your guests wander to the table, bring the casserole right from the oven.

CHICKEN WITH DUTCH POTATO STUFFING

1 package (12 ounces) frozen shredded hash browns
8 slices day-old white bread
½ cup butter or margarine
4 half breasts of chicken, skinned and boned
1½ cups chopped celery stalks and leaves
1 cup fresh frozen chopped onions
1 (10¾ ounce) can condensed chicken broth
2 teaspoons ground or whole celery seed
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup chopped parsley
2 slices bacon

Thaw and separate potatoes. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Toast bread lightly and cut into half-inch cubes to measure 5 cups. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a Dutch oven. Add chicken breasts and brown slowly for about 5 minutes, turning once. Remove chicken and keep warm.

Melt remaining butter in the Dutch oven. Add celery and onion and saute 3 minutes. Add potatoes, toss lightly and cook 2 minutes longer. Add broth, celery seed, salt and pepper. Heat to boiling. Remove from heat and add toasted bread cubes and parsley. Toss well to blend.

Turn into a shallow 1½-quart baking dish. Arrange chicken on top, pushing lightly into stuffing. Cut bacon slices in halves crosswise, and place one piece on each chicken breast. Bake for 25 to 30 minutes, until bacon is crisp and chicken tender. Makes 4 servings.

Hard boiled

If you hard-cook an egg in the shell too long or at too high a temperature you may find that there is a dark layer between the yolk and the white when the egg is shelled.

Industry worried by FDA

"The decision to select out cyclamates was not justified because of the combination of substances under test," Oser told the cancer institute panel as it reviewed his study in July.

On saccharine, the FDA was told in late 1971 that a Wisconsin study found that four of 40 rats fed a very high dose — equal to about 1,000 diet soft drinks a day — developed bladder tumors.

The FDA response was to slap the gram-a-day limit on saccharine consumption — about seven soft drinks — and ask the national academy for an evaluation of the research.

Various critics have contended that the cyclamate ban was a hasty decision.

"It was an emotional, almost irrational decision," said one food industry official who asked not to be identified.

Others disagree.

"They had no choice. . . at the time, the studies showed definite carcinogenicity," says Gilbert Goldhammer, consultant to the subcommittee of the House Government Operations Committee that oversees the FDA.

Abbott — once a major producer of cyclamates — asked the FDA in 1973 to allow the sweetener back on the market.

The FDA asked the cancer institute for the panel to evaluate all the available research.

The study by Oser as well as more recent research by the FDA staff is undergoing careful scrutiny. The FDA study — of both saccharine and cyclamates — detected no tumors in the rats fed cyclamates, but did find tumors in eight of the 96 rats fed saccharine.

But the national academy panel said it found that the FDA study did not prove that saccharine is linked to cancer — because of the failure of the study to meet some of the stiff standards the committee set.

Ralph Nader's Health Research Group has sharply criticized the FDA for not moving on saccharine.

"The FDA lost its guts after the cyclamates issue," says Anita Johnson of the Nader organization.

But Ronk, whose division is responsible for the upcoming decisions on both artificial sweeteners, disagreed.

"It is a legal requirement that the FDA try to settle contentious arguments between scientists," he said. "It's a diffficult problem to solve."

The oversight committee aide, Goldhammer, accuses the FDA of favoring the industry.

"There is foot-dragging ... They are more concerned with protecting the product than the users," Goldhammer said.

Ronk replied to such criticism, "We have a strong responsibility to be equitable under the law."

"A single result in one person's laboratory is not the final word."

Japan fishing boat captured

TOKYO (AP) — A patrol boat believed to be North Korean captured a 50-ton Japanese fishing boat in the northern part of the Yellow Sea today after killing one of the nine crewmen and seriously wounding another, the Maritime Safety Agency reported.

Educated, trained refugees have it rough finding work

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Because of language and other barriers, many well-trained and well-educated Vietnamese refugees living in the Minneaplis-St. Paul area are having little success in finding jobs comparable to those they held in their native land.

A judge who sought work was asked if he knows how to weld. A skilled ear, nose and throat specialist was unable to find work in any metropolitan area hospital. A former teacher is doing piecemeal sewing in her home for $3 an hour.

Most of the 1,000 Vietnam refugees who resettled in the area have good educations and training. Their plight in finding suitable jobs was related recently at a job seminar organized by the Vietnamese American Association of Minnesota (VAA).

"In this room are people with three and four degrees who are out fixing hamburgers," said Guy Wegener, a labor relations representative of Red Owl supermarkets.

Wegener said that as far as' the job market goes, many companies have affirmative action only "on paper."

Energy in off-coast hot spots

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Super-heated water and steam trapped off Texas' Gulf Coast could help solve the nation's energy problems, the U.S. Geological Survey says.

The government agency, in a report issued this week, said water and steam under great pressure off the coast contain dissolved methane and natural gas.

The report said there are several places off the country's shores where high temperatures are found close enough to the surface to permit water and steam tapping. But most of the other areas don't have the natural gas advantage found off Texas, the survey said.

That gas could be "a valuable by-product if sufficient quantities are present," the survey said.

Scientists involved in the study said if the geothermal energy available to this country is fully utilized, the hot water and steam could produce 42,000 megawatts of electricity continuously for 100 years.

That estimate was based on geothermal energy recoverable at present cost levels to twice present cost levels, the study said.

Current U.S. capacity for electrical production from all sources is 400,000 megawatts, the researchers said.

The researchers said their estimates are preliminary because relatively little is known about the size of geothermal systems, temperatures and potential.

The survey said just under 10 per cent of the geothermal resource estimate can be tapped now, but improved techniques could make the entire resource base accessible.

Scientists said other deposits of water and steam at somewhat lower temperatures — at or just above boiling — also are present off U.S. coasts. They said such cooler deposits "have potentially great usefulness for non-electrical purposes such as space heating and industrial processes."

Scientists from the Energy Research and Development Administration assisted the U.S. Geological Survey in making the geothermal estimates.

Mountain lion needs a home

ESCONDIDO (AP) — The Humane Society has a mountain lion named Bogie they'd like to part with.

If they can't give him away pretty soon, they say they'll have to destroy him.

The four-year-old lion was captured three weeks ago in Riverside County after it attacked an elderly man.

Society director Bill Huskey said the mountain lion is a "very endangered species" and the society will donate Bogie to 'a bonafide organization' able to care for it."

But the San Diego Zoo, San Diego Wild Animal Park and a number of national parks already have turned thumbs down on Bogie and time may be running out.

"This cat is definitely on death row," said Huskey.

Segregation isn't licked yet, integrationists say

By Dolores Barclay
Associated Press Writer

Those long involved in fighting for integration see as much school segregation today as 21 years ago when the Supreme Court declared separate facilities for black and white students unconstitutional.

The civil rights leaders, interviewed recently about the status of school integration, said the nation still faces an uphill struggle to fully integrate southern public schools and end de facto segregation in the North. They added, however, that the quality of education for southern black children has improved slightly.

"We certainly do not have integrated schools," said Dr. Kenneth Clark, a retired City University of New York psychology professor.

Clark, who testified in the 1954 Brown vs. Topeka Board of Education case in which the Supreme Court ruled "separate but equal" schools inherently unequal, distinguished between desegregated schools and integrated ones.

Legal Mandate Needed

Desegregated schols require only a legal mandate, he said, adding that the South now provides good examples of desegregated schools.

Integrated schools require psychological, social and human concerns so that race becomes a positive factor in learning, Clark said. The best examples of integregated schools are private schools in the North, he said.

Dr. Martin Deutsch, a professor of early childhood education at New York Universty who worked with Clark in preparing for the Brown case, said the number of schools that have become integrated since 1954 "is not that significant."

It is difficult to tell how many schools remain segregated since most integration suits are against school districts, not individual schools. According to the U.S. Office of Civil Rights, a federal suit was filed against districts in 17 southern and border states in 1973 and another suit was filed last month against districts in 33 southern and northern states.

James Farmer, a founder of the Congress of Racial Equality and now president of the Council on Minority Planning and Strategy, noted at least one reason school integration has not come about.

"In the early '60s, it was assumed that if we could get black children into those classrooms that were largely white, they would have a higher quality education, because white parents had more political and economic power," he said.

It didn't work, Farmer said, because white parents took their children out of public school and sent them to private schools, some of which, in the South, were created just to avoid integration.

Last year in Summerton, S.C., for example, three white children attended public schools with an enrollment of about 2,000, while more than 400 whites attended the private Clarendon Hall Academy.

Economic Factors

Clark noted, however, that the number of white youngsters in such academies is decreasing "because of largely financial factors."

"White parents are no longer able to afford private academies for racial reasons," he said.

Enmeshed in the integration problem is the question of whether the quality of education has improved since schools became desegregated.

Those interviewed, conceding it was difficult to measure, said that learning in the United States has deteriorated over the past two decades but that southern black youngsters had been given an educational boost.

"In terms of the miserable conditions before the (Brown) decision, the basic quality of education for black children has improved," Deutsch said.

"It is undoubtably better," agreed Winifred Green, director of the American Friends Service Committee's Southeast Education Program in Atlanta, Ga.

"Prior to 1965, there was no federal aid of any significance to elementary and secondary education" in southern schools, she said. "But since Title 1 and other programs, there's been more money. It has improved the quality of education, and that goes hand and hand with desegregation."

Miss Green said she went to all-white public schools in her native Jackson, Miss., before desegregation. "Now the quality of education is so much better than when I went through those schools," she said.

But still more needs to be done, those interviewed said.

Textbook Alteration

Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, pointed to the need to alter textbooks so they are not designed with only white youngsters in mind.

And Farmer saw a major problem in the residential patterns of northern cities that have resulted in segregated schools.

"De jure segregation, that is, segregation based on state and local law, is almost over, but it was replaced by de facto segregation, segregation based on residency," he said.

Efforts to overcome residence patterns by school busing have met with hostility, and Clark said that type of hostility is a good reason for integration of schools.

"People who are educated under a racially homogeneous situation are contaminated by racism and will seek to perpetuate the racism that contaminated them," he said.

In the Brown case, he added, most of the arguments were made in terms of the academic retardation of black youngsters. This might have been a mistake, he said.

"We should have made equally clear not only the academic, but the moral and ethical retardation of white children under segregation in a multiracial world," he said.

Short-order cook cooks 111 hours

PITTSBURG, Kan. (AP) Peggy Snider's cooking will put another category into the Guinness Book of World Records.

A short-order cook for 16 years, she launched her record setting effort at 6 a.m. Thursday over the griddle of an all-night restaurant. Except for one five-minute break, she cooked continuously for 111 hours until 9 p.m. Monday.

A mother of three children, Peggy had hoped to continue until 9 a.m. Tuesday, but she was forced to quit when friends became concerned that her feet, ankles and legs were swelling.

She not only chalked up a record but also became the first to record such a record for nonstop cooking.

"You can do it if you put your mind to it," she said.

Teacher given probation for murder plot

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — A teacher who pleaded no contest to soliciting the murder of her husband has been placed on three years' probation and ordered to spend 200 hours in a work-service program.

San Bernardino Superior Court Judge Roy Chapman also directed recently that Margaret Eckard seek psychiatric care.

Mrs. Eckard, 47, a Colton teacher, offered an undercover sheriff's detective $1,500 last March to kill her husband, court records showed. The couple was undergoing divorce proceedings at the time.

Oil-rich Nigeria finding that money doesn't buy paradise

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — "This nation is being strngled by its own prosperity. It's like a newly wealthy man switching from a meager diet to a rich one. His arteries start clogging up and he is in danger of suffering heart failure."

The African diplomat was bewailing the endless frustrations and complications of life in the capital city of Black Africa's richest and most populous nation.

As he talked, a nose-to-tail stream of cars inched its way along the road outside. In the sea lanes leading to Nigeria's most important port in Lagos more than 280 ships, laden with commodities essential for Nigeria's existence and growth, queued for berths. Many have been waiting for two or three months.

In the crowded, vibrant streets of the city, a new breed of Nigerian entrepreneur who has managed to cash in on the nation's massive oil wealth rubs shoulders with peanut vendors and impoverished inhabitants of shanty towns who are finding it daily more difficult to make ends meet as the cost of living soars.

There are constant shortages of milk, gasoline, beer and other items of daily life here despite the fact that last year Nigeria earned $8.8 billion dollars from oil.

Lagos is not entirely representative of life in the rest of the country. But it is here that the dreams, aspirations and fears of the nation crystallize. And over the past few months many residents of the capital have been predicting that something had to give.

Late last month their forecasts came true. As he attended the organization of African Unity summit in Uganda, Gen. Yakabu Gowon was ousted as Nigerian head of state. After nine years of uninterrupted power he was toppled by a handful of dissatisfied brigadiers and colonels who no longer felt he had the authority or capacity to rule.

The new military rilers, headed by 38-year-old Brig. Murtala Muhammed, charged that he had become isolated from the people and was allowing the direction of state affairs to drift to such an extent that the nation's 65-70 million people were again threatened by "bloodshed and chaos."

Ironically it was Gowon himself who faced a far more dangerous situation when he became Nigeria's new leader in July 1966. Earlier that year an army coup toppled the politicins who had unevenly ruled Nigeria in the six years since it achieved independence from Britain.

In the counter-coup that followed Gowon emerged as compromise leader of a country torn by tribal animosities and headed straight for civil war.

Faced with the secession of southeastern Biafra, which contained most of Nigeria's vast reserves of oil, Gowon mobilized a 200,000-man army which over three years of bitter fighting crushed the rebels. He likened his role to that of President Abraham Lincoln during the American Civil War.

His stature as an even-handed leader was further enhanced after the war by the magnanimity with which he treated the defeated Biafrans. Amnesty was the order of the day.

Nigeria is a conglomeration of some 250 often quarrelsome tribal groupings, divided by religion and culture.

The arid, windswept north is predominantly Moslem, but Christians predominate in the tropical south. Other Nigerians follow their traditional religious customs.

It was Gowon's repeatedly stated desire to weld them irrevocably into one nation. Even his critics agree that he laid the foundations.

Part of the key to his success was Nigerian oil. Fueled by international increases in oil prices, Nigerian coffers were flooded by foreign exchange. Last year earnings from oil quadrupled to about $8.8 billion.

In the United States, Nigerian oil made from 25 to 30 per cent share of the imported fuel. But this year falling demand for oil worldwide is expected to cut Nigerian revenues by some $2 billion.

It was the spurt in oil revenues that earlier this year allowed Gowon to award massive pay hikes to civil servants and also launch an ambitious $48 billion, five-year development program. It was designed to create an industrial revolution, boost stagnant agriculture towards self-sufficiency and open up equal opportunities for all Nigerians. When he launched the plan Gowon said he wanted to remove "want in the midst of plenty."

But the pay increases, ranging from 30 to 130 per cent, sparked a series of strikes for similar awards in the private sector, which were met under government pressure.

Yet at least 90 per cent of the nation, reliant on a hand-to-mouth existence from the land, derived little benefit.

As the minority went on spending spree, inflation soared from 13 to more than 30 per cent.

In Lagos a tin of milk shot up in price from 15 to 30 cents and a packet of sugar from 20 to 32 cents. Similar increases were recorded around the nation.

In addition, as newspapers here have been pointing out in the past week, disillusionment with Gowon's government was further accentuated by a string of broken promises.

These included undertakings to return Nigeria to civilian rule next year, to replace or reshuffle Nigeria's governors then under fire for corruption, and to create new states to make the existing 12 more representative of local aspirations.

The new rulers have made it clear that dissatisfaction with Gowon's leadership of the armed forces together with what they considered his indecision over general affairs of state triggered the coup. What is not yet clear is whether a group of disgruntled colonels acted first and later brought in the brigadiers or whether all acted in concert.

The new head of state, Muhammed, his number two, Brig. Olusegun Obansanjo, and new External Affairs Commissioner (Minister) Col. Joseph Garba were all close to Gowon. This makes it appear that to some extent at least the coup was a "palace revolution."

Any initial fears that Nigerians may have had that the coup was a grab for power by northern tribesmen have been dissipated by Muhammed's decision to annul the results of the 1973 census and to include a wide spectrum of regional representatives in the supreme military council and among the governors.

The army promised a "new direction for the nation," and most Nigerians welcomed Gowon's removal. They are biding their time, however, before embracing the new rulers.

One Nigerian summed the situation up this way: "We are in the position of a man sitting back with his arms folded. We are awaiting events. We very much want the best for our country. We hope the new military rulers will not let us down. We hope they will overcome the crisis of rising expectations and unfulfilled desires."

A prince's royal repast on a pauper's budget

Things a little rough at the castle these days? What's that you say, the budget is so tight that you had to let the cook go and last month you couldn't even afford algacide for the moat? Fear not!

Two new recipes from the R. T. French Company in Rochester, New York will help you prepare a royal repast on a budget before you can say, "lower the drawbridge!"

Million Dollar Meatballs are adapted from a favorite Greek recipe. Spinach and cheese combine flavorfully to stretch the meat. The special sauce for the perfect Grecian touch is quickly stirred together with an envelope of brown gravy mix and a hint of tangy lemon. Served over piping hot noodles, Million Dollar Meatballs are truly fit for a king.

For those days when your knight in shining armor returns home from the wars earlier than expected, Meatball Chowder is the answer. No need to brown the meatballs. Simply add them to the hearty potato chowder which you make with packaged scalloped potatoes. This filling chowder is ready in just half an hour.

Serve either recipe with cole slaw, cornbread and milk with fresh fruit and coffee for dessert.

MILLION DOLLAR MEATBALLS

2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup soft bread crumbs
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 package (10-ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed
1 pound ground beef
3 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 envelope (¾-ounces) brown gravy mix
Cooked noodles
1 pound ground beef

Combine eggs, crumbs, and cheese in mixing bowl. Drain spinach well; add with beef to egg mixture and mix lightly. Shape into meatballs. Brown in fat in large skillet; pour off excess fat. Stir in 1¼ cups water, lemon juice, and contents of gravy mix envelope. Simmer, uncovered, 15 to 20 minutes or until meatballs are cooked. Serve with noodles. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

MEATBALL CHOWDER

1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
1 pound ground beef
1 package (5⅝-ounces) scalloped potatoes
1 package (10-ounces) frozen mixed vegetables, partially thawed
1 cup undiluted evaporated milk

Combine egg, crumbs and salt. Add ground beef; mix lightly. Shape into small meatballs. Combine seasoning mix from package of potatoes with 5 cups water in large pan; bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Add potato slices and meatballs. Cover and simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add vegetables; simmer 10 minutes longer, until tender. Stir in milk; heat gently. Makes 6 servings.

In summer, relax and enjoy life

Summer means different things to different people. However to many it does mean fun in the sun and "beaching" it whether at a lake, river, ocean or pool. The over-all atmosphere of the summer season is casual and relaxed. This same atmosphere should carry through to mealtime and "steamers" provide a quick, easy and delicious summer meal.

Clams steamed in beer are a great meal-time treat. The mellow brew not only flavors the clam itself but also deliciously seasons the broth in which the clam is dipped.

Homemade cole slaw with a bear-seasoned dressing is a natural accompaniment are pitchers of ice cold beer.

CLAMS STEAMED IN BEER

4 dozen soft shell clams in shell
Salt and pepper
1½ teaspoons seafood seasoning
¾ cup beer
Melted butter or margarine

Wash clams thoroughly and place in pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and seafood seasoning. Add beer, cover and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and steam approximately 15 minutes or until shells open wide. Drain clams and reserve liquid. Strain liquid. Serve hot clams in shell with a bowl of clam liquid and melted butter or margarine for dipping. Serves 4.

BEER COLE SLAW

1 medium head cabbage
½ cup beer
1 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
1 teaspoon vinegar
Paprika

Shred cabbage. In separate bowl mix all ingredients, except paprika. Toss cabbage with dressing. When ready to serve, sprinkle with paprika.

Ocean ridge

The Mid-Ocean Ridge is a continuous underwater mountain chain that winds through all the world's ocean basins. A major portion of the Mid-Ocean Ridge is the 12,000-mile long Mid-Atlantic Ridge, lying almost halfway between North America and Europe. Here violent volcanic eruptions occur and molten rock constantly wells up through the rift as the floor of the Atlantic spreads outward, carrying Europe and North America aparty by nearly an inch a year.

BLACKBERRY CREAM PUFFS

This filling for cream puffs has the fragrance and tang of the exotic blackberry. The puffs may be made ahead of time and filled just before serving to keep them tender and dry. To make the filling, dissolve a 3-ounce package of blackberry gelatin in 1 cup boiling water. Stir in 1 cup cold water and chill until slightly thickened. Fold in 1 cup heavy cream, whipped and chill until firm. To serve, stir the filling until smooth. Remove the tops of the puffs, and spoon 1/3rd cup of filling into each one. Replace tops. A sprinkling of confectioners sugar on top of each completed cream puff gives a professional touch.

This special cookie for Jewish holidays

As September gives way to October, Jews throughout the world celebrate Succoth or Feast of the Tabernacles.

The word succoth (variously spelled Sukkoh, Succos, Sukka, etc.) means small huts and is a reminder of the primitive dwellings in which ancient Jews lived during a 40-year period of wandering in the wilderness. Succoth or Feast of the Tabernacles might well be regarded as the Jews' counterpart to the Pilgrims' Thanksgiving: It celebrates the autumn fruit harvest as it reminds one of the wandering Jews of long ago.

As on most holidays, traditional food is served. Mandelbrot, a crispy, crunchy almond cookie redolent in this version with cinnamon, orange and lemon, seems perfect with fresh pears or fruit compotes. Sliced pears, apples, grapes and oranges — splashed with a little wine, if you wish — make a delightful combination of fresh fruits to serve with Mandelbrot.

When you taste Mandelbrot, you'll know this is not a once-a-year recipe. Your family and friends will enjoy these cookies no matter what the occasion or season.

Note that two bakings are required. Do the first baking a day or so ahead, if you wish, and store the cookies in the refrigerator or freezer; then give them the final baking shortly before serving.

MANDELBROT

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
½ cup vegetable oil
1 teaspoon almond or vanilla extract
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 tablespoon grated fresh orange rind
1 teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind
3 cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup slivered almonds
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons sugar

In a large mixing bowl, beat eggs until thick and lemon-colored. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add oil slowly while continuing to beat. Mix in extract, orange juice, orange and lemon rinds. Sift together flour, salt and baking powder, then mix with almonds. Add to egg and sugar mixture, about 1/3rd at a time, mixing well.

For easier handling, chill dough several hours or overnight. Turn out onto a well-floured board; dip your hands in flour, then knead about a dozen turns. Divide dough into two or three pieces and pat each into strips about 3 inches wide, 1 inch thick and about 10 to 12 inches long.

Place strips on well-oiled and floured shallow baking pan (10½" x 15½" x 1" is a good size). Bake at 350 degrees 40 to 45 minutes or until golden brown. Remove at once to board and while still warm cut with a serrated knife into ½ inch slices. Let slices cool; re-arrange on baking pan, turning in their sides. Sprinkle with mixture of cinnamon and sugar and bake at 400 degrees until delicately browned. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

Medi-Cal bill vetoed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has vetoed legislation to give aged Medi-Cal recipients one free physical examination per year.

In his veto message Monday, Brown said Medi-Cal recipients 62 and older are already entitled to two medical visits a month "at which time their doctor may diagnose, examine and prescribe whatever is needed…."

Assemblyman Lawrence Kapiloff, D-San Diego, sponsored the bill.

Added Brown: "I have concluded that the additional benefit provided in this bill cannot be justified."

It is AB 342.

Wildlife refuge grant clears state Senate

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation to provide $900,000 for the purchase of Madrona Marsh for a wildlife refuge and public park in Torrance has cleared the state Senate.

The 27-0 vote Monday approving Assembly amendments sent the measure to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Sen. Robert Stevens, R-Los Angeles, said the bill involves 54 acres of the marsh and noted that the Assembly amendments appropriate State Beach, Park, Recreational and Historical Facilities Fund of 1964 money to the Department of Parks and Recreation.

The Senate last June passed the bill to appropriate the money from the state Environmental Protection Program Fund.

"It may turn out the money may not be there, and if so, we'll look elsewhere," Stevens said.

The money would be passed along to the city by the Department of Parks and Recreation during the next three fiscal years.

Assembly amendments also prevent the Madrona Marsh allocation unless money from the same fund is available to purchase Baldwin Hills Regional Park.

Stevens and Ralph Dills, D-Gardena, are Senate authors of the legislation.

It is SB 431.

Iron Age

The Iron Age is usually considered by archaeologists to be a period of some centuries immediately following the time when iron began to replace bronze as the principal material for implements and weapons.

Poet Beulah Bell publishes at 88

MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP) — Poet Beulah Bell first broke into print with a protest song. Now, after a 57-year hiatus, she's publishing again.

"The first thing I wrote of any note was in '18," the 88-year-old black woman says. "It was a protest song during the war. I called it the 'Negro Soldier Blues.'"

Unlike most latter day war-protest songs, this one was for fighting — and the right of blacks to do some of it. Then 32, Mrs. Bell dashed off the eight-verse song after the U.S. Army refused to induct her brother for World War I. It was a time, the song notes, for setting people free at home and abroad.

Renamed "The Friendly Adjutant-Protest Song," it's among 60 pieces published in "Two Roads," a 75-page, softbound volume Mrs. Bell paid to have printed.

"I can't take it with me," she says. "It don't cost too much. I guess I'll make it back."

Sales, she says, are going rather well. Copies are distributed through area groceries and drugstores.

Divided into sections titled Sacred, Young Love, Family and Patriotic, her poems reflect her rural heritage with homespun language, simple rhythm and often a touch of earthy humor.

Born in Cape Girardeau, Mo., Mrs. Bell attended school through the ninth grade and made education her profession.

"I studied up on some subjects so I could pass the teachers' exam and I taught school," she said. "That was about 1907 I guess."

"It was a country school down at Rock Ledge. If somebody didn't take me in a horse and buggy I'd have to ride a freight train, in the caboose. Some very amusing things happened."

There was the time, she says, she was chased to class by a pack of wild hogs, something which seems funnier now than it did at the time.

Later she married and moved to Mount Vernon where she was active in the church, the school and civil rights efforts. She organized the forerunner of the local PTA and reared two children. Through the years she continued writing as a hobby.

"I had to go on the state when I was a little older, when my husband and son passed," she says. A welfare caseworker noticed a stack of her poems on a table one day and encouraged her to see an outlet.

"I had quite a few poems piled up by that time," she says. "That must have been along about '64."

A deal with a New York publisher fell through "but I didn't stop at that," she says.

NEW TASTE IN BURGERS

For a slightly crunchy, extra-special taste, serve hamburgers between toasted halves of English muffins. Besides texture, English muffins provide a unique flavor that enhances foods served with them. Pictured here are 3 of the attractive and tasty ways to garnish muffin burgers. At left, strips of mozzarella cheese are criss-crossed over the burger and topped with pimiento-stuffed olive slices and parmesan cheese. In center, the burger is topped with French fried onion rings, catsup and a dollop of roquefort cheese. The burger at right sports a slice of cheddar cheese, a slice of fresh tomato and 2 raw onion rings.

Norway keeps rein on oil field boom

OSLO, Norway (AP) — In five years Norway will be one of the world's major petroleum exporters. But the country has chosen to bridle the bonanza, and get rich as slowly and gracefully as it can.

A blend of practicality, idealism and righteousness will hold down production, limit explortion and keep a very tight rein on how much of the expected profits of $3 billion a year are sluiced back into the economy once the oil production target level is reached in 1980.

Some Norwegians, including Finance and Foreign Ministry officials, have said that their approach, rejecting quick growth and profits, could serve as an example to the West. Others, less inclined to give lessons, say Norway is acting the only way it can to avoid drowning in its oil wealth.

The riches are these: with barely 20 per cent of its continental shelf explored, Norway will be producing 630 million barrels of oil a year by 1980. The figure is a self-imposed limit, which will be six times Norway's own needs, and about 10 per cent of Western Europe's projected consumption.

In the area of initial production, in the North Sea below the 62nd Parallel, the Ministry of Industry has estimated that Norway's reserves put it on a par with Venezuela and Algeri. Although the government has been extremely cautious on estimates of how much oil could be found above the 62nd Parallel, where test drilling will begin in 1977, some experts say there is likely to be three or four times as much as below and others have projected that the reserves could be as great as the entire Middle East.

"We could be going very much faster and we've been criticized about our selfishness by some people," said Trade Minister Einar Magnussen in an interview. "Of course there could be much more exploration and much more drilling. We haven't run computer projection on exactly on how rich we could get how fast. But it's obvious. The problem is' of course, that we'd tear our society apart in the process."

The Norwegians see their new wealth as a threat to the traditional areas of activity, like fishing and farming, that they consider socially important. The difficulty comes because Norway, with a population of four million, has had only 0.8 unemployment in 1975 and new jobs would pull people away from the fishing boats and farms and tend to depopulate the north of the country.

At its peak, the oil industry will employ about 30,000 people. Magnussen says it is not the industry itself but spending the profits that provides the danger because government projections show that for every $230 million put into public improvements 19,000 new jobs are created.

This would be more jobs than people available, and would not only strt drain on fishing and farming, but probably take workers out of the textile and furniture industries and kill their competitiveness.

Norway could import foreign workers, but the official position is that the country does not want to import anyone to turn them into a second-class citizen. There is also no small amount of unspoken racism involved in bringing in workers from southern Europe and North Africa.

With its employment dilemma, Norway will hold down its revenues, spending half of the yearly profits of $3 billion in private consumption, a quarter in the public field, with the rest going into paying debts and making foreign investments.

Since the oil is expected to last between 100 and 150 years, the foreign investments will provide future wealth without directly involving the Norwegian economy.

The relatively slow pace will also let Norwegians take over virtually all the expert jobs in the oil industry, many of which have been held by Americans, Britons and Frenchmen.

The idealism and righteousness that have also contributed to the get-rich-slowly approach complement the practical sides. They are exemplified in statements like these:

Magnussen: "We have always lived on the outskirts of Europe and have felt we're not so much a part of things. Norwegian people want cars and television sets, but they also talk more about the country. They want to protect it. The people think our pace is the right one. The idea of keeping the country together is not an abstract one. Nor is the idea of not endangering the environment — we really utilize it in our daily lives."

Anders Sjaastad, information director of the Norwegian Foreign Policy Institute: "Since we had a great deal of hydroelectric power, the oil question was put into a broader perspective here than it might have been elsewhere. We talked more about its disadvantags than the money, perhaps. And the question was asked again and again 'why should we rush to get rich?'"

But there has been criticism of the government's approach, although the polls give it 60 per cent approval. Trouble in the shipbuilding industry, partially attenuated because the biggest shipbuilders have gotten into the construction of oil rigs, has led to some calls to speed things up. Resistance among fishermen in the north, fearing pollution, is dying down and fears of turning society upside down seem to be lessening as well.

Yet there are people who say Norway has sold out entirely and the rush of oil and money is too great. Lars Lyland, general secretary of the Liberal party, believes the program will bring more problems than Norway needs.

"We still have the chance to show everyone how you can have a less mercantile, less materialistic society. We can still use our brains and not be overwhelmed. We can spread the oil out over many generations and give a quarter of the revenue to the underdeveloped world. We're going much too fast."

It is estimated that 29.6 million Americans are disabled.

Take advantage of fall vegetable bounty

There's a nip in the air and color in the trees and country farm stands abound with fall produce. Baskets overflowing with fruits and vegetables remind us of the goodness waiting to grace our tables.

Make vegetables an important part of your fall menu plans. From soup to desserts, vegetables add variety and great eating pleasure to family meals.

Many doctors are recommending that we eat more vegetables, fruits and whole grain cereals and reduce our intake of fatty meats. Such modifications in eating habits are advised in order to reduce intake of cholesterol and saturated fat and thus help lower blood cholesterol levels. So there is another good reason for enjoying your vegetables!

In keeping with this philosophy of sensible eating, you can use a polyunsaturated margarine in all your cooking to help further reduce saturated fat and cholesterol intake.

The recipes here demonstrate the versatility and delectable flavor of fresh vegetables. Creamed Spinach Soup is a lovely way to start dinner on a crisp fall evening. Wholesome and rich in flavor, this savory soup will soon be a family favorite Vegetables also make tempting entrees and Italian Eggplant Parmesan is an excellent example. Side dishes, too, can be noteworthy when prepared with imagination and flair. Brussels Sprouts and Apples combines two fall favorites for a unique taste treat.

Luscious breads, muffins, cakes and pies can also be prepared with vegetables. This moist carrot bread, delicately spiced with cinnamon and sprinkled with raisins, is simply delicious. Crowned with a crunchy pecan topping, Squash Pie offers an unusual blend of textures and flavors that's guaranteed to be a hit. You can use fresh or frozen squash, so this scrumptious dessert can be enjoyed anytime of year.

Let good taste and good nutrition abound on your table as vegetables highlight fall menus.

CREAMED SPINACH SOUP

1/3 cup corn oil margarine
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup thinly sliced celery
3 tablespoons unsifted flour
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 quart skim milk
1 cup drained cooked chopped spinach

Melt margarine in large saucepan. Saute onion and celery until tender. Blend in flour, salt and pepper; cook until bubbly. Remove from heat, gradually stir in skim milk. Return to heat; cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Add spinach, simmer 2 to 3 minutes longer. Makes 4 servings.

EGGPLANT PARMESAN

8 tablespoons (1 stick) corn oil margarine
¼ cup chopped onion
2 cans (8-ounces each) tomato sauce
½ teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed
½ teaspoon salt
1 large (1½ pound) eggplant, peeled and cut in ½ inch slices
1 pound skimmed milk Mozzarella cheese, thinly sliced
3 teaspoons grated Parmesan cheese

Melt 1 tablespoon margarine in a saucepan. Saute onion until tender Stir in tomato sauce, oregano and salt; simmer 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Set aside.

Brown eggplant slices in remaining 7 tablespoons margarine.

Spread ¼ cup of the prepared tomato sauce in the bottom of a shallow 2-quart casserole. Place half of the eggplant slices in casserole, top with half of the remaining tomato sauce, sprinkle with 1½ teaspoons Parmesean cheese and top with half of the Mozzarella cheese slices. Repeat with remaining ingredients.

Bake at 375 degrees about 30 minutes or until bubbly and cheese on top is golden brown. Makes 6 servings.

BRUSSELLS SPROUTS AND APPLES

1 quart Brussels sprouts, washed and trimmed
Boiling water
¼ cup (½ stick) corn oil margarine
½ cup chopped onion
1½ teaspoons caraway seed
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
3 cups pared, cubed apples
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Cook Brussels sprouts in boiling water to cover until tender crisp. Drain and set aside.

Melt margarine in a large skillet. Saute onion until tender; stir in caraway seed, salt and paprika. Add apples and cook for 2 minutes, stirring frequently. Add cooked Brussels sprouts and lemon juice; mix well. Cover and simmer 5 minutes; stirring occasionally. Makes 8 servings.

CARROT BREAD

2½ cups unsifted flour
½ cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
¾ cup cholesterol-free egg substitute
½ cup (1 stick) corn oil margarine, melted
½ cup water
1½ cups finely shredded raw carrots
1-3rd cup dark seedless raisins

Combine flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, soda and cinnamon in a bowl. Add egg substitute, melted margarine, water, carrots and raisins. Stir until dry ingredients are moistened. Batter will be lumpy. Turn batter into a greased and floured 9x5x3-inch pan.

Bake at 350 degrees, 50 minutes or until done. Let cool in pan or wire rack for 10 minutes. Remove from pan and complete cooling on wire rack. Makes 1 loaf.

SQUASH PIE

1 cup unsifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup (1 stick) corn oil margarine
2 or 3 tablespoons ice water
1 cup cooked butternut squash (fresh or frozen)
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
½ cup cholesterol-free egg substitute
½ cup skimmed evaporated milk
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
⅛ teaspoon ground ginger
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
Pecan Topping (recipe below)

Combine four and ½ teaspoon salt in a bowl. Cut in margarine with pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles coarse meal. Stir in ice water; mix lightly. Form dough into a ball.

On lightly floured board, roll out dough to fit an 8-inch pie plate. Transfer to plate, trim and flute edge. Carefully line with aluminum foil, fill with rice or dried beans. Bake at 375 degrees 10 minutes. Remove foil.

Combine squash, brown sugar, egg substitute, skimmed evaporated milk, cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon salt, cloves, ginger and nutmeg in blender container. Blend until mixture is smooth. Pour into pastry shell.

Bake at 375 degrees 30 to 35 minutes or until knife inserted 1-inch from edge comes out clean. Cool on wire rack. When pie is cool, evenly spoon Pecan Topping over pie, then broil 5-inches from heat for 2 minutes.

PECAN TOPPING: In a small bowl blend together ½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar and 3 tablespoons softened margarine. Stir in ½ cup chopped pecans.

Stan Kenton hates country music

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music is "a national disgrace," jazz musician Stan Kenton said, adding that he hates almost everything Nashville stands for.

"I hate country and western music. It is ignorant music and perverted music. I abhor it," Kenton said in a telephone interview with the Nashville Banner.

The Banner contacted Kenton Thursday in Cedar Lake, Ind., following reports that he spoke out against country music and Nashville during a recent interview in Los Angeles.

"I hate almost everything Nashville stands for. The country and western music is an absolute national disgrace and the lowest form of contemporary music," the musician said.

Kenton, 63, said he does not want to "start a revolution" in Tennessee, but he added he felt someone ought to speak out against country music.

"It has utter lack of sophistication," he said. "It has no charm whatsoever. It is music for the masses."

Kenton said the only reason the public is buying country music albums is because "it's being shoved down their throats."

The orchestra leader said the only way to combat country music is to begin teaching young people the value of music.

"Start them young," Kenton said. "Make them develop musical tastes. Then they wouldn't be turning to this stuff."

Kenton is the second wellknown jazz musician to publicly criticize country music. In January, jazz drummer Buddy Rich said he felt country music "appeals to intellectuals with the minds of 4-year-olds."

Stir fry as they do in China

Stir-frying, typically Chinese, is a quick-cooking method in which vegetables retain their crispness and nutrition and meats are cooked quickly. It's an ideal method for those summer months when you don't want to spend hours over a hot stove yet still want a good meal.

Beef and Beans flavored with the mellow brew is a delicious dish for your first stir-fry attempt. Flavored with the mellow brew, this rich velvety sauce also has the taste of fresh ginger, soy and a sprinkling of green onions on top. Beef 'n Beans take on a most unusual and tasty flavor when enhanced with these spices. Serve on a bed of white rice, have glasses of ice cold beer, and your meal is complete.

BEEF-BEANS-BEER

½ pound fresh green beans
½ pound top round steak
2 teaspoons cornstarch
¼ cup beer
½ teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon salad oil
2 thin slices fresh ginger root
3 tablespoons salad oil
Chopped green onion tops

Sliced beans into 1-inch pieces. Cook in boiling water approximately 2 or 3 minutes. Drain, saving 1/3 cup of liquid. Cut beef into strips (⅛x1½x¾ inches). Combine cornstarch, beer, sugar, soy sauce, oil and ginger root. Toss beef in this sauce until well-coated. Heat 3 tablespoons oil in large frying pan or wok. Add beans and stir-fry approximately 4 minutes over very high heat; remove from pan.

Remove meat from marinade; add beef to hot oil in frying pan and stir fry, until browned, about 3 minutes. Return beans to pan with marinade and 1/3 cup of bean-cooking water. Cook, stirring until sauce is thickened. Serve and garnish with green onion tops. Serve 2 or 3 persons.

Imagination helps in cooking for 2

Cooking for two can be extremely imaginative with the help of fruits and juices. For example, a split chicken breast cooked with orange juice and maraschino cherry juice takes on an added flavor to pique almost any jaded appetite. The chicken is served with egg noodles and a cherry sauce. Add a mixed green salad or your favorite cole slaw and corn muffins for an attractive, tasty meal.

MARASCHINO CHERRY CHICKEN DINNER

1 jar (4 ounces) red maraschino cherries
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 chicken breast (about 7 ounces), split
1½ cups water
3 chicken bouillon cubes
¼ teaspoon thyme, crushed
¼ cup orange juice
¼ teaspoon grated orange peel
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup hot cooked wide egg noodles
Parsley for garnish

Drain cherries reserving 3 tablespoons maraschino cherry syrup. Cut cherries into quarters. Set aside. In a medium skillet, melt butter. Add chicken; brown well on both sides. Add water, bouillon cubes and thyme. Heat to boiling. Stir to dissolve bouillon cubes. Reduce heat to low; cover and simmer 45 minutes, or until chicken is tender, turning occasionally.

Remove chicken to serving platter; keep warm. Skim off any excess fat from broth mixture. Add orange juice and orange peel to broth mixture in skillet. Stir reserved cherry syrup into flour until smooth; add to mixture in skillet. Heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in cherries.

To serve, arrange noodles around chicken. Garnish with parsley. Spoon some of cherry sauce over noodles and chicken. Pass remaining sauce. Makes 2 servings.

When you take a foil-wrapped loaf of French or Italian bread from your freezer and heat it, open the ends of the foil so the crust has a chance to crisp.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GAS COMPANY

If you're wasting energy, cut it out.

Tack this up. It'll remind you of some of the things you should be doing to save natural gas.

1. Forget about such things as firepits, patio heaters, and tiki torches.
2. Make sure your house is well-insulated. That'll keep it cooler in summer and warmer in winter.
3. Set your cooling thermostat no lower than 78°.
4. Cover pots and pans when cooking.
5. Plan oven dishes that you can cook together.
6. Turn down the thermostat on your water heater.
7. Run your dishwasher only with a full load.
8. When you wash dishes by hand, don't run the hot water continuously. Use a stopper in the sink.
9. If a hot water faucet leaks, fix it.
10. Take a fast shower instead of a slow bath.
11. Install a water flow control device in your showerhead to save hot water.
12. Wash and dry only full loads of laundry.
13. Turn off your decorative gas lights or call us and we'll be glad to come and shut them off for you.
14. Make energy conservation a part of your lifestyle. There is an energy shortage and we have to live with it.

THE gas COMPANY
Energy is our business.
Conserving energy is everyone's business.

Group to stage 'Norman'

The Fontana Mummers will present the comedy, "Norman, Is That You?" in the theater at 16286 Foothill Blvd. starting Sept. 19. Curtain is at 8 p.m.

The play, directed by Bill Stice, tells of a middle-aged dry cleaner whose wife runs off with his brother. He turns to his son, Norman, for sympathy but is further distressed to find that Norman has become a homosexual. The authors are Ron Clark and Sam Bobrick.

The dry cleaner is played by Dick McCarty, and Moran by Steve Foreman. Others in the cast are Ann Salpas, the mother; David Scott-Collett, the roommate; and Bonnie Hershberger, a streetwalker.

Pat Breyman is assistant director and Bill Sneed technical director.

"Norman" will play Thursdays through Sundays for four weekends. Reservations can be made at 823-7062.

BACK ON THE SCREEN — Audrey Hepburn and Sean Connery celebrate the completion of the new Richard Lester film, "Robin and Marian," recently in Monte Urbasa, Spain. It was Miss Hepburn's first movie in eight years, and she said, "I loved it."

'The Concert'

3 superstars glitter

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Concert," the two-week summit sessions of three deans of popular music — Frank Sinatra, Ella Fitzgerald and Count Basie — opened on Tuesday at Broadway's Uris Theater.

Miss Fitzgerald was great. As soon as Sinatra warmed up and began to seem at home on stage, he was better than his "comeback from retirement" last year.

With tickets priced $40 to $15 in the nearly 2,000-seat theater, all 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday performances are sold out. A few seats are left for midnight shows on Fridays and Saturdays. The engagement ends Sept. 20, to be followed by one-night stands in Philadelphia, Cleveland and Chicago.

Sinatra, in his usual break for a monologue and drink of "tea with honey" from a coffee cup, said, "I remember at the old Paramount Theater, people saying, 'Forty cents! For what? Some skinny kid in a jacket without lapels." Otherwise, he made a few mild, good-humored jokes about New York's problems and no nasty digs at anybody.

The evening began with three crisp numbers by the Basie Band. Then Miss Fitzgerald walked on and pounced on "Too Close for Comfort," tearing it apart with vocal excitement. She followed that with Duke Ellington's "Do Nothing Till You Hear from Me," making it a slow, thoughtful ballad, sung with much care. She broke it up again with a wildly uptempo "Sweet Georgia Brown," sang a medley from Broadway's "The Wiz" and ended with oldtime blues mastery on "Ain't Nobody's Business if I Do."

Sinatra came on after the intermission. At first, he seemed almost tense. He was singing and moving well, doing a few neat dance steps in time with the band's instrumental bridges, but he didn't seem quite comfortable and the little click from professionalism to star quality didn't come quickly.

He got into it with his fourth song, a rousing "My Kind of Town," but seemed to tense up again as he followed that with a series of love songs, clipping some of the phrases unexpectedly short. But with "Nice and Easy" he hit the stride a Sinatra fan would wish and stayed there. From then on, he sounded relaxed and mellow, his voice in and out of the low register, singing a high note transposed down to make it sound like it should have been written that way and holding notes and phrases much longer than he did a year ago. "Pennies from Heaven" was vigorous; "Send in the Clowns" set a poignant mood and the audience demanded a reprise of his "I've Got You Under my Skin."

The evening ended with a few mellow duets by Sinatra, 59, and Miss Fitzgerald, 57, in one of which he sang "the lady is a champ" and bows to a standing ovation in which they were joined by the 71-year-old Basie.

The official language in all but three Latin-American republics is Spanish. Brazil uses Portuguese; French is spoken in Haiti; English is spoken in Guyana.

Choir sets auditions

Auditions for the Claremont Boys Choir will be held at the Claremont Presbyterian Church, 1111 N. Mountain Ave., from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Sunday, from 7:15 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, and from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and 2 to 3:30 p.m. Sept. 20.

The chorale, conducted by Christopher Trussell, is open to boys in grades four through six. They must be accompanied to the tryouts by a parent or guardian and be prepared to sing "America" or a song of their choice.

The choir, organized in 1972, is a non-profit, nondemoninational group. Information on the choir can be obtained at 626-1031 in the afternoons and at 624-8964 in the evenings.

USC training students to become social workers for senior citizens

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California is training students to become social workers specializing in the problems of a rapidly growing group of Americans: the elderly.

The field is so new that students entering the first class of the Leonard Davis School of Gerontology at USC this fall will be getting training for jobs that don't exist yet.

"They may be getting educated ahead of where the world is," said the school's assistant dean, Margaret E. Hartford. But Miss Hartford, 57, expects the world to catch up.

"I have a hunch that once they know we're in business, all kinds of agencies will be wanting our people."

The current U.S. population of about 210 million includes 21 million persons 65 and over. The school says that the aged are the fastest-growing segment of society and that by the year 2,000, there will be some 30 million 65 and older.

And contrary to what many people think, Miss Hartford said, about 95 per cent of the elderly live in normal circumstances, not nursing homes.

The special problems of the aged touch all areas: housing, leisure, retirement, nursing, sexuality, legal considerations, psychology, financial management and politics.

The USC curriculum calls for the gerontology students to delve into psychology, social work and business administration, acquire sensitivity to the special needs of the aged and emerge ready to help "senior adults."

Students will wear blindfolds and ear plugs to experience the decreased capacities of the aged. They will visit senior citizens' centers and nursing homes. Some of the training is similar to that physicians undergo to become specialists in gerontology.

At the Leonard Davis school, begun with a $2 million endowment from Davis, a New York insurance executive, students can earn a bachelor's or master's degree or a certificate.

The latter is a program taking about a year to complete for persons already working in some related field such as nursing who want specific training in gerontology.

As the school prepared to open Sept. 15, about 50 applicants — aged 20 to 50 — had been accepted for the master's program and a dozen for the certificate course. About 80 undergraduates had signed up for some gerontology classes, of which about 15 planned to major in the field.

The full-time faculty of the gerontology school includes, in addition to Miss Hartford, Dr. William Albert, 34, assistant professor of gerontology-social work; Dr. Robert Wiswell, a former Atlanta Braves baseball player, assistant professor of gerontology-social work, and Dr. Stephen Zarit, assistant professor of gerontology-psychology.

Wiswell specializes in using exercise to help the elderly be active and alert.

Alex Comfort, who is a noted gerontologist but is best known as the author of "The Joy of Sex," said that the school's emphasis on the social aspects of aging is appropriate.

"Only 25 per cent of the disability of old people is medical," Comfort said in an interview. "The remaining 75 per cent is social, political and cultural.

"The expectation that old people should go crazy makes them crazy. They have had the same trip put on them that blacks and women did."

The opening of the school was greeted with enthusaism by such workers in the field as Mrs. B.J. Spitler, Southern California regional manager for the California Office on Aging.

Would her office be interested in hiring gerontology graduates?

"Indeed we are," said Mrs. Spitler. "We see this school as being very worthwhile. Having good feelings about older adults is one thing, but it won't be of any use unless you have the knowledge base to apply them."

The school is housed in the same near-new building that contains the Ethel Percy Andrus Gerontology Center, where scientists and doctors in a variety of fields of social gerontology carry on their studies. USC has been involved in gerontology research for about 10 years.

A 26-year-old USC employe who is considering enrolling in the school says that she is especially attracted because "the people are so positive and enthusiastic. There are people of all ages working together, believing that 'old is beautiful.'

"And the newness of the field is exciting, too. It's like getting in on the ground floor of something that's going to keep getting more important all the time."

The school's admissions program has a poster showing a bearded young student giving a white-haired lady a ride on his motorcycle.

"It's a rare opportunity for getting into a brand-new field," said Miss Hartford.

"Once people are really exposed to aging adults — for example, I lived in a senior citizens' home for several months when one of my parents was dying — they realize what a challenge the work can be."

Detroit residents satisfied

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit gets high marks from the people who should know.

A six-month survey of a cross section of residents of Detroit and its suburbs reveals some surprising findings, including:

By 10 to 1 they are satisfied with themselves.

By 84 per cent to 16 per cent they are "very happy" or "pretty happy."

By more than 6 to 1 they give a positive rating to their police protection.

The study, undertaken by the University of Michigan Institute for Social Research, is the first attempt to survey the quality of life in an urban region.

It showed by margins that often reach 10 to 1 that Detroiters, both black and white, as well as suburban residents expressed satisfaction with their community, their neighborhood, their job, their marriage and family life, their health, their amount of leisure time and how they spend it and their income and standard of living.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER
Q. "WHAT IS AN EMU?"

The emu (pronounced EE myoo) is a large Australian bird that looks something like an ostrich.

Standing about 6 feet tall, this brown-colored bird is the second-largest bird in the world. Only the ostrich is larger.

Like the ostrich, the emu has tiny wings and cannot fly. But it has long, muscular legs and can run up to 30 miles an hour to escape an enemy.

Emus live on open plains where they feed on berries and green plants.

The mother emu lays 7 to 12 dark-green eggs in a flat nest of grass and leaves. The egg of the emu is about six inches long and may weigh 1½ pounds or more.

The father emu sits on the eggs until they hatch and then takes charge of the young, which follow him around.

The emus' fondness for wheat has not made these friendly birds popular with the farmers of Australia, who resent having these 100-pound birds topple their fences and eat their crops.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE
T.S. No. 2027-75
REATTY

On SEPTEMBER 30, 1975, at 11:00 A.M., RELIABLE TITLE COMPANY as duly appointed Trustee under and pursuant to Deed of Trust recorded March 12, 1973, as inst. No. 472, in book T8096, page 447, of Official Records in the office of the County Recorder of Los Angeles County, State of California will sell at public auction to highest bidder for cash (payable at time of sale in lawful money of the United States) at the Hope Street entrance on the South side of the Los Angeles City Central Library located at 630 West 5th Street, in the City of Los Angeles, State of California, all right, title and interest conveyed to and now held by it under said Deed of Trust in the property situated in said County and State described as:

Lot 34 of Tract No. 25991, in the county of Los Angeles, State of California, as per map recorded in book 702 pages 16 to 21 inclusive of maps, in the office of the county recorder of said county.

The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 3142 Castle Rock Road, Diamond Bar, California 91765.

The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein.

Said sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust, with interest thereon, as provided in said note(s), advances, if any, under the terms of said Deed of Trust, fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust.

The beneficiary under said Deed of Trust heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written Declaration of Default and Demand for Sale, and a written Notice of Default and Election to Sell. The undersigned caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located.

Date: August 20, 1975.

Round-the-clock security for Pomona schools?

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

A study of possible round-the-clock security patrol and installation of burglar alarms at all Pomona schools was ordered by board members Tuesday in an effort to prevent vandalism such as the disastrous weekend fire which leveled part of Yorba Elementary School.

Ironically, Asst. Supt. Lynn Rountree revealed, burglar alarms recently were installed in "key locations" at the heavily damaged Yorba school but not in the classroom which was destroyed.

Cost of silent burglar-type alarms to warn school security guards of intruders, has jumped from $13,361 annually in 1971-72, to an estimated $42,000 for the 1975-76 school year.

Equipping every school and classroom with such a system would hike costs further but probably lower losses due to vandalism, possibly a much more dramatic cost reduction than cost of a systemwide installation, Rountree said.

Also to be studied is a doubling of the present four-man security staff which now patrols all Pomona school sites from 3:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. leaving the hours of midnight to daylight unprotected.

Such additional costs for security could be offset partially by a lowering of fire insurance rates which have risen from $46,000 annually four years ago to almost $50,000 this fiscal year.

Board President Don Donnelly said dollar loss from such vandalism as the Yorba School fire is deplorable. But even more outrageous is psychological impact upon students and teachers, he said.

Pupils are forced to view the destruction in their daily treks to school while teachers housed in demolished classrooms may have lost a lifetime collection of teaching aids and personal educational materials, Donnelly said.

"This is devastating to children and teachers. You just can't put a dollar value on it," he said.

Board members also mulled possibility of offering a reward of $1,000 for a tip leading to the arrest and conviction of the arsonist who torched Yorba School. That decision will be made at the next board meeting.

Board member Ken Pine questioned effectiveness of the present school security system during the vandalism discussion. Rountree said the system is to be altered giv-

MOTHERS MARCH AGAINST BUSING

Charlestown mothers and children march in opposition to school busing Tuesday as the Boston neighborhood high school was in its second day of desegregation. Story on page 3.

Veto overrides: certain on one, not the other

Powerless in oil price decontrols

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate appears to be unable to overturn President Ford's veto of a crucial energy bill, assuring higher prices for fuel, food and most manufactured goods.

Failing to pick up the votes of three or four eastern Republicans, the Senate's Democratic majority virtually threw in the towel even before Ford on Tuesday announced his long-expected veto of a bill extending controls on oil prices for six months.

Thus, it appeared Ford loyalists and oil-state senators would have about 36 votes — two more than needed to sustain the veto today.

The next step by the Ford administration would be to ask Congress for a 45-day extension of price controls. During that period, Congress would be expected to adopt a gradual phase-out of controls along the lines of the 39-month proposal offered by Ford.

The end result of such a move would be that U.S. oil prices would rise to the level set by the oil-exporting nations, currently about $13.50 a barrel. U.S. oil now sells for an average of $9.50.

All sides agree that such an increase in oil prices would raise the price of gasoline, food, clothing and most other goods. But since the energy battle between Congress and the White House began eight months ago, there has been little agreement on the size of the increases.

The Library of Congress has estimated Ford's plan to end price controls on oil would mean an increase of up to 15 cents in the price of a gallon of gasoline, raise the cost of living by nearly 2 per cent and throw 600,000 Americans out of jobs.

The Ford administration predicts that gasoline prices will rise no more than 6 cents a gallon, and inflation will increase by .8 per cent. The Agriculture Department calculates that retail food prices would rise by about .7 per cent over the next 27 months because of decontrol.

Even so, the White House has contended that the price would be a slight one to pay for reducing U.S. reliance on imported oil.

Sure to overturn school funds veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is considered certain to join the House in voting to override President Ford's veto of a $7.9-billion education appropriations bills.

If today's vote goes as expected, it would be the second time this session a bill had been enacted over Ford's veto. He has vetoed 10 measures.

The House tally on Tuesday was a lopsided 379 to 41, or 99 more votes than the needed two-thirds. Senate managers of the bill predicted a similar margin in their branch.

The measure exceeds Ford's request by $1.5 billion.

But members of the newly created House and Senate Budget committees disputed the President's contention that it is a budget-buster.

They said the measure would produce less spending in the current fiscal year, which began July 1, than Congress allowed last May in the congressional budget.

Ford, in submitting his $6.4-billion appropriations bill, estimated that $1.3 billion of this would be spent in 1976. The rest would produce outlays in future years.

Leaders of the budget committees said the $7.5 billion as it was sent to the President would yield $1.7 billion of spending in the current year. But they emphasized that, in the congressional budget, allowance was made for $2.2 billion of education outlays.

In adopting its budget, Congress fixed spending targets well above the President's proposals for education, health and some other domestic social programs.

But it promised to make up most of the deficits by cutting the military money bill and foreign aid.

The education bill contains $414 million more than Ford's request for aid to school districts with large numbers of children of federal employes.

It also exceeds his budget on aid to children of disadvantaged parents, which is the largest single federal aid to education program; on aid for libraries, on education for the handicapped, and on vocational education.

As usual, not all the money is expected to be actually spent during the year for which it is voted.

Congressional sponsors of the bill estimated that $1.7 billion would be spent this fiscal year. That would add $400 million to the administration's calculations for this year's deficit.

There are, however, vast differences between the administration's estimate of the 1976 deficit and congressional estimates. The administration puts the deficit at $60 billion; Congress at $68.8 billion.

Only a trace here

Rain hits southland, misses valley

Lightning, thunder and rainstorms which plagued much of the Southland Tuesday and today missed the valley, bringing only a trace of precipitation for the third day in a row.

But the deep layer of low clouds succeeded in blocking out the sunshine for most of the day and holding temperatures to the low 70s. More of the same is expected Thursday.

The cool spell is in contrast with normal September weather which generally keeps air conditioners going as students return to school.

The weatherman described the overlay of clouds as a "freakish occurrence" caused by a low pressure front. He said the clouds are barely moving and will take at least another day before they'll permit the sun to come through.

Meanwhile, temperatures will range from a low of 60 to a high of 72 today and Thursday. Intermittent drizzle is expected to continue in the valley.

Other places of the Southland were not as lucky. The California Highway Patrol reported dozens of motorists stranded in deep mud throughout the Mojave desert.

Spectacular lightning storms washed out many stretches of desert roadways east of the Sierra Nevada, particularly in Death Valley.

An unidentified woman was killed when her car was struck 20 miles north of Mojave by a wall of water that was at least six feet deep, the highway patrol reported.

State crews worked throughout the night to rescue stranded motorists and repair damaged roads.

24 U.S. millionaires avoid paying taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-four American millionaires managed to avoid paying a penny in federal taxes in one recent year, according to Internal Revenue Service data released by a member of Congress.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, said in a House speech Tuesday that seven of the millionaires had a total adjusted gross income of $17,783,008, an average of $2.54 million per person.

"There were also 17 (other) millionaires who avoided any tax after calculating their tax deductions and credits," according to IRS information for 1973, Vanik said. He did not identify the millionaires or explain the tactics they had used.

In addition, there were "54 individuals with adjusted gross incomes of between $500,000 and $1 million who paid no federal income tax and 292 individuals with adjusted gross income of between $200,000 and $500,000 who paid no individual income tax."

Vanik, a member of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, also said that 15 major oil companies paid foreign governments about eight times as much tax as they did to the United States in 1974.

He said "it is appalling to note" that the companies listed payments of $9,554,112,000 to foreign countries, but only a reported $1,309,136,000 in U.S. federal income taxes.

Vanik added: "I have great doubts that the federal treasury actually received that amount of money in U.S. taxes."

He said the companies which reported that information to the Securities and Exchange Commission in usable form had approximate net income of $18,807,023,000.

Vanik identified the 15 oil companies as Occidental, Texaco, Mobil, Gulf, Atlantic Richfield, Standard of Ohio, Getty, Ashland, Standard of California, Standard of Indiana, Union of California, Sun, Phillips, Continental and Cities Service.

He said two other firms, Exxon and Shell, were omitted from the survey "because information provided to the SEC made computations impossible."

Vanik spoke as the Ways and Means Committee moved Tuesday to end farm tax shelters used by wealthy city dwellers to virtually escape paying taxes.

The panel voted 23 to 10 to end such benefits, under which the wealthy use packaged investments in cattle breeding and feeding, tree crops, vegetable and field crops and other farm items to build up accounting losses that they can apply against their tax liability.

Deodorant clothing

No sweat—with right idea

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — In the beginning, there was the roll-on deodorant, then the spray-on. Now, chemist Tyrone Vigo is looking for a zip-up deodorant.

Vigo and other scientists at the U.S. Agriculture Department's Southern Regional Research Center are trying to develop cotton clothing with a built-in deodorant.

"We're talking about shorts, possibly tee shirts, socks, things like that," Vigo explained.

The research center tries to find new uses for cotton and other domestic products. Among its prized accomplishments is the now-popular permanent press process.

There's no problem finding chemicals that will kill stench-causing bacteria, although there are several other questions, Vigo said.

One is how long the deodorant drawers would keep their guard up. Vigo's goal is to find a treatment that will stand up through 50 launderings.

It's also necessary to prevent skin irritation, itching and other miseries and to decide how tightly the garments should fit.

He said researchers have found several formulas with the strength to come out of the wash intact, and now they're trying to find out how to tame the chemicals so they can be worn next to the skin for all-day protection.

Vigo thinks no-sweat clothing may be an idea whose time is ripe.

"In Europe, this kind of thing is more firmly entrenched," he said. "In Germany, they're treating diapers that we would throw away here."

'Didn't intend to shoot President'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A Manson trial attorney says Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme confided during a jailhouse visit that she never intended to kill President Ford when she aimed a loaded gun at him.

"What are they mad about?" attorney Daye Shinn quoted Miss Fromme as asking. "The gun didn't go off."

Shinn said in an interview Tuesday that Miss Fromme, still loyal to mass murderer Charles Manson, claims she was seeking attention for Manson and three women followers she feels were unjustly convicted in the 1969 Sharon Tate murders.

The attorney quoted Miss Fromme as saying of the Ford incident here last Friday: "I wasn't going to shoot him. I just wanted to get some attention for a new trial for Charlie and the girls."

Record number signed for valley horse show

The 31st annual Futurity Horse Show of the California Saddle Horse Breeders Association with a record number of entries will be held at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the Carnation Ring.

Four hundred fifty mounts, more than 200 more than were entered in the 1974 show, will compete for honors during the three-day show.

Dr. Daniel Felix Smith of Pomona, president of the association, in noting the tremendous total of entrants, said that there also is a substantial increase in the number of futurity nominations, notably in the number of weanlings.

Dr. Smith said that the horse show classes which have increased the most are the pleasure horse and all the driving classes, including the hackney and pony classes and the roadster.

"We are also pleased," Dr. Smith said, "with the number of entries from the north — the Redding Saddlebreds of Carmel, the Rural Retreat Stables of Los Altos, Mr. and Mrs. Philip B. Davis from Sonoma, and the Sining Hills Stable from Oregon City, Ore."

Two new perpetual trophies will be presented during the show. The Gerald R. Holtz Perpetual Trophy for the three-year-old three-gaited futurity champion is named in honor of the Palos Verdes Estates resident who served as president of the association the past two years.

The Bill Gerth Perpetual Trophy will be awarded to the champion of the junior three-gaited stake. It honors the late Bill Gerth who died in August after serving for many years as the official farrier at the show.

The association holds its first portion of the show Friday at 7:30 p.m. The show will continue at 1 and 7:30 p.m. in the Carnation Ring Saturday, with a similar show Sunday.

Brown gets the bill that may halt doctor strike

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has received a wide-ranging medical malpractice bill that the legislature's only doctor says should ward off a statewide doctors' strike.

The bill moved to the governor's office Tuesday after opponents abandoned a parliamentary maneuver to hold it up for a new vote.

The new vote would have been today, after the release of a legislative audit on insurance companies.

The measure by Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, had won a final 60-19 Assembly vote Monday on sweeping Senate amendments.

Said the only doctor in the legislature, Bob McLennan, R-Downey, in an interview: "This is as good a bill as we can get out of the legislature. In my opinion it will avert a walkout by doctors."

The amendments were strongly supported by doctors, and generally opposed by trial lawyers.

Backers of the bill said it cut doctors' insurance rates by at least 30 per cent through such provisions as a $250,000 limit on pain and suffering awards, a shortened statute of limitations, and curbs on lawyers' fees.

In other provisions, the bill strengthens the state Board of Medical Examiners, requires seven of its 19 members to be non-physicians, and initiates state review of large insurance rate increases.

Both Keene and McLennan predicted Brown would sign the bill.

"I don't think he can afford not to," McLennan said.

Keene said the bill's passage is a testimony of "political pressure by the medical community."

He said groups of doctors had been calling legislators' district offices urging them to vote for it.

Gun buyers facing extended wait now

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Senate narrowly approved legislation Tuesday that would force customers to wait 15 days before taking possession of a pistol purchased from a gun dealer.

The 21-18 vote sent the bill by Assemblyman Frank Murphy, R-Santa Cruz, to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. At least 21 aye votes were needed for passage.

Under current law, a five-day waiting period is required before a handgun buyer can take possession of the weapon.

Authorities use the time to run a check on the buyer to determine if he can legally own a handgun.

State law prohibits sale of pistols to minors, convicted felons and persons "adjudicated dangerous by reason of mental history."

Supporters argued that the bill would give authorities adequate time to check the background of a gun buyer. But critics contended that five days is adequate.

"It's an harassment that doesn't resolve a thing," Sen. H.L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, said of the bill.

But Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, said: "There is no way it is an harassment. The most you can say is it is an inconvenience.

"There is no reason why the gun buyer cannot wait."

The bill is AB 1441.

Pomona now enrolling for preschool classes

Fall enrollments in the State Preschool Program in Pomona's public schools are being accepted now in Portable C at Kingsley Elementary School.

Classes, to be taught at Allison, Arroyo, Kellogg, Lexington and San Jose elementary schools, began today. Hours are from 8:40 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

The program serves prekindergarten boys and girls from low-income families and children with special needs.

Parents are responsible for transportation. Hot lunches are served at school each day.

The program requires parent participation. Each child's family is responsible for two hours of classroom participation each week. Parent education classes are held monthly.

Registration is on a first-come, first-served basis. Parents are asked to bring birth certificates for their children and immunization records and either a Department of Public Social Services number or proof of income.

The family does not have to live in a school area to register there.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the district preschool specialist Judy Sneed at 623-5251, Ext. 317.

College offers Italian class

The Chaffey College adult education Italian grammar class starts Thursday.

Classes will be from 6:30 to 9 p.m. each Thursday in the multi-purpose room of Upland Public Library with Mrs. Rosina Pace as instructor.

Persons wishing additional information may call the Upland Library, 982-1561.

Is kidnaper steak tasty?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Whoever kidnaped Baby, a 300-pound, 2-year-old lion, may find the animal cranky and dangerous if they fail to discover her finicky tastes in food.

"Oh, she hates raw meat," said Florence Ennis, one of those at the Allco Auto Wrecking Yard who fed Baby. "If those people don't find her diet soon, she won't eat and probably will get very mean."

Baby was missing Tuesday morning when Mrs. Ennis and other employees showed up for work.

Mrs. Ennis said Baby turns up her nose, and occasionally bares a fang, at raw meat, but will eat it if cooked. What the lioness really likes, Mrs. Ennis said, is white albacore tuna and dog food, especially the moist, canned variety. Canned dog food? Baby has appeared in dog and cat food TV commercials and apparently picked up a taste for the stuff.

Stingy with power? Help may be coming

SACRAMENTO (AP) — People who use small amounts of gas and electricity would get a break in their utility bills under the so-called "lifeline" bill now on Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s desk.

A 50-8 Assembly vote Tuesday completed legislative action on the measure by Assemblyman John Miller, D-Oakland.

Currently, large commercial users of power get discounted rates.

The bill would freeze rates for small residential power users on Jan. 1, and those rates could be hiked only when they had fallen 25 per cent behind commercial rates.

The measure would affect only utilities regulated by the state Public Utilities Commission. Some cities, including Los Angeles and Sacramento, are served by municipal utilities not under PUC control.

Supporters of the bill said the "lifeline" system as adopted in several states has been an energy-saver and a protection for the elderly against increasing utility costs.

"More poor and aged users who can't afford the present rates will now be able to afford them," said Miller.

An opponent, Assemblyman Ken MacDonald, D-Ojai, said the bill would shift utility rate costs to large families and small businesses, "those least capable of bearing them."

The Assembly vote concurred in Senate amendments.

It is AB 167.

Passenger hurt as car hits home

A 16-year-old girl, injured when the car she was in struck a house in Pomona, was reported in good condition today in Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The accident occurred in a north-south alley between Russell Place and Bonnie Brae Avenue.

The driver, Steven J. Wells, also 16, 1739 Russell Place, told police his foot slipped from the brake pedal onto the throttle before the crash. He was treated for facial injuries at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Fontana.

Wells' passenger, Kim L. Warner, 918 Barbara Lane, Pomona, suffered a forehead injury and was admitted at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The house, at 1675 Russell Place, was damaged slightly, police said. It is the residence of Larry Taylor.

Boycott on Russ grain sales lifted for month

Unions consent after Ford heeds their fears on rising prices, jobs

WASHINGTON (AP)—AFL-CIO President George Meany and maritime unions are giving President Ford one month to ease the impact of future Russian grain deals before deciding whether to reimpose a boycott on shipments of corn and wheat.

After meeting with Ford on Tuesday, Meany and six maritime union leaders suspended the boycott of grain shipments for 30 days.

In exchange, Ford agreed to a six-point written plan designed to lessen the impact of Russian grain sales on consumer food prices and to make sure U.S. merchant ships with American seamen aboard deliver a significant portion of the grain.

"The country must have a new procedure for the sale of feed grains and wheat to such large state purchasers as the Soviet Union," Ford said in the agreement, released not by the White House but by a spokesman for the AFL-CIO.

In addition, Ford said he would immediately dispatch a negotiating team to Moscow to open negotiations on means of spreading out future Russian grain purchases, needed desperately this year because of widespread Soviet crop failures.

New crop forecasts due Thursday are expected to give the impetus for new grain sales this year to the Russians, in addition to 9.8 million metric tons they have already signed for with private U.S. grain dealers.

Ford said an existing informal agreement with the grain dealers to hold up on any further purchases would be extended until mid-October.

Further, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said at a news conference Tuesday that discussions with the Soviets have also begun on possible exchanges of Soviet oil surpluses for U.S. grain, a proposal frequently made by Meany.

The boycott by Gulf Coast longshoremen began July 30 with Meany's endorsement after it became clear for the second time in four years that the Soviet Union had purchased large amounts of grain and probably would return to buy more from U.S. farm surpluses.

Meany and the unions said they were motivated by fears of increases in the price of bread, meat and other food products, as well as their concern over the prospect of the grain being shipped in foreign flag vessels.

Court orders in both New Orleans and Texas postponed implementation of the boycott, but union officials had threatened to extend it port by port from the Gulf Coast to the Great Lakes to the West Coast.

The agreement announced Tuesday by Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop eases that threat and gives U.S. officials time to work out something with the Russians.

Negotiations over shipping rates the Soviets will pay for the grain deliveries resume between U.S. and Soviet officials in Moscow this week. Higher shipping rates mean more jobs for American seamen, and those talks reportedly were near to producing an agreement when they were politely suspended in Washington 10 days ago.

Fewer arrested noted

School rolls rise in Boston, Louisville

By The Associated Press

Increased school attendance is reported in Boston and Louisville, Ky., area schools under court-ordered desegregation employing massive busing.

Police in Boston skirmished with rock-and bottle-throwing demonstrators in the Charlestown section Tuesday night, but only 18 arrests were reported during the day.

In Kentucky, Jefferson County police said four pupils were arrested as the result of minor incidents, a far cry from the almost 500 persons who were arrested during four days of violent antibusing demonstrations after the new school term started Thursday.

Kentucky's Gov. Julian Carroll said he would ask the federal government to assume the cost of sending 1,000 National Guard troops and state police into Jefferson County early Saturday, after a night of demonstrations.

Boston police also broke up a 75-car antibusing caravan in the city's largely Irish Charlestown area Tuesday night, and they reported that a firebomb was found and destroyed in South Boston, another largely white section that has been a center of antibusing sentiment.

Boston school officials reported, meanwhile, that attendance at the city's 162 public schools on Tuesday was up to 65 per cent of the 75,000 pupils, compared with an attendance rate of 59 per cent on the opening day of the new term on Monday.

Under a temporary desegregation order issued by U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., 17,000 public school pupils were bused in Boston during the 1974-1975 term. The permanent order effective for the current term calls for busing 26,000.

Some 1,800 police and state troopers have been assigned to keep the desegregation effort in Boston as free of violence as possible this year. The officers cordoned off schools and guarded school bus routes.

Carroll said in Louisville that the guardsmen and Kentucky state police were called in at the specific request of U.S. District Court Judge James Gordon, who drafted the desegregation plan that calls for busing 22,600 of the 118,286 pupils expected to register for the 1975-1976 school year in Jefferson County.

"As far as I am concerned the guard and the state police are acting as federal peace officers," said Carroll, who added that he would go to court if necessary to obtain federal payment of the costs.

Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane estimated it was costing about $450,000 a week to keep the guardsmen and state police on hand.

Jefferson County school officials said attendance on Tuesday was 85,923, or about 73 per cent of the enrollment. Attendance on Monday was 67,151.

Can't tell all on pact —Kissinger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says his successful Sinai mission may yet "open a door to a general peace" in the area and promises fullest possible disclosure of secret elements.

But the American civilian technicians who will monitor the peace will not be Central Intelligence Agency men. Director William E. Colby, citing the controversy over the agency, barred their use as impolitic.

The Secretary of State, speaking at a news conference Tuesday, said the Ford administration "will go the absolute limit" to disclose secret parts of the Israeli-American agreement, but added: "There is an area of diplomacy that no country has ever made public."

Kissinger said he had the unanimous approval of the National Security Council before offering a U.S. presence as part of the peace agreement. He added the technicians will not take their stations before March.

A CIA spokesman, however, confirmed earlier press reports that Colby said his agents will not serve as technicians in the Sinai. "In the present atmosphere, we didn't want to be involved. It's the pure politics of the thing," Colby reportedly said.

Bullets fly; young theft suspect caught

A 16-year-old youth was arrested early today after a bullet-punctuated chase from a burglarized Pomona sportings goods store.

The youth, a Pomona resident, said he was shot in the right calf during the chase, but police were not so sure.

The physician who treated him at Pomona Valley Community Hospital said it was not a gunshot wound, but hospital records stated later that it was. In any case, the youth, who was not identified because of his age, was jailed after treatment.

The incident began shortly before 3 a.m. when police, answering a burglar alarm, said they saw the youth exiting the Big 5 Sporting Goods store at 676 W. Holt Ave. through a broken plate glass window. They said he had a revolver in one hand.

Patrolman Larry D. Kidney said his drawn pistol fired accidentally as he attempted to set the brake of the radio car and exit it to pursue the burglar. Moments later Kidney fired one round after the fleeing youth who refused to stop.

During the pursuit on foot, Officer Charles M. Heilman also fired one shot after the burglar before losing sight of him momentarily. The suspect was arrested later inside a storage shed at the rear of 758 W. Center St.

Police said they found three pistols, stolen from the sporting goods store, abandoned along the route of the chase.

The suspect said he was hit by "the third or fourth shot" but neither policeman was certain he had wounded the youth. The attending physician described the wound as simply a cut.

ONTARIO police Tuesday searched the home of Phillip John Parra, 27, of 1253 W. Rosewood Ct., the alleged "greasepaint bandit", and said they recovered a large quantity of stolen goods taken in recent valley robberies.

Police said they received permission to search Parra's Rosewood Court home from his wife. Detectives opened a locked closet, revealing a large amount of canned motor oil, packs of razor blades, a skateboard, lighters and $200 in cash believed taken in a number of valley service station and convenience market robberies since Aug. 27.

Parra was arrested Monday by a Riverside County sheriff's deputy during an alleged service station robbery, the sixth such robbery in Riverside since last Friday. Parra, when arrested, had a holdup note, a starter pistol, and a green hat similar to those used by a robber, dubbed the "greasepaint bandit" believed responsible for at least 12 robberies. Parra also had grease on the right side of his face covering four moles when arrested.

According to detectives, Parra had a record of other minor criminal offenses, but little recently. He is a graduate of Montclair High School and held his last job seven months ago with the Los Angeles Parks and Recreation Department. Police said that part of the loot taken in the robberies may have been given to his three children, a girlfriend's children and a sister's children in Riverside.

A POMONA man who chased a burglar from the backyard of a neighbor's home was shot at twice when he attempted to approach the man in the 1300 block of San Bernardino Avenue late Tuesday morning.

The burglar apparently used a .380-caliber pistol taken from the burglarized residence of Charles R. Fitzsimmons to shoot at the victim, Val Diaz, 45. Diaz gave up his pursuit of the man at that point.

Police said that the Fitzsimmons residence at 1758 James Place had been broken into by someone who removed the pistol, a coin bank and two rifles. Diaz, who was walking his dog, saw a man in the Fitzsimmons backyard with two rifles leaning against the garage. When Diaz challenged his presence there, the burglar fled with Diaz in pursuit.

Police later arrested a 24-year-old Pomona man and booked him in connection with the burglary and apparent attempt on Diaz' life.

Earnings up but buying power down 5% in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Americans earned more in dollars in 1974 than they did in 1973, their actual buying power decreased by nearly 5 per cent, the Census Bureau says.

The bureau reported Tuesday that 1974 median household income was $11,101. In other words, half the nation's households earned more than that and half earned less.

This was up from $10,512 in 1973. But the Census Bureau said that after inflation was figured in, the 1974 figure represented a 4.8 per cent decline in buying power.

It was the first drop since 1971, when the indicator fell nine-tenths of 1 per cent after adjustment for inflation.

In July, the bureau reported that median family income after such adjustment tumbled by 4 per cent, despite a $785 increase in dollar value to $12,836. That was the worst drop since the agency began keeping records of family income in 1947.

The family statistics traditionally have been a key indicator of Americans' standard of living, but they cover only two or more related persons living in the same quarters.

Household statistics also include persons living alone and unrelated persons sharing living quarters. The Census Bureau first used this measure in 1967.

Round-the-clock school security...

ing the school protection from school closing through nighttime hours until daylight.

However, Jack Jones, president of Pomona schools' Certificated School Employes Association, cited a state statute which forbids changing hours of employes. He said reassigning hours of security guards was forbidden but board members took exception to Jones' interpretation of the law and the matter was tabled for further study.

Board members also tabled a decision to rebuild the demolished Yorba School classroom pending study of the school census and whether the classroom needs to be rebuilt.

Donnelly was outvoted 3 to 1 by other board members (Mary Montes missed the meeting due to illness) when he objected to a $300 outlay to Roosevelt Elementary School for an appearance next Tuesday of a mariachi band in observance of Mexican Independence Day.

He said such funds would be better spent for improvement of "reading, writing and arithmetic" skills.

Four or five speakers from the audience challenged Donnelly's views with the line dissenter claiming Pomona schools were so topheavy with nonacademic expenditures that taxes were unrealistic.

Board members Pine, Gene Whitlock and C. Allen Braswell voted in favor of hiring a $100 per hour mariachi band for the celebration as a "cultural experience" for pupils at Roosevelt School.

In other action, the board:

—Agreed to send a letter to Pomona City Council outlining goals of the truancy program offhandedly urging city councilmen to encourage more Pomona police participation in the program.

—Set 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 25 for a day-long study session geared to developing long and short range programs for the school district — a meeting open to the public

—Agreed to have hour-long executive sessions to hear taxpayer grievances against school personnel an hour before regular board sessions.

—Heard a report on a pilot program to return expelled pupils to the system through a new counseling plan involving parents of expelled pupils.

—Approved appointment of five employes to represent the district in meet-and-confer sessions with district employe groups concerning wages, fringe benefits and grievances.

Asst. Supt. Sidney Moses was absent from the meeting. A district spokesman said he was in Washington, D.C. lobbying among Congressmen to override President Gerald Ford's veto of the $8 billion education bill.

Spacecraft No. 2 heads for Mars

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Viking II spaceship has joined its sister ship on a 505-million-mile journey to seek life on Mars, a planet once thought to be criss-crossed with canals constructed by intelligent beings.

A Titan-Centaur booster rocket propelled the four-ton spacecraft into a parking orbit around earth at 2:39 p.m. EDT, and less than an hour later, the Viking II was blasted out of orbit and on its way toward the red planet.

The craft followed Viking 1, launched nearly three weeks ago on an identical mission in the $1 billion program.

Officials said the launch caused a fire in a supposedly fireproof building 40 feet from the launch pad. Three firemen suffered smoke inhalation fighting the four-hour blaze, officials said.

Space agency officials would not comment on the cause of the fire.

Although scientists now believe the "canals" are dried up river beds, they hope the twin probes will reveal evidence of past or present life on Mars.

Palestinian guerrillas fuel Lebanon crisis

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Lebanon's recurrent plague, communal bloodletting, has been part of the Middle East picture all along, but the fact that the current outburst hasn't triggered wider trouble in the area thus far suggests change in the making.

However, if the present fighting should result in collapse of the delicately balanced system of government under which little Lebanon is ruled, there could well be a much wider crisis.

This explosion actually began two months ago, subsided, then burst out all over again with a fury rivaling that of the 1958 upheaval, when something akin to rebellion plus civil war brought crisis to the neighbors, a near Soviet-U.S. confrontation and the landing of American troops.

The crux of the Christian-Moslem quarrel, as ever, is the activity of Palestinian guerrillas based in Lebanon who mount attacks on Israel and thus invite massive retaliation, which in turn disrupts Lebanon's economic life.

Some 200,000 Palestinian refugees and their children are in camps in Lebanon. Palestine is central to the Arab quarrel with Israel and thus Lebanon is drawn into it. The refugees refuse to be settled permanently for fear of suggesting surrender of claims to properties whence they — or their fathers — were driven by the Israelis in the 1948 war.

Lebanon, a sun-washed country of 3 million, is a nation of Mediterranean traders that is often subject to heavy pressures from powerful neighbors.

In two previous major upheavals, 1958 and 1969, Lebanon was under pressure from the followers of Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt to join the "confrontation states" against Israel.

Since well before independence from France, Lebanon has been ruled by a delicately divided government on the supposition that the Moslem and Christian populations were equal.

But while Moslem sympathies go out to the Palestinians, Christians, many of them members of the flourishing business community, prefer not to invite the retaliation. Their armed militants object to the Lebanon-based guerrilla activity.

When the quarrel explodes in fighting, the government balance is imperiled. Should it come apart, outside interference, particularly from militarily strong Syria which sponsors Palestinan guerrillas, would be a distinct possibility. Then the Israeli finger would be on the trigger in anticipation of a Lebanon dominated by Moslems and bent on hostile action.

As yet, unlike the Nasser days, the trouble still seems confined mostly to Lebanon. This testifies to a striking difference in the leadership of Egypt, the main Arab actor in the Middle East drama. President Anwar Sadat has just traveled a difficult route to a new agreement with Israel. He wants to turn attention to Egypt's massive economic problems. He seems to have kept hands off Lebanon, and perhaps this has persuaded Syria to be circumspect about the situation. If so, there is hope for less dangerous days.

CMDR. STEVENSON
. . . relieved of command

Go-go gal: 'boosted morale'

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP) — "I've never seen such a bunch of smiling men go out to sea," a Fort Pierce go-go dancer says of her topless performance aboard a Navy submarine.

But at least one man on the USS Finback during the July 10 dance isn't smiling. Cmdr. Connelly D. Stevenson, skipper of the sub, has been relieved of command.

"I'm really interested in the Navy ... It really boosted the men's morale," Cat Futch said Tuesday of her 15-minute performance on top of the vessel's conning tower. "It didn't hurt them or me."

Miss Futch, 23, who listed her statistics as 34-23-35, said she performed "for patriotic reasons.

"It was definitely a way to make sure every guy was on the boat when they left port."

The hazel-eyed blonde said Stevenson "was just trying to do something for the men."

Stevenson, who is trying to regain his command, said he agreed to allow Miss Futch to dance as the boat pulled out of Port Canaveral to acknowledge extra work by his crew and to impress the rival Alexander Hamilton, a missile-firing submarine tied up in port.

Miss Futch, now working at a Fort Pierce club, blamed someone aboard the Hamilton for blowing the whistle on Stevenson, who has been given a desk job at Norfolk, Va.

She said she wasn't paid for her performance, but a crewman took up a collection and Stevenson gave her a twin dolphin, emblem of the Navy submarine service.

"That really means a lot to me," said Miss Futch, who called Stevenson "the best commander they ever had."

'Jaws' takes biggest bite

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Jaws" has taken the biggest bite of all.

Universal Studios said Tuesday that in only 78 days the movie about a seaside resort terrorized by a great white shark has become the most successful motion picture in American film history.

Box office gross at the end of 80 days was $124.3 million, Universal said, surpassing the previous record holder, "The Godfather," in both U.S. and Canadian receipts.

The show premieres abroad this December.

A Summary of Major Action
Tuesday, Sept. 9

THE GOVERNOR

THE GOVERNOR

Said in a Los Angeles speech he is undecided whether to sign a bill granting collective bargaining rights to teachers in public schools.

Bills Signed

Jails—Relaxes regulations on the maintenance of separate facilities for males and females in county jails; AB 372; Hart, D-Santa Barbara.

Juries — Eliminates categorical exemptions from jury duty and provides that a court shall excuse a potential juror on an individual basis when jury duty would constitute an undue hardship on the person or the public; AB 681; Siegler, D-Vallejo.

Alcohol — Redefines definition of alcoholic beverage wholesaler as one operating within the United States or within a neighboring foreign country, the effect being to permit a wholesaler licensed elsewhere than in the United States, Canada or Mexico to have an interest in a retail license in California; AB 1484; Ralph, D-Los Angeles.

Long Beach — Revises method of allocation of Long Beach oil and gas revenues and adds representative of State Lands Commission to Sea Grant Advising Panel; AB 1482; Chel, D-Long Beach.

Bills Vetoed

Recreation — Would have authorized legislature to pay 25 per cent of cost of recreation and fish and wildlife features of local flood control projects; AB 122; MacDonald, D-Ojai.

Nursing — Would have required completion of high school rather than 10th grade to qualify for licensing as vocational nurse; AB 1603; Egeland, D-San Jose.

Students — Would have raised student fee at State University and Colleges for student union from $20 to $40; AB 2001; Hayden, R-Sunnyvale.

THE SENATE
Bills Passed

Schools — Would put $200 million bond issue on June ballot for school building lease-purchase program, AB 32 and AB 141, Greene, D-Sacramento; votes of 27-11 and 23-16 sent the bills to the governor.

Prisoners — Would permit sheriff to put male and consenting female prisoners in same rooms for meals, work, education, reading, counseling, medical care, recreation, rehabilitation and employment; AB 1321; Boatwright, D-Concord; 21-14, to Assembly for action on Senate amendment.

Autistic — Permits school boards to approve tax overrides, said to total $4.8 million statewide, to provide special classes for the state's 1,882 autistic children; AB 1850, MacDonald, D-Ojai; 22-10, to Assembly for action on Senate amendments.

Senior Citizens — Allows school boards in remote areas to charter school buses to senior citizens groups for outings, so long as senior citizens pay the cost of their trips and they don't conflict with school uses of buses; AB 696; Garamendi, D-Mokelumne Hill, 24-9, to Assembly for action on Senate amendments.

Business — Provides for privately funded "Business and Industrial Development Corp." as channel for federal Small Business loans; SB 124, Roberti, D-Los Angeles, 27-0, to governor.

POISONS — Would prevent use of poisons to kill coyotes or other predators if such use endangered rare or endangered species; AB 2023; Boatwright, D-Concord; 21-18; to Assembly for concurrence in Senate amendments.

Pistols — Would extend from five to 15 days the amount of time a pistol buyer has to wait before taking possession of the weapon; AB 1441; Murphy, R-Santa Cruz; 21-18; to governor.

Boards — Would declare policy of state that composition of state boards and commissions shall be broadly reflective of the general public; AB 1455; Vasconcellos, D-San Jose; 21-9; to governor.

Resolution Defeated

Kennedy — Would urge Congress and the President to reopen the investigation into the death of President John F. Kennedy; AJR 18; Lockyer, D-San Leandro; 6-27.

THE ASSEMBLY
Bills Passed

Preferential — Would eliminate $25 million in tax deductions on "preferential income" claimed by about 6,000 wealthy Californians; AB 1206; Boatwright, D-Concord; 54-17 to concur in Senate amendments; to governor.

Campus — Would require a hearing before a person could be kicked off a public college campus for disruptive or violent acts; AB 1554; Meade, D-Berkeley; 44-19 to concur in Senate amendments; to governor.

Prostitution — Would make state antiprostitution laws apply to male as well as female prostitutes; AB 1436; Torres, DLos Angeles; 57-2 to concur in Senate amendments; to governor.

Corporal — Would require written parental approval before a student could be spanked in school; AB 1267; Egeland, DSan Jose; 47-18 to concur in Senate amendments; to governor.

Lifeline — Would freeze public utilities' rates for small residential users next January until commercial rates were 25 per cent higher; AB 167; Miller, D-Oakland; 50-8 to concur in Senate amendments; to governor.

Arts — Would appropriate $700,000 for a new state Arts Council, with nine members appointed by the governor, to operate through next June, making grants to artists in place of the current Arts Commission; SB 1024; Zenovich, D-Fresno; 588; to Senate for amendment concurrence.

Dismissal — Would prohibit prosecution of a felony charge which has been dismissed twice for lack of a speedy trial, unless there is substantial new evidence; SB 487; Song, D-Monterey Park; 44-17; to Senate for amendment concurrence.

Methadone — Would forbid disclosure of names of persons in methadone treatment programs without written consent; SB 131; Marks, D-San Francisco; 69-1; to Senate for amendment concurrence.

Democrats — Would set ground rules for Democratic presidential primary, with delegates awarded proportionally according to a candidate's vote in each congressional district; SB 288; Alquist, D-San Jose; 56-5; to Senate for amendment concurrence.

Republicans — Would set ground rules for winner-take-all Republican presidential primary; AB 427; Murphy, R-Santa Cruz; 53-0 to concur in Senate amendments; to governor.

Injunctions — Would prohibit a court from issuing an injunction against peaceful picketing which did not block access to property or trespass; SB 743; Moscone, D-San Francisco; 44-25; to Senate for amendment concurrence.

Name — Would require a court to restore a woman's pre-marriage name at her request, except in cases of fraud; SB 555; Harks; R-San Francisco 73-2; to Senate for amendment concurrence.

Paramedics — Would protect paramedics from civil suits stemming from aid they gave at the scene of an accident following a nurse's or doctor's instructions; SB 70; Wedworth, D-Hawthorne; 71-1; to Senate for amendment concurrence.

Mobile Homes — Would restrict grounds for eviction of a tenant from a mobile home park and require increased notification time by management for a change in park use or regulations; SB 701; Behr, R-Marin; 49-12; to Senate form amendment concurrence.

Battery — Would give a judge the option to treat battery with serious bodily injury as a felony, instead of the currently required misdemeanor; SB 554; Presley; D-Riverside; 75-0; to Senate for amendment concurrence.

Age — Would bar employment discrimination based solely on age; SB 866; Presley; 52-50; to Senate for concurrence in conference committee report.

Reconsideration Waived

Malpractice — Would limit pain and suffering awards in malpractice cases to $250,000, shorten statute of limitations, put public members on Board of Medical Examiners; limit lawyers' fees and make other changes; AB of second extraordinary session; Keene, D-Eureka; motion to reconsider by Knox, D-Richmond, withdrawn; to governor.

Resolution Defeated

Aliens — Would ask Congress to pass a law penalizing employers who knowingly hire persons who have entered the United States illegally; AJR 32; Arnett, R-Redwood City; 14-47.

'Gentleman farmer' bill approved

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Income taxes for some 6,000 wealthy Californians would be boosted by a total of $25 million a year under a bill approved by the legislature.

It diminishes the "gentleman farmer" deduction that enabled former Gov. Ronald Reagan to pay no 1970 state income taxes.

The measure by Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, would reduce other tax shelters and seek to increase the minimum taxes the wealthy must pay.

A 54-17 Assembly vote Tuesday sent the bill to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who has endorsed it.

It is AB 1206.

Dear World

MY YOUNG SON starts to school today . . . It's all going to be sort of strange and new to him for awhile, and I wish you would sort of treat him gently.

You see, up to now he's been king of the roost . . . He's been boss of the backyard . . . His mother has always been near to soothe his wounds and repair his feelings.

But now things are going to be different.

This morning he's going to walk down the front steps, wave his hand, and start out on the great adventure . . . It is an adventure that might take him across continents, across oceans . . . It's an adventure that will probably include wars and tragedy and sorrow . . . To live his life in the world he will have to live in will require faith and love and courage.

So, World, I wish you would sort of look after him . . . Take him by the hand and teach him things he will have to know.

But do it gently, if you can.

He will have to learn, I know, that all men are not just, that all men are not true.

But teach him also that for every scoundrel there is a hero . . . that for every crooked politician there is a great and dedicated leader . . . Teach him that for every enemy, there is a friend.

Steer him away from envy, if you can . . . and teach him the secret of quiet laughter.

In school, World, teach him it is far more honorable to fail than to cheat . . . Teach him to have faith in his own ideas, even if everyone says they are wrong . . . Teach him to be gentle with gentle people and tough with tough people.

Try to give my son the strength not to follow the crowd when everyone is getting on the bandwagon . . . Teach him to listen to all men — but teach him also to filter all he hears on a screen of truth and take just the good that siphons through.

Teach him, if you can, how to laugh when he's sad . . . Teach him there is no shame in tears . . . Teach him there can be glory in failure and despair in success.

Treat him gently, World, if you can. But don't coddle him . . . Because only the test of fire makes fine steel . . . Let him have the courage to be impatient . . . Let him have the patience to be brave.

Let him be no man's man . . . Teach him always to have sublime faith in himself.

Because then he will always have sublime faith in mankind.

This is quite an order, World, but see what you can do . . . He's such a nice little fellow, my son!

SBA nomination goes to Kleppe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford Tuesday nominated Thomas S. Kleppe, administrator of the Small Business Administration, to be secretary of the interior.

Kleppe, 56, a Republican and former two-term North Dakota congressman, would succeed Stanley K. Hathaway, who submitted his resignation July 25.

The nomination of Kleppe had been rumored for several days, and North Dakota congressmen said last week they understood Ford would name him to the job.

Kleppe, of Bismarck, N.D., served in Congress from 1966 to 1970. If confirmed he would be the first North Dakotan to sit on a presidential Cabinet.

Hathaway, who served only six weeks in the interior job, resigned for health reasons.

Kleppe was named to the SBA post in January 1971 by former President Nixon and was asked by President Ford to continue in that job.

He lost Senate races to Sen. Quentin Burdick in 1964 and 1970 by substantial margins.

He is a former mayor of Bismarck and a one-time Minneapolis investment banker.

Kleppe's position on environmental matters is largely a matter of speculation since he has little or no public record on current issues in this area.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said, "The President believes he is the best man for the job and that's why he nominated him."

Kleppe, 55, was backed by a group of Western senators.

"I think he will make a good Interior secretary," said Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., one of the sponsors. "The fact that he has not been involved with a lot of environmental issues will be an asset. He is more middle of the road."

Kleppe's agency was shaken last year by a loan scandal in its Richmond, Va., office that resulted in the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars and the firings of two SBA officials.

Terror in Tripoli

Editors: The following report was telephoned to the Associated Press in Beirut Tuesday by a Tripoli resident who has lived through a week of savage sectarian fighting between Christians and Moslems. He asked to remain anonymous.

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (AP) — Bullets are falling like rain, mortar shells like melons. I have seen men so scared they are soiling their pants.

Looters are loose in Tripoli. Armed Moslems are blowing up Christian-owned shops and armed Christians are attacking Moslem-owned stores.

More than a dozen shops along the main boulevard leading into the city have been blown up by Moslems. These shops are owned by Zaghartans, people from the hometown of Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh.

Christians and Moslems set up sandbag barriers at street intersections and rifle wielding snipers from both sides are manning rooftop positions. The exchange of gunfire is intermittent, but shattering explosions were heard in the heart of the city.

Civilians rushed to the source of one explosion to find a shop owned by a Moslem resident of Tripoli blown up. These civilians quickly proceeded to a nearby shop owned by a Zaghartan and blew it to shreds.

People have given up hopes of defending their property. All they care for is to stay alive. Screams of women and men yelling for help are often heard in narrow alleyways near the inner souk (market) area.

Security forces cannot cope with the situation, and armed civilians shoot strangers without warning.

More than 60 people have been killed and nearly 100 wounded in the weeklong fighting between Moslems and Christians. (Security forces put the known toll in the week of clashes at 83 killed and predicted it would rise higher.)

It is like real war. They use very sophisticated weapons, and most of them are expert guerrillas. They use mortars, bazookas, 50-caliber machineguns, and they issue communiques through bullhorns.

Palestinian forces unleashed tens of rounds of mortar shells and rockets from the suburb of Kubbeh into Zagharta, five kilometers (about three miles) away. Zaghartan snipers managed to sneak into the city and capture rooftop positions. They shot one Palestinian guerrilla Monday night. He was badly wounded.

At daybreak Tuesday, Moslems marched on several fuel stations owned by Christians from Zagharta and blew them up.

On Sunday, the Christians blew up water pipes. Most of Tripoli became thirsty. Some residents relied on underground wells while others sought water in nearby pumping stations and streams.

Manson family minds 'eaten away'—Younger

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state attorney general says members of the Manson family "probably have taken enough acid that their minds are eaten away and they are mentally and emotionally ill."

One early member of Charles Manson's clan, Lynette Fromme, 27, was arrested Friday and charged with trying to murder President Ford, who found himself looking at a pistol while shaking hands in Capitol Park.

Younger said law enforcement officers can't just go out and arrest people who have become mentally and emotionally ill on drugs.

Manson and three members of his family were convicted of masterminding the seven Tate-LaBianca murders in Los Angeles in 1969.

Witnesses testified during the trial that Manson family members took LSD and other hallocenogenic drugs several times a day in large doses.

Prosecutors said Manson used drugs to program his followers to commit murder.

Younger feels there are "a lot of crazy people running around, but nothing can be done unless there is an act that is illegal," spokesman Al Gordon said in an interview.

Younger cited Sandra Good, 31, Miss Fromme's roommate, as an example of someone who is "incoherent and stands for everything that Manson does. But you can't just put her away because there is no reason for an arrest."

Miss Good was questioned and released after Miss Fromme's arrest.

Younger said he would be "disturbed" if the Secret Service did not have all of the information he had on Miss Fromme.

The state's top crime fighter said he had a thick file on the woman charged with attempted murder of the President and on other members of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson's cult-like family.

After Miss Fromme's arrest Friday, Douglas Duncan chief of the Secret Service Sacramento office, said he had no files on Miss Fromme, who lived eight blocks from the site of the attempted assassination Friday.

Duncan said he did not personally know she was in town and that the data his office had on her was "word of mouth."

Earlier, the public defender representing Miss Fromme said he will probably seek a gag order to prevent officials from talking about the assassination attempt.

Younger, who was Los Angeles district attorney when Manson was prosecuted there, said he has kept his eye on Manson family activities and his office has much background on the group.

Younger said the Manson file was available to the Secret Service.

"I will be disturbed if it eventually develops that we had in our files information that the Secret Service didn't have. I'll wonder why they didn't have it," he said.

But even with such information, Younger said he doesn't believe there would have been sufficient reason to lock up Miss Fromme before she reached the Capitol area.

Manson family...

The U.S. attorney's office said it was informed that E. Richard Walker, appointed to represent Miss Fromme, would file a request with the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco to prevent public statements by prosecutors and others.

A gag order would not prevent Miss Fromme from talking if she wants to. The 27-year-old member of Manson's cult-like family has many times expressed the desire to "have a courtroom" in which to express Manson's philosophy.

It appeared likely that she would use any future trial as a forum to give those opinions.

Keyes said he didn't plan to call Manson family members before the grand jury. Keyes will seek an indictment under the special law covering assassination attempts on presidents which carries a mandatory life sentence upon conviction.

Sandra Good, 31, Miss Fromme's roommate and sister Manson disciple, will not be a witness, but sources said she has been under investigation.

Miss Good was questioned and released last Friday because, Keyes said, there was no evidence against her.

No conspiracy charges have been filed,but authorities are still probing the possibility that others in the Manson clan may have known of Miss Fromme's plan to go to the Capitol area where Ford greeted spectators Friday.

Witnesses have said the redhaired woman pointed a gun at Ford before it was wrestled from her hand by a Secret Service agent.

Keyes said his investigators are still evaluating evidence confiscated from Miss Fromme's apartment — including a number of hunting knives in scabbards. He said no other weapons were found at the apartment.

The biggest job for investigators is reading through what the FBI called "stacks and stacks" of letters written to Miss Fromme and Miss Good by Manson, the convicted murderer and clan leader now serving a life sentence at San Quentin prison.

"There were sometimes five to six letters a day," Keyes said. He said there are also unmailed letters written by the women and "we have some of their writings."

Why Kansas City was GOP convention pick

WASHINGTON (AP) — For political reasons, Republicans wanted to go to the Middle West. When the showdown came, the chief factor in the choice of Kansas City was the comfort of the delegates.

The convention hall in Kansas City presented problems, the Republicans conceded, and there was a shortage of hotel rooms.

But the room shortage in Cleveland was even more severe and, in addition, there was a shortage of toilets.

The report of the Republican Site Selection Committee spelled out some of the considerations.

Cleveland could provide only 12,449 rooms with another 1,346 available in Akron, at least an hour's drive away. When an earlier plan to house delegates on cruise ships in Lake Erie fell through, Mayor Ralph Perk suggested building modular homes with an additional 1,400 rooms in groupings to be known as Lincoln and Eisenhower, Villages.

"This alternative is novel, has appeal, but in the final analysis is nonexistent, except on paper," the committee reported. It added that the plan for one bathroom for every two rooms failed to meet the requirement of first-class hotel rooms.

In Kansas City, the number of hotel rooms available was 15,755 with some 2,000 of them in the Topeka, Kan., area. Topeka also is about an hour away, but the committee said traffic there was less of a problem than in other cities.

When the issue came up for debate this week, after Sunday night's unanimous committee vote for Kansas City, the only question dealt with the hotel rooms in Topeka.

"I love Topeka very much," said California GOP Chairman Paul Haerle, adding that it might pose problems to house delegates there and transport them to Kansas City.

"It is not an ideal situation," conceded Edwin G. Middleton of Kentucky, vice chairman of the site committee.

But he noted that delegates often had to rise at least an hour to get to convention halls in San Francisco and Miami Beach and added that only "visitors and whatnot" would end up in Topeka.

With that detail out of the way, the committee voted to hold the convention in Kansas City.

Groom to sue church over poor wedding

LONDON (AP) — What is a wedding without music?

Because the organist allegedly forgot about the wedding and failed to turn up, Patrick Lambert, 23, claims the ceremony uniting him and his 18-year-old bride, Yvonne, was a "bad joke more like a funeral."

The reception afterwards was just as bad - "nobody felt like enjoying themselves."

The wedding night was terrible - "Yvonne was still upset: I didn't have the heart to disturb her so I slept on the sofa."

The honeymoon - "Yvonne was still distressed, so we came home four days early." "We might just as well have got married in a civil ceremony."

So now he plans to sue the church. The church has offered to refund him the $55 the ceremony cost, But Lambert declared "the wedding and honeymoon cost me $2.000 and I'm prepared to sue for everything."

European Market hits imported car probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has until May to decide if imported autos are being sold here at less than their fair price.

The European Common Market protested stiffly today the continuation of the government's investigation, voted 4 to 2 Monday by the U.S. International Trade Commission.

The Commission directed the Treasury Department to investigate charges that $7.5 billion worth of cars from eight nations are being sold here cut rate.

The executive commission of the Common Market said in Brussels, Belgium, the trade commission action meant the investigation would continue "with the harrassment, legal expense and possible disruption to trade which this implies."

Man, 75, burned in accident

A Mira Loma man suffered burns early today after a truck struck the rear of his small car in Chino, causing it to overturn and catch fire.

John Hughes, 75, was treated at Chino General Hospital for burns on his face, hand and arm. He was later released.

He was driving west on the Pomona Freeway about 3:30 a.m. when a truck operated by Ronald Campbell, 32, of Anaheim, struck the rear of his small vehicle. The accident occurred east of Ramona Avenue.

The impact caused the vehicle to overturn and catch fire. The driver was able to climb out the passenger door. The fire later engulfed the car.

The truck driver told highway patrolmen he was traveling about 55 miles an hour and did not see the car until he was almost on top of it. He swerved to the left but his front bumper caught the rear of the car, he added.

Campbell wasn't injured.

Kiwanis club to seat slate

Attorney Jay Knight will be installed as president of the Claremont Kiwanis Club Thursday at 6 p.m. at Griswold's.

The club observed Ladies' Night as well as induction of officers for the 1975-76 year.

Lt. Gov. Bill Davidson will cite the services of officers retiring, and Lt. Gov.-elect and Mrs. Sid Jones will install those who will serve for the new year beginning Oct. 1.

Knight has been presiding at club meetings as vice-president since President Guy Warfel's departure for Saipan in August.

Vocalists Dean and Marge Fowler will entertain.

Serving with Knight the coming year will be Tim Castleberry and John Keil, vice presidents; John Lang, treasurer; Jim Flagg, secretary; and Owen Brown, Cleo Burton, Phil Johnston, Stan Larson, Bob Omohundro, and Eero Omri, directors. Dell Sauter, a seventh director, is on leave.

St. Louis board split, forcing Wentz to wait

Pomona Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz will have to wait at least until tonight to find out if he is chosen superintendent of the St. Louis City School District.

Wentz, one of two principal candidates for the position, says he does not expect the appointment to be made until this weekend.

The St. Louis school board Tuesday night appeared split over the selection, according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The board went into a closed door session, which was disrupted by some parents angry over a "secret" meeting. They staged a sit-in outside the board conference room.

During the regular session, board President James L. Cummings angrily denounced an attempt by some board members to choose a new superintendent immediately and in secrecy.

He said the selection process should be done in a public meeting, and that it was too early to evaluate information from the two main candidates, Wentz and St. Louis Deputy Supt. Ernest Jones.

A third candidate, Charles Bernardo, superintendent of Providence, R.I. schools, may be considered for the post, according to Cummings, who disputed a story in the Post-Dispatch saying Bernardo already had accepted another job.

The board adjourned the meeting until this evening.

According to the Post-Dispatch, the split among board members may be a result of considerable local backing for Jones, a "hometown boy."

Cummings has said, however, that Wentz did not seek the job. "We sought him."

The 90,000-student district employs 7,000 persons.

Both Wentz and Jones were interviewed last weekend by members of 25 civic groups and organizations, in public forums. They were asked controversial questions, pertinent to St. Louis school problems.

Cycle, train, car in Ontario crashes

A Southern Pacific train engine rammed into the side of a car and a motorcyclist slid into a parked pickup truck in Ontario Tuesday.

Allen Ray Simmerman, 22, of 1092 E. Elma St., Ontario, was injured when a motorcycle he was riding south on Orange Street skidded on a puddle of water and slid into a parked pickup truck near Plaza Serena, police reported.

Simmerman was taken to Ontario Community Hospital for treatment and later was released.

Eula Faye Baker, 35, of 14939 Redwood St., Chino, was injured when her car was struck by a Southern Pacific train engine on Euclid Avenue near State Street.

Mrs. Baker was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital and later released. Police said the Chino woman told officers she was caught on the railroad tracks in heavy traffic when the crossing arms suddenly came down to move forward off the tracks but was unable to do so because of other cars stopped in front of her. The train hit the side of the car, spinning it around.

The engineer of the train, Larry A. Van Daele, 60, of Norwalk said he could not stop the engine in time to avoid the collision.

Third youth is arrested in shooting

A third 17-year-old youth has been arrested for investigation of attempted murder and burglary by West End Sheriff's detectives investigating the Sept. 2 shooting of a Cucamonga market owner.

Detectives Lenn Allen and Gary Eisenbeiz arrested the third youth, 17, from Ontario, in the case Tuesday afternoon as a result of a week-long investigation. Two other 17-year-old youths from Cucamonga were earlier arrested by the detectives in connection with the shooting of Lorenzo Cerda Rodriquez, 83, owner of Avila's Market on 24th Street in Cucamonga. Rodriquez was shot several times by a youth holding a shotgun outside of his store that had just been burglarized.

Rodriquez, after the shooting, said four to five youths confronted him after they allegedly broke into his store. One of the youths is believed to have a .12-gauge shotgun used in the shooting.

Rodriquez remains hospitalized at San Antonio Community Hospital recovering from multiple pellet wounds of the upper legs.

$28 million pacts given to Dynamics

Two contracts totaling $28.1 million have been awarded to General Dynamics Pomona by the Navy, Rep. James Lloyd, D-35 Dist., announced today.

A $22.8 million contract calls for the production of standard Type One missiles. A separate contract for $5.3 million has been granted for operations and maintenance of the Naval Industrial Reserve Ordnance plant.

A spokesman for General Dynamics said the contracts would enable the company to continue present ongoing projects.

Orange Show theme sought

The National Orange Show in San Bernardino is now accepting theme entries for its 1976 show in March.

The winner will receive $150 and a season pass to the exposition.

Entries should be two or three words, sent on a post card to Theme Contest, National Orange Show, 689 S. E St., San Bernardino 92408. Entrants should include address and phone number.

Previous years' themes have included "This is America," "Citrus Serenade," and "Citrus International."

PB story sparks outburst by school board members

Two Pomona school board members Tuesday night proposed withholding from the public information on upcoming board meetings because of their feud with the Progress Bulletin.

Board President Don Donnelly and member C. Allen Braswell cited alleged inaccuracies in a Monday Progress Bulletin story which outlined an additional 10-cent tax hike per $100 assessed valuation for Pomona School District taxpayers.

Crux of the outburst from Donnelly and Braswell was wording of the story which appeared on the front page of the second section Monday. The pair alleged that the Progress Bulletin misstated facts and made it appear that the board had a choice of hiking taxes 10 cents.

They explained their hands were tied and statutes demanded the 10-cent hike with no choice given board members.

Reason for the additional 10-cent hike was outlined in statements from Asst. Supt. Lynn Rountree, district business manager.

He said that when the school budget was adopted last month, only estimates and not actual figures were available from utilities within the district. That estimate was based on a 2½ per cent increase in utility valuations. But utility valuations actually fell almost $3½ million when actual figures were made available to the district.

The 10-cent tax hike became mandatory to meet requirements of the budget already adopted and automatically would be assessed with or without board approval which was not necessary, Rountree explained.

At that point, Braswell unleashed a tirade upon the Progress Bulletin citing "constant inaccuracies." Donnelly followed with a tirade of his own.

"The public press is interested only in sensationalism and blood and guts and not fact," Donnelly charged.

A representative of the League of Women Voters, Helen Coonrod, defended Progress Bulletin coverage of school board meetings as factual.

But Donnelly interrupted her stating:

"There are inaccuracies and the editorial policy of the Progress Bulletin is . . . . well, I shouldn't go into that . . ."

Donnelly's apparent reference to the Progress Bulletin's editorial policy referred to this newspaper's opposition to the tax override proposal of $1.10 this past summer. (Voters approved the override.)

Both Donnelly and Braswell urged board members Ken Pine and Gene Whitlock to join them in ending the policy of furnishing advance board meeting agenda to the PB for publication so that Pomona School District taxpayers can be informed of issues to be discussed in upcoming board meetings. Action was tabled until the next meeting.

This policy, if adopted, would serve to cut off one channel of communication between the district and taxpayers.

Claremont council to meet with planners over RUD requirements

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council will meet with the Planning Commission to discuss the concept of a residential unit development (RUD). The board decided on the session after learning Tuesday that the Armstrong Development Corp. is withdrawing its application for such a development in unincorporated county territory.

Under an RUD approved with conditions, a developer can increase the density of his homes by dedicating to the city a certain percentage of land for use as open space, such as parks and equestrian trails.

The Planning Commission Sept. 2 approved a conditional use permit to allow Armstrong to develop 80 units under an RUD north of Miramar Avenue extension between Indian Hill Boulevard and Forbes Avenue.

Developer Robert Armstrong as part of the RUD arrangement proposed dedicating to the city as "visual open space" 6.5 acres of lemon grove bordering on the northwest boundary of the tract, but asked that the city lease back to Dr. Robert Harn the 6.5 acres for lemon farming for 15 years.

At the Planning Commission hearing, neighboring property owners complained about the proposal of fencing the grove, and the commission made one of the conditions of the permit that the proposed open space be adopted with an extension to the trail system along Thompson Creek, and that the open space be not a secured area, and not a lemon grove.

Armstrong in his letter to the council Tuesday night said that the (city's) scope of requirements "has reached a degree whereby the development is not economically feasible."

"We further regret," Armstrong said," that this is the first time in our 20 years of development in the city that such a decision is necessary. We have not reached this conclusion lightly as we have devoted considerable expense to the project to date."

Armstrong said that if the firm reaches a satisfactory agreement with Dr. Harn, it will resubmit a new tentative plan with a proposal for lots of 13,000 square feet developed in the conventional manner.

The Armstrong tract is part of a larger 138-acre Annexation 50 which will be heard by LAFCO Sept. 24.

The council was assured that the county has approved a tentative tract map for Armstrong which could be annexed to the city under county zoning standards. The city had also approved a tentative tract map on the same property.

City Manager Norman King told the council that the Planning Commission needs better directions on what the city wants developers to dedicate as open space.

"We have serious procedural problems which finally have surfaced," he said. "Discussion is needed between council, planners and concerned residents."

"Do we really want the RUD?" Mayor Bertye Smith asked.

Seniors club maps trip to Marineland

The Chino Senior Citizens Club is sponsoring a trip to Marineland of the Pacific Thursday.

A bus will leave from the Chino Community Building at 9 a.m. and return at 4 p.m. Cost for transportation is $2.75, payable to the Recreation and Parks Department before the event. Admission charge will be $2.

The club also is planning a visit to the Los Angeles County Fair on Sept. 22.

Price for that trip is $1, payable in advance. A bus will leave the Community Building at 10 a.m. and return at 4 p.m.

Reservations may be made by calling the recreation office at 627-7344.

Against former principal

$900,000 suit a 'crime'—trustee

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Chino school trustee Al McCombs Tuesday night blasted a $900,000 libel suit against former Chino High School principal Terry Terril as "spiteful" and a "crime against students."

The suit, filed by the Chino Federation of Teachers (CFT) in July, alleges that Terril injured the union with charges of "unprofessional conduct." His comments were reported in three local newspapers.

Terrill resigned in April, charging that a handful of teachers were campus troublemakers. He identified them as members of CFT, an AFL-CIO affiliate.

McCombs made his comments after the school board approved the hiring of an outside attorney to defend the district's part in the libel action.

"The teachers' union should realize that by forcing the district to spend money to defend itself, funds will be used that could go into the general educational program," said McCombs.

With "competent counsel," the district will not be forced to pay damages, he added, predicting a "victory" for the board.

McCombs added, "We are still forced to use educational dollars to protect ourselves from a spiteful suit, and that is a crime against students of this district."

CTF president L.A. Olson, commenting on McCombs' charges after the meeting, said, "I don't see how a lawsuit can be spiteful. That was an innocuous comment."

Teachers were exposed to public ridicule by Terril, and "allowing themselves to be walked on is a worse crime than spending money in defense of a suit," she said.

Supt. Royce Lapp, in recommending the board hire an outside attorney, explained that Terril must be defended as a former agent of the district.

The suit names Terril individually and as principal of the high school within the Chino Unified School District.

Lapp added that in "no way" can the district defend him as an individual person.

"The risk is too great," he said, indicating the district must defend its alleged part in the suit. "If you let it go by default you're subject to attorney fees and a default judgment."

Lapp told the board that Dep. County Counsel Craig Jordan informed him the complaint must be answered by Sept. 15. Jordan suggested hiring an outside attorney because he has no experience in libel cases, Lapp said.

Jordan's fee would be $35 an hour, but a private attorney would cost much more, officials indicated.

Trustee Pete VanderPoel noted he "did not particularly want to lose this case", and called for hiring the attorney.

Board members asked Lapp whether the district is "responsible" for Terril's defense. The superintendent indicated since he was an employe, the district was involved.

"I don't think Terril was admitting he acted on behalf of the district," said McCombs.

But VanderPoel argued that "You can't wash your hands of the situation."

McCombs reported, "We might want to take the stand that Terril was acting on his own. If we defend him, it may be an admission of guilt."

He favored hiring outside legal help to defend the district's "best interests", not Terril's. (Lapp said Terril told him he had not retained an attorney to defend himself.)

The question remains to be resolved in court whether Terril acted alone or as an agent of the district, trustee Lyle Briggs declared.

The board will decide by the next meeting the name of the attorney to be hired.

It's no time for trading

"Like the rebounding of a landmass after the lifting of the weight of a glacier, the nation of Portugal continues to float on a wave of euphoria following the ending of more than four decades of rightwing dictatorship . . .

"One is reminded of the happy throngs in the streets of Havana on New Year's Day, 1959, after dictator Fulgencio Batista had fled the country and Fidel Castro and his victorious army entered the city — and then one thinks of what happened in the ensuing months . . ."

We wrote those words some 14 months ago. The euphoria of the Portuguese has long since been transformed into fear and the happy throngs into destructive mobs. The human "landmass" of Portugal is in greater upheaval than ever and the future of the nation hangs daily in precarious balance.

It took no special insight or powers of prediction to warn that a people which had no experience with democracy, which had none of those institutions that in a democracy safeguard freedom and permit the orderly interplay of competing interests and transference of power from one party to another, might find that, like the Cubans, it had merely traded a dictatorship of the right for a more oppressive one of the left.

That this has not happened in Portugal is due to one thing only — the determination of the overwhelming majority of the Portuguese that it not be permitted to happen.

While the non-Communist political spectrum in Portugal is infinitely fragmented, ranging from socialists to monarchists, from moderates to extremists of the right, it is united in a desire for a new day in Portugal of democratically constituted rule. In the first free election in the country's history, the Communists received only 12 per cent of the votes.

But the will of the people has been thwarted by an equally determined and better organized core of Communists and pro-Communists who have seized control of the government, supported to an uncertain degree by the army.

Thus the people have taken to the streets to express their will, burning and sacking Communist party offices, and everyone wonders which side the army may yet come down on.

All of this has been a severe setback to the Communists, who are currently on the defensive. But no one can predict what may happen in Portugal in the coming days or weeks. The nation's long ordeal is not yet over.

Wrong time, wrong item

No doubt state legislators wouldn't mind an increase in the per diem rate they receive for expenses: who would? But this is the wrong time for such an increase, not to mention a dubious item to be increased in the first place.

The per diem, currently $30 a day, $210 a week while the Legislature is in session, is theoretically to reimburse members for the cost of establishing a second home in Sacramento — this despite the fact that many legislators have their first home in Sacramento and maintain only a nominal (and sometimes sublet) residence in their districts. The per diem rate, last increased in 1971, is set by the State Board of Control.

And the amount is untaxed, although the Internal Revenue Service is taking another look at its untaxed status. The legislators are getting in expenses alone what many people would be happy to have as a salary.

So when Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy says, as he did last week, that there is "very substantial support" for increasing the per diem, first concede his analysis is probably accurate and second wonder what he and his colleagues are up to.

A vote on a legislative pay raise will be up in the Assembly sometime this week, and next to a weekly per diem increase of $98, which is one figure bandied about, the weekly pay increase to be voted on, about $40, doesn't look immense.

But it is just such items as per diem increases that arouse opposition to the more justified pay increases, so that the per diem suggestion is not so much a decoy (if that were its intended purpose) as a red flag. A good many legislators seem not to have realized this. — Riverside Daily Enterprise.

Integrity in government

Time is running out on congressional working days for 1975 and still Congress has failed to deal with the energy crisis and governmental accountability.

John Gardner, director of Common Cause, and many concerned citizens have been insisting that Congress move us at least a few steps beyond the quicksands of special interest manipulation.

HR 15 regarding lobby disclosure and HR 3249 regarding financial disclosure deal effectively with these issues, but they have been bottled up in the House Judiciary Committee since last March.

Finally, Rep. Flowers, chairman of the committee, has set a date, Sept. 11, to begin hearings. However, unless citizens and media insist that priority consideration is given these bills and they go to the House floor by Thanksgiving, there will be little chance for action this year.

The process these bills would establish would substantially improve the climate for integrity in government. With less chance for corruption, Congress just might be able to devote itself to finding real solutions to our nation's problem unfettered by special interests pulling them first one way and then another. We need to urge our representatives to co-sponsor these bills and press for prompt action.

Hit man's lament

WASHINGTON — Once you become a trigger man for the Mafia, it's dangerous to change your ways.

This has been the experience of John Patrick Tully, an admitted "hit" man for the murderous Campisi Family of the New Jersey underworld.

The repentant Tully became a witness for the state. Now he is locked in solitary confinement for his own protection. There has already been an attempt upon his life.

Meanwhile, the men he helped put behind bars got off with lighter sentences than he did. And another government informer, whose testimony was less crucial, has been provided a new identity and turned loose to seek a new life.

We were caught up in the Tully case a year ago. He called us and asked us to help arrange his peaceful surrender. He read to us from his wanted poster and told of his flight to Venezuela in 1971 to avoid a multiple mob murder charge.

The FBI reached Tully's hideout a couple hours ahead of our associate, Jack Cloherty. Since Tully has been in custody, we have kept in continuing contact with him.

We encouraged him to cooperate with the prosecutors. Within a week after his decision to testify, all nine of the Campisi mobsters pleaded guilty in return for reduced sentences.

The cooperative Tully was promised a sentence lighter than those given to the mobsters he helped to convict. Yet he was sentenced to 15 years, while two of the Campisis got off with three-year terms.

Another informant, Ira Pecznick, a three-time killer, walked away from the courthouse a free man. Pecznick was the first to sing for the state. But it was Tully who gave the charges credibility and, therefore, is credited with breaking the case.

Pecznick is described by federal prosecutors as "a dangerous psychotic." Yet he is out on the street, complete with a new identity arranged by the Justice Department, in return for his testimony.

In contrast, Tully has been described by federal probation officials as "a new man" who has undergone "a complete metamorphosis."

We have held wide-ranging discussions with Tully during the past year, and we have noticed a dramatic change in him. In his first call, he was a hard-bitten tough. But slowly, he began to change.

Now he speaks convincingly of serving his time and starting a new life. This former gunman, once regarded as the most brutal of the Campisi mob, wept openly when a federal judge gave him a sentence that allows for immediate parole.

The judge acted upon the report of parole officials. But it won't help Tully unless his state sentence is reduced.

Meanwhile, the only safe place for him is in solitary. He is marked as a "stool pigeon," and the mob is out to get him.

There is no way to wipe out Tully's past. He murdered for hire. For this, he owes a debt to society. But in light of the treatment of Pecznick and the Campisis, the state is demanding a curiously high price from John Patrick Tully.

CANCER CONTROVERSY: The Chicago chemical company, Velsicol, is conducting an undercover campaign to discredit Environmental Protection Agency chief Russell Train. His offense: he banned two of the firm's pesticides, heptachlor and chlordane, as cancer agents. The company insists its pesticides don't cause cancer. Meanwhile, letters have gone out from Velsicol to 120,000 corn farmers urging them to deluge Congress with letters and telegrams attacking Train.

KIDNAP PLOT: Supporters of the Greek junta scoffed at our story last April that the military dictatorship plotted to kidnap a prominent Greek exile, Elias Demetracopolous, and return him to Greece to be killed. We now have a copy of a confidential government memo, dated Oct. 24, 1973, describing how Greek information official Dimetrios Petrounakos was supposed to "undertake a special mission of extermination of the reactionary, Elias Demetracopoulos, active in the USA." According to another startling memo, the junta expected "the cooperation of the various agencies of the U.S. government" to help kidnap the exile.

Our Man in Washington

The open road still beckons

By TERRY M. WADE
PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The millions of motorists who traveled the nation's highways during the Labor Day Weekend provided ample proof America has no intention of putting the old jalopy on blocks.

Even while conservationists and many congressmen plot ways of keeping the family car at home, in the garage, the American public daily answers with a collective flip of their ignition switches.

Their answer, despite rising fuel costs and slower speed limits, is unquestionably clear — they're going to keep on driving as long as there is gas at the pumps.

No one is happy with the higher fuel prices and there are not too many motorists who like the 55 mile per hour national speed limit, but they continue to fill the highways at every opportunity.

This apparently calloused attitude toward the nation's every growing energy problem could be baffling if a basic precept of this nation is forgotten.

Americans have grown so accustomed to freedom, not philosophical, but real freedom of movement, they are reluctant to give it up.

Maybe, just maybe, 100 million drivers can't be wrong.

The automobile is the most visible energy consumer and air polluter around. Consequently it is only natural it should get the brunt of conservation-crazed environmentalists' attention.

While they are probably right when they point out the automobile is the most wasteful fuel consumer in the country, perhaps they are wrong when they advocate an end to the auto.

Wouldn't it be a better idea to convert our factories and homes to some alternative source of energy leaving the only fuel that can operate cars for that purpose?

After all coal is the most plentiful energy source in this country and most factories could run just as well on coal as they have been running on oil and gas.

Coal can be used to generate electricity. Electricity can both heat and cool our homes.

There really is no sense debating the issue. If an urban American will put up with the traffic jam and parking costs prevalent in our cities today, higher fuel prices and prohibitive laws aren't going to keep cars off the roads.

It's time Congress and the rest of the nation gets down to the serious business of making more economical cars, but at the same time developing alternate energy sources for our industry and homes.

The American motorists will never give up that silent internal cry each morning "start your engines."

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Do you want to know what's wrong with today's senior citizens besides arthritis, bifocals and hearing impairments? Well, after interviewing a reasonable cross section of the Under Thirty crowd I have unearthed some rather interesting answers to that question.

Since most senior citizen couples insist on getting married before living together, they are squares.

Because older men are inclined to treat women with a little courtesy and respect, they're domineering, chauvinistic males.

Since most older folks aren't inclined to grease the political hand that's feeding them, they don't know their way around.

Older folks would rather walk five blocks instead of driving their cars, which proves they're penny pinchers.

They usually pay the asking price, which shows they don't have any connections.

And when it comes to music appreciation they're so dumb they even like Lawrence Welk.

After all, as most of the young folks I interviewed pointed out, there's no fool like an old fool. — And with this last accusation I heartily agree. We oldsters are certainly fools to let the youngsters get away with that sort of bad mouthing.

Without reform it's pie in sky

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There is growing evidence U.S. economic aid is largely wasted in those underdeveloped countries where farmers don't own their own land.

Yet, strangely, it is precisely for such countries that the bulk of individual U.S. aid is currently earmarked — lands like India, Pakistan and Bangladesh.

Moreover, there is no evidence that pumping multimillions in assistance to such nations encourages effective change. Unlike trends in the U.S., Japan, Taiwan and South Korea, the rich get richer and the poor poorer, and infant mortality remains at alarmingly high rates.

Our aid to countries lacking land reform seems to fail, even when we directly and indirectly pump in millions for dams, roads, electricity, currency support, cooperatives and for agricultural improvements — where land reform is missing.

Some of the countries with the worst showing, in fact, are those in which, with fanfare, we introduced major new strains of rice–as a part of the green revolution. The escalation in oil prices, blamed by many, applied to most underdeveloped countries and therefore does not explain away the startling contrasts between those which made major strides and those which did not.

Listen to Dr. Roy Prosterman, of the University of Washington, who, with colleagues, has recently completed a comparative study of land reform, infant mortality and other factors which, statistically at least, correlate with increasing agricultural productivity and self-sufficiency in underdeveloped countries:

" . . . technology, without motivation, is not enough, and the tenant farmers and landless laborers of countries like India and the Philippines have shown — in every single country, every one — that they will not make the vital on-farm improvements, such as new drainage and water systems and land levelling, that are crucial to producing a good first crop and absolutely prerequisite to producing any second or third annual crop. Non-owners will not make these or other essential agricultural improvements . . ."

According to Prosterman's data, the three nations in East Asia which have done best in increasing rice production in the past quarter century — Japan, South Korea and Taiwan — ended their landlord systems before 1953.

By contrast, increases in rice output per acre in India, Pakistan and the Philippines, where there has been little or no progress in land reform — have been a third to a fourth as great.

The wheat story is the same. Mexico, which redistributed land effectively years back, more than tripled output per acre between 1951 and 1974. Pakistan and India, despite large amounts of agricultural aid and technical assistance, did only a fourth as well.

In passing, Prosterman notes that collectivized rice farming in North Vietnam has done barely better than the landlord system of India or the Philippines in productivity increases. And China has been outpaced by Japan, South Korea and Taiwan in improved rice yields. Mexico has far outpaced the collectivized Chinese wheat farms.

Interestingly, the decline in infant mortality is most significant in those lands where the farmer owns his land or, according to local custom, has the equivalent of ownership.

In Mexico, infant mortality was reduced from 105 per thousand the first year of life, to 61. In Taiwan, the reduction was from 71 deaths per thousand to 18, in Japan from 67 to 12, in Barbados from 152 to 31, in Jamaica, from 90 to 31, in Trinidad and Tobago from 71 to 18.

The rate in India was 139 per 1,000 in 1951-61. It was unchanged in 1972-73.

Telephone company lax, customer says

The telephone company should be able to supply information to those who dial for it at least as good as that to be found in the local directories.

My recent experience is that this is not so and that the personnel at the supervisory level strongly deny the customer's right to this service.

First I sought the number of the only hospital in the Big Bear area, where I had been given a tetanus shot following an accident last April. The shot had caused a severe reaction and I needed to know the specific kind of shot given.

I had forgotten the hospital's name. Two persons who answered my 555-1212 call conscientiously combed lists available to them to find a hospital number. They also looked in their yellow pages list. There was no number under "Big Bear Hospital."

It was suggested that I call the Big Bear Chamber of Commerce to obtain the number I sought.

The Chamber of Commerce official who answered my call agreed that it was a bad business for such an important number to be so difficult to find but questioned whether it was the fault of her community.

She said the telephone information service so often referred calls to the Big Bear Chamber of Commerce that she wondered whether her office wasn't doing part of the phone company's business (for nothing).

After giving me the hospital's name, Bear Valley Community Hospital, and number, she checked her local directory.

There WAS a listing for "Big Bear Hospital" in the white pages and it keyed the reader to the "Bear Valley" name.

When I called back to complain to the supervisor, she tried to interrupt me before I gave her my full story. She said it was not reasonable to expect the phone company to keep such information as the "Big Bear Hospital" key, even though it was to be found in the local phone directory. — L. M., Claremont.

You thought your problem was with General Telephone but that company told us centralized directory assistance for the entire 714 area is handled by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

After we contacted Pacific, you received an apology from Miriam Matthews, district staff manager of operator services.

She said the company's directory assistance bureaus try to provide customers with telephone numbers requested if at all possible based on details supplied by the customer and records available to the operator.

In your case, she said, the number should have been found.

Miss Matthews also apologized for the rudeness you encountered in your subsequent contact with a directory assistance supervisor.

"The behavior you described is not consistent with our standards and, fortunately, does not reflect the conscientious efforts of most of our employes," she said in the letter addressed to you.

More on 'gruesome grabbers'

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from the gal whose sisters, aunts and cousins descended on her mother's house like a pack of vultures and picked the place clean hit very close to home. The writer signed herself "Can't Stand Grabbers." Well—I hope your advice "MAKE A WILL" was heeded by all those nice people out there who just assume their belongings will go to the people they want to have them.

When my husband's darling mother died, his sister arrived first. She was grief-stricken. For about 15 minutes. Then she pulled herself together and went through the house like a streak of lightning. When I walked into the bedroom to use the phone I saw drawers open and boxes strewn everywhere. The place looked as if it had been burglarized. I couldn't believe it.

When "sis" left she had all the jewelry, silver and every piece of art worth owning. She also had her name taped on the best pieces of furniture. "I'll send you some of Mother's nice things," Sis promised as she left.

After the funeral, I received a dozen plastic hangers, a jar of cotton balls, some old clothes and a moth-eaten fur piece.

My husband adored his mother and so did our children. They don't have one thing worth keeping as a memento. Of course the poor darling never wrote a will — and she'd turn over in her grave if she knew what has happened. — Heartsick In Boston

Dear Heartsick: Your letter says it far better than I could — but I'll make another attempt. MAKE A WILL. It's the only way to be sure your money and personal belongings will go to those you want to have them. Otherwise "The Grabbers" will move in fast.

Also, the attorney in charge of the estate should make certain nothing is removed from the house of the deceased until the will has been read.

Dear Ann Landers: I can't be alone in my misery. Please help us all.

My mother-in-law, for the third time this year, is coming to visit for two weeks. I could put up with her if she'd just be a guest. But the minute she arrives she begins to clean the house, rearrange the furniture and make suggestions on how to improve the looks of the place. ("Your kitchen needs new curtains. The bathrooms could use a coat of paint," etc.) She starts every sentence with, "Why don't you?"

Now she has started to interfere with the way I feed and dress our child. "He's not getting enough roughage. He needs vitamins. His room is too hot. His play clothes are tacky . . ."

I find myself getting nervous before each visit. By the time she leaves, I'm on tranquilizers and my husband and I aren't speaking. He says, "She's just trying to help." Get the picture? — Sign Me Berserk

Dear B.: One thing is certain — you will never change your mother-in-law, but you can change a few other things.

First: the frequency of her visits. Ask your doctor to inform your husband that his mother's visits are too taxing and should be cut to twice a year.

Second: when your M.I.L. makes suggestions, smile and say, "You're probably right. I'll think about it . . ." Then develop amnesia.

Third: if she wants to clean your house and rearrange the furniture — let her. Maybe she'll get a hernia.

Closing the generation gap

As if I don't have enough on my mind, my daughter told me the other day my ozone was in trouble.

As a college graduate, I knew right away either (a) the antifreeze had leaked out of my car (b) my sinus cavity was ready to crest (c) someone had flicked their Bic near all the papers stored in the basement.

But I wasn't sure. She is always laying new pharses on me and then becoming super critical because she thinks I don't keep up on what's going on in the world.

"Tell me," I said. "If your ozone was in trouble, what would you do about it?"

"My ozone IS in trouble," she said. "And I am going to do something about it. I'm not going to use anymore aerosol cans and you shouldn't either."

Of course. She was talking about aerosol cans that eventually are going to take over the world. Those little devils have been playing havoc with people for years.

"I know what you mean," I said. "The other morning I mistook a can of hair spray for the deodorant and pffft . . . right in the old . . . ozone?"

"I know," she nodded to my relief. "Do you have any idea what that little pffft meant?"

"It meant that even when I quit, my underarms went on and on and on . . . you know like you've just flown from Denver to Chicago without a plane."

She winced, "I meant a deeper implication than that, Mother. Are you aware that the House Commerce Committee is drafting a bill that will include a ban of spray cans using fluorocarbons?"

"I wouldn't have gone so far as to take it to Congress," I said.

"Mother! Surely, you've seen firsthand how the fluorocarbons in pressurized cans can harm the atmospheric layer which screens the sun's radiation."

"Of course," I nodded. "Not to mention what happens when you mistakenly spray tub and tile cleaner on your hair. I mean, who wants hair that foams and deodorizes?"

"I can't believe it," she smiled. "Do you realize, Mother, this is the first 'meaningful conversation' we've been able to carry on in years."

I passed the bathroom and gave my under-arms a spritz with air freshener. These may just be the only two ozones I'll ever get, and I plan to take care of them.

Dr. Lamb

Blood fats his problem

DEAR DR. LAMB — About five years ago I had a heart attack, so my doctor said that I should lose weight. At that time my weight was 220 pounds.

I went on a high protein, low fat diet, and my weight came down to 175 pounds. This made me very weak, and I tired easily with no pep or energy to do anything.

So, I brought my weight to 185 pounds, and I could do most anything, play golf, cut grass, work on my car, etc., but I had added to my eating angel food cake and some candy (chocolate). Well, my triglycerides came up to 145 and cholesterol to 220.

I am having a hard time trying to bring my triglycerides down below 100. I've changed my eating habits and eat mostly chicken breast, chop suey, very little boiled potato, also at least two slices of Italian bread with Egg Beaters for breakfast. Also all the orange and grapefruit juice is half juice half water.

Can you help me with a book on what to eat to bring down the triglycerides? What substitute can I have for breakfast which is the toughest meal to prepare? I cannot eat only Egg Beaters every day!

Can you tell me how many grams of carbohydrates it takes to get into the blood? Is the carbohydrate burnt up by body energy physically? Is there any cereal recommendation that I could substitute for breakfast?

DEAR READER — Yours is a common problem. The knowledge that one should be on a low-fat, low-calorie diet is widespread, but the specifics of how to do it are not well communicated to the public.

That is exactly why I prepared a fairly large book on this subject. You should be able to get it at your library rather than buy it, but if you want your own copy get your bookstore to order it. It's called, "What You Need To Know About Food & Cooking for Health," (Viking).

You are doing pretty well, and your cholesterol level is okay. It would be better if you can lower your triglycerides, the fats in your blood. To do that you need to lose weight. Rapid loss of weight leads to fatigue and the symptoms you describe. Also overly enthusiastic restriction of carbohydrates will cause this in some people. I note you felt better after adding sweets.

I'd like to see a greater portion of your diet from vegetables, particularly the leafy ones in salads, fresh fruits and cereal products. Use the whole grain cereals, such as bran, shredded wheat products and whole oats. These will give you needed bulk and are low in calories for the volume you would eat. Breakfast is discussed in detail in my book; recipes and calorie contents of foods.

Breakfast is a good place to get your cereal to start the day off right. You could use fish for breakfast if you want more protein and a low-fat breakfast.

I'd also like to suggest that you start an exercise program. Start by walking a little every day and gradually increase your walking until you can and do walk three miles a day. There are good studies that show that exercise will lower triglyceride levels. Once you are walking regularly an hour a day you can check your status with your doctor to see if you can do anything more vigorous or not.

The ostrich is supposed to stick its head in the sand on the theory that no one will be able to see it. North's bidding of today's hand was along the same lines. He couldn't raise from two to three diamonds, since that call would encourage his opponents to bid on to game.

Maybe it would, but our experience is that when East opens the bidding and his partner gives him a raise, he is going to game with any sort of excuse.

Anyway, when East did bid game our ostrich-like North pulled his head out of the sand and bid five diamonds.

Perfect defense would have set South three tricks, but after the defenders failed to shift to clubs on time, South was able to set up dummy's jack of hearts for a club discard.

"Nice play, partner," said North. "Down 300 isn't bad."

"Like tilting at windmills," replied South. "If you had bid three diamonds right away you wouldn't have been impelled to bid five. Neither would I and we would have set four spades one trick to show a profit of 100 points instead of a loss of 300."

Those men who continue to watch television after 10:30 p.m. use a lot more hair tonic than do the fellows who go to bed early. So reports a marketing surveytaker who says he can't explain this phenomenon. Why can't he? It's the older citizen who's most likely to hit the hay early. And the elder the citizen, the less hair he's likely to have. You don't need the tonic, if you don't have the hair, what?

Buy own town? —Amboy for sale

DANA POINT (AP)—For only $50,000 down and $2,000 a month you can be mayor of Amboy, Calif., and police chief, and dog catcher — anybody you want.

You'll own the town.

One consideration, however: Lovely little Amboy is situated smack dab in the middle of the Mojave Desert.

But it does have its attributes, says its sales agent, Anchorage Investments of Dana Point, which is trying to unload the town for owner Buster Burris.

There is plenty of fresh air and sunshine for one thing, no city taxes for another. A rail line brings water-laden trains through town, and there's gold mining nearby.

The asking price includes a population of 20 (not guaranteed), a post office, a 30-room motel, private airport, gas station and a cafe featuring homebaked pies.

The town is 40 miles north of Twentynine Palms on what used to be famed Route 66. Just two miles away is Amboy Crater, site of a volcano that erupted 350,000 years ago.

Minority doctor program unveiled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Southern Christian Leadership Conference has announced a program to back members of minority groups who want to become doctors if they pledge to spend their first five years practicing in low income areas.

The Medical Assistance Program was announced Monday at Martin Luther King Hospital in Watts. Dr. Julius W. Hill, former president of the National Medical Association, a black organization, will head the program for the SCLC.

Hill said that while black persons make up 11 per cent of the nation's population, they account for less than 2 per cent of its doctors. Of the 6,000 black doctors, he added, 2,000 are in teaching.

"The need for black doctors is acute," Hill said. "Their caseloads are heavy. The fatality rate of black doctors is high because of the pressure and overwork they face daily."

Hill said the Nixon Administration had launched a project five years ago to increase the number of black persons enrolled in medical schools.

At the time the half-million dollar project was started, black persons made up 2.5 per cent of the enrollment in the nation's medical schools. The figure now stands at 11.9 per cent, Hill added.

The Rev. H.H. Brookins, head of the SCLC on the West Coast, said his organization would seek gifted students in junior and senior high schools and try to channel them into the medical profession.

In return for scholarships, they would pledge to work five years "in minority communities where the need is greatest," he said.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, who also attended the news conference along with Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., said his parents had wanted him to become a doctor but he had neither the motivation nor the money.

"Now the money is there and so is the motivation for young people to aspire and become members of the medical community," Bradley said.

A medical advisory committee will supervise operation of the program, which will seek $4 million in initial funding, Hill said.

Goldwater Jr. tops GOP Senate choices

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., is by far the leading choice of his party's voters for next year's GOP nomination to the U.S. Senate seat now held by John Tunney, the California Poll reported today.

And Tunney holds a commanding, though slightly diminishing, lead over ex-student radical Tom Hayden — his only declared opponent for the Democratic primary.

Since Houston Flournoy withdrew as a possible candidate, Goldwater has widened his lead over four other Republicans considered probable opponents, pollster Mervin D. Field said.

A poll conducted last month showed Goldwater preferred by 45 per cent of the state's Republicans; former Lt. Gov. Robert Finch by 18 per cent; retired San Francisco State College President S.I. Hayakawa by 16 per cent, and Rep. Alphonso Bell Jr. by 6 per cent.

Should Goldwater, who is not yet an announced candidate, decide against running, 35 per cent of those polled said they would prefer Finch and 26 per cent picked Hayakawa.

Tunney is preferred by 55 per cent of California's Democrats, the poll showed, while only 16 per cent favor Hayden and 29 per cent are undecided. In May, 65 per cent picked Tunney and 13 per cent chose Hayden.

U.S. energy plan viewed too narrow

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A proposed national plan for energy research has been criticized for paying too little attention to promoting alternative forms of energy and neglecting conservation.

The testimony came Monday during the first day of a two-day hearing by the federal Council of Environmental Quality, which is gathering input on the proposed $15.3 billion research program announced by the Energy Research and Development Administration earlier this year.

The plan will determine to an extent how ERDA research funds will be spent in developing current and new sources of energy to ease the nation's growing energy debt.

Mark Braly, energy coordinator for the city of Los Angeles, criticized the gap between funds marked for nuclear energy development and those planned for solar and geothermal research.

"I could not characterize this level of effort as appropriate for the energy needs of this nation," he said.

"There is clearly a public mandate for a maximum effort to develop new, environmentally acceptable energy sources and technologies," he said.

Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes also contested ERDA claims that solar energy research had been given the highest priority in the proposed budget.

"In my opinion, the comparative amount designated for solar energy is entirely too little," Hayes said. "The stated high-priority commitment ought to have been backed up by a greater commitment with funds to this area of research.

Pomona slashes aid to community agencies

Pomona City Council won't support community-based agencies this year with federal revenue sharing funds.

The council declined the support by a 3-2 vote at Monday's City Council meeting based on the recommendation of City Administrator Jerrold Gonce.

In the past two years, the council has allocated $140,000 and $100,000 to community agencies to provide social services to poor people in the community.

Gonce, however, described the budget situation for next year as "horrendous" and said that some city employes might even have to be cut in order to balance the 1976-77 budget.

He urged the council to hold all possible funds in reserve to help ease the deficit, including the over $50,000 of unallocated revenue sharing funds.

Ken Stewart, director of the South Hills Neighborhood Service Center, appealed to the council to continue funding the local agencies. Others speaking in support of the agencies were Jess Henderson, Sandy Hester, and Henry Ella Smith.

They said there was a great need for the type of services offered by the community based agencies, and that the city would suffer an increase in juvenile and related problems if the funding were ceased.

Councilman Charles Bader, however, cited the city's budget problem as the overriding priority.

"I see no way we can continue as we have in the past. We're just running out of money," he said.

He was joined by council member Georgia Grove and Mayor Ray Lepire in the majority vote not to allocate any funds this year.

In other business at the meeting, the council adopted a street lighting master plan that outlines the general goals of the city over the next five years in providing street lights throughout the community.

The plan includes recommended lighting levels for residential, commercial and industrial areas, along with possible financing methods.

Director of Public Works Ron Kranzer estimated that full lighting of the city would cost about $6 million.

Since the city is in no position to allocate funds in that amount, the plan suggests that residents in unlit areas be encouraged to form assessment districts to pay the cost of lights, aided by the city through federal grant funds.

The council also approved a $13,000 loan to the city's Bicentennial Committee for the publication of a "History of Pomona." It is expected that about 2,000 copies of the 200-page book will be printed, and will be available to the public by December.

The loan will be repaid from the proceeds of the book, which will sell for $10 in hardback and $5 paperback. Day

Demoted Pomona officer presses court for hearing

A disgruntled Pomona policeman is following the legal course which recently won a fellow officer a hearing before the city's Merit System Commission.

The officer, Gordon Zbinden, is seeking a writ of mandate in Los Angeles Superior Court which would give that court jurisdiction in his grievance with the city. A hearing on the request is scheduled in Los Angeles Oct. 16.

Zbinden, a veteran of 12 years on the Pomona Police Department wants the court to force the city commission to hear his side of the case in which he was reprimanded, demoted and transferred within the department last year.

Police Lt. Charles H. Milliken recently used the same civil suit method to force a commission hearing on his three-day suspension and reprimand which occurred in 1974. The hearing resulted in victory for Milliken.

Zbinden, like Milliken, claims that because of Police Department procedure in which grievances must follow the chain of command, time ran out for his appeal before the commission and it was denied.

During the latter part of last year, Zbinden, then a detective in the narcotics detail, was reprimanded, demoted to patrolman and transferred to the patrol division. The action was the result of an incident in which Zbinden was accused of keeping three suspected heroin dealers in jail over the 48-hour period allowed without a complaint being filed against them.

Zbinden said he protested the action, saying the suspects were held with the knowledge of the district attorney's office while the investigation continued. He filed a grievance and was promptly fired, Zbinden said, but was rehired less than a month later after he filed a second grievance. But, instead of being rehired as a detective, Zbinden said, he was rehired as a patrolman step 4 at a reduction of $280 a month in pay.

Zbinden, who now is a Patrolman step 5, said he wants the commission hearing in an attempt to clear himself in the jailing incident and in an effort to recover the wages he lost.

He is represented by Stephen H. Silver of Los Angeles, the attorney who also represented Milliken. Silver of Los Angeles, the attorney who also represented Milliken. Silver is retained by the Pomona Police Officers' Association and represented that group in the recent pay dispute with the city.

Amateur magicians team up for county fair show

An unusual partnership of two amateur magicians will perform for the first time at the Los Angeles County Fair which opens Friday.

The partners are Robbie Maas, former Pomona restaurateur, and John Swink, a senior electrical-mechanical engineer at Aerojet.

They will demonstrate and offer for sale their innovation, Computa-Card, a new approach to the hidden card trick.

Their booth will be located on the promenade adjacent to the Monorail loading platform.

The booth will feature also "Squirmle," the nationally advertised "Fuzzy-Wuzzy" that creeps out of water tumblers and runs up and down your arms, seemingly all on its own.

"Computa-Card," the duo's own idea, will allow a spectator to make a selection from an ordinary deck of playing cards, then locate and spell out the selected card on two computer cards.

Maas, former owner of Robbie's dinner house on the Pomona Mall, was an amateur magician in his youth. Swing is currently one of the best amateur magicians in the Southland.

Seabee unit to reunite

A reunion is planned for the 77th Construction Batallion at the Casa Sirena Motel in Oxnard Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Jay Aaron, a local spokesman for the Seabee unit, said most of the 150 former members who live in the valley plan to attend.

West End crimes show 15% increase

A 15.1 per cent increase in serious felony crimes has been reported in 350 square mile area patrolled by the San Bernardino County West End Sheriff's substation deputies during the past fiscal year.

The rapid rise in felony crimes in the West End county area may be attributable to the vast influx of new residents into the area, a high unemployment rate, and a high recidivistic rate by prior offenders, according to staff officers working on the crime reports.

The report showed that the number of serious crimes, including crimes against persons, narcotics violations, residential and commercial burglaries, grand theft, auto theft, check offenses, sex offenses and others rose from 1,494 in fiscal year 1973-74 to 1,720 in fiscal year 1974-75.

Residential burglaries showed the greatest increase in the West End area with 108 more reported during the last year than the year before. The only drop in serious crime in the area was in the number of thefts reported.

The West End substation, under the command of Capt. Edward Noon, has a total of 49 sworn deputies who worked a total of 12,096 overtime hours to meet the crime increase.

West End substation officers pointed out that through the efforts of the deputies the 15.1 per cent crime increase in West End was below the national average of 18 per cent reported by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Blind dancers to perform at fair

One of California's most colorful and unusual performing groups — Brailler Institute's Exhibition Square Dancers — all of whom are legally blind, will appear on the Plaza of States stage at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona Saturday at 11 a.m.

The specially-trained group is led by Marlin Hull, popular Southland square-dance caller, who volunteered his time and talent to provide a square dance class for Braille Institute's varied program of training, education and special services.

Hall has trained his legally-blind dancers to perform some of the most complex square dance formations — quadrilles, for instance, which are difficult for sighted dancers.

The annual agreement with Pomona Chamber of Commerce was approved by the council. The chamber will receive $35,000 to promote industrial and commercial growth in the city.

The council also approved an increase of $1 in dog license penalty and animal boarding fees as requested by the Humane Society of Pomona Valley.

The council adopted a compromise resolution lifting the city's total ban on the outdoor display of merchandise. The compromise was sought by used furniture dealers who claimed the ban would put them out of business.

The council approved the resolution recommended by the city Planning Commission, which will allow the outdoor display of three items.

The council also awarded a $19,728 contract to the Mr. Bracey Construction Co. of Ontario for the construction of handicapped rampways at the City Hall-Council Chambers and Pomona Public Library.

Four assigned to O-M school roles

Four educational administrators, two from the Ontario-Montclair School District, one from Duarte and one from La Verne College, have taken over posts with the Ontario-Montclair district.

Robert Oyler, formerly coordinator of pupil personnel services in the Duarte Unified School District, was named director of pupil personnel services. Robert Bell, formerly southeast area director, was promoted to assistant superintendent of instruction. Richard G. Dyer, vice principal of Serrano Junior High School in Montclair, was promoted to principal, and Tom Cross, La Verne College instructor, was appointed principal of Imperial Junior High School in Ontario.

Oyler, father of three, holds a B.A. and M.A. in psychology from Occidental College and a doctorate in educational psychology from USC. He had previously taught at the USC graduate school and Cal State Los Angeles. He lives in Upland.

Bell, a resident of Ontario, has a certificate in elementary education and holds a master's degree and doctorate from USC.

Dyer received his bachelor's degree from La Verne College and his master's degree from Cal State Los Angeles. He did post-graduate work at Pepperdine College and UC Riverside. He is a resident of Upland and the father of two.

Cross, father of two children, holds a bachelor's degree from Seton Hall College, Pennsylvania, and his master's from Hofstra College, N.Y. The 6-foot-9 educator formerly played semi-professional basketball in the Eastern League.

Chino Hospital gains 2-year accreditation

Chino General Hospital has been accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH), according to administrator Dean Garrison.

The accreditation, which covers from May 22, 1975 to May 22, 1977, is the result of an on-site survey made by JCAH field representatives.

The action indicates the hospital has chosen to operate according to JCAH standards, and that the facility has met those standards.

Surveys are voluntary. It is not legally necessary for a hospital to be accredited. Health care facilities have sought accreditation because it represents a "benchmark of quality" higher than governmental licensure alone, officials say.

The standards set forth optimal achievable goals of excellence against which a facility can measure itself and be measured by the JCAH survey.

Reds next for Dodgers

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Having disposed of the Giants twice, the Dodgers welcome the champion Cincinnati Reds for two games beginning tonight.

Burt Hooton (15-9) goes after his 10th straight win tonight against Pat Darcy (9-5). Rick Rhoden (1-2) and Jack Billingham (15-7) will pitch Thursday.

The Dodgers and Reds are 8-8 against each other for the season. But at Dodger Stadium, the hometowners have won five of seven.

The Dodgers' 8-3 win over San Francisco Tuesday gave the Angelenos the season series, 10 games to eight and a 6½ game lead over the Giants. But, not surprisingly, the 14,344 turnout was the smallest of the season for the second night in a row. But it was still the largest in the majors.

You have to go back to April 6, of last year to find a smaller turnout. In an afternoon game with the Padres, the attendance was only 14,284.

Charlie Hough (2-6) pitched excellent 2 2/3 innings of relief to get credit for the victory over the Giants.

Relieving starter Doug Rau with two runs in, nobody out and runners at second and third in the seventh inning, Hough got Gary Thomasson and Gary Mathews on fouls and struck out Willie Montanez on knucklers.

Switching to fastballs in the eight and ninth, Hough gave up only a harmless single.

"I've been throwing more and more fastballs," Hough explained, "and, hopefully, it makes the knuckleball that much more effective."

"My knuckler has been better this year than it's ever been. But it's also been more erratic."

Hough admitted a "super catch" by Steve Garvey for the second out was the big play of the inning. Mathews lifted a foul down the right field line angling towards the stands. Garvey, running at full speed, stabbed it with one hand just before it hit the ground.

The Dodgers wasted no time tying the game in their half of the seventh. They jumped on Jim Barr (11-13) for three runs. Willie Crawford singled. Garvey smashed a triple to right centerfield and Ron Cey walloped his 23rd home run.

The runs batted in were the 87th and 88th for Cey and the 81st for Garvey.

Barr came back to get Henry Cruz on a fly and fan Steve Yeager and Bill Russell. But in the eighth, he couldn't get anybody out by Hough.

Davey Lopes singled and stole his 67th base. Lee Lacy singled for one run. That was all for Barr. His successors, Gary Lavelle and Charlie Williams gave up two walks and a two-run double by Ken McMullen and a two-run triple by Yeager.

Barr had blanked the Dodgers on two singles through the first six innings. The Giants scored a single run off Rau on two hits and a walk in the fourth. But that was all the scoring until the seventh.

DODGER DATA — Lopes now has scored 92 runs.

Cey's 23 homers ties him for the club record for third baseman, with Dick Allen. Allen, playing left field and first base in addition to third, hit 23 in 1971.

Yeager made three bad throws in the game and was saved an error through generous scoring in the Giants' seventh. After Bob Sadek opened with a single, Barr bunted. Yeager fielded the ball and had a play at second. But his throw went over Russell's head and quick fielding kept the runners from taking an extra base. It was scored a sacrifice and fielder's choice.

Lacy has hit in 11 of his last 12 games, 17-for-48 and has raised his average to .314 in 235 at bats.

Barr, who made headlines in San Francisco last week by blasting manager West Westrum in the newspapers and on radio on successive days, apparently has patched things up. Westrum now says Barr, "is like a son to me."

Trojans go to a running QB

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California opens the football season against Duke Friday night with an extra running back in the backfield—the quarterback.

Coach John McKay said Tuesday his quarterback Vince Evans is a hard-charging runner with "big legs and he's run the 40 in 4.6 seconds. He'll do more running for us than we did last year."

The Trojans were 10-1-1 last year with Pat Haden at quarterback. Haden, an excellent passer, rolled out on option passes and "made some great first downs for us when he dropped back to pass and had to scramble, but Vince will be doing more planned running."

However, Evans has worked hard on his passing this preseason and McKay said USC will throw against the Blue Devils.

"We spend a tremendous amount more time on our passing game in practice than we'll ever use in the game, but we do it for two reasons. First, it's a good conditioner for the players. They have to run 40 yards on every pass we throw.

"Second, there will be times when we're behind and we'll have to throw.

"You must throw the football when you want to, not when they want you to throw it, but sometimes you're forced to."

McKay said a lot of his inexperienced players would be ready for Duke and even though he felt they were talented, "the inexperience of being in the pressure cooker will be tough." He said he hoped to be able to get a lead "so the youngsters can get in there.

"You don't put them in when the other team is on your 10-yard line," he said. "You put them in when they're on their own 20. You use the freshmen to spell the regulars when you have the advantage."

In Duke, McKay said he'll be facing a team that uses a slot-I formation with a split end— "basically a two-running-back offense." McKay said he had heard that senior split end Troy Slade was "a definite pro rpsopect."

Slade is a 6-foot-2, 180-pounder who caught 31 passes last year for 489 yards and returned 39 punts for 440 yards.

The Blue Devil quarterback is prelaw student Hal Spears, a 6-1 senior who doesn't often throw long but throws accurately.

"They feel they have their best team in 10 years and in the past few years they have beaten a few teams that were supposed to beat them just like we are.

"They beat Stanford 9-3 in 1971 and Stanford went on to win the Rose Bowl. And last year they ended the longest scoring streak in major college football by shutting out Georgia Tech 9-0." It was the first time Tech had failed to score in 108 consecutive games.

McKay said he wasn't too surprised at Missouri's 20-7 victory over Alabama on Monday night

DIGGS DIGS USC's Shelton Diggs is looking forward to the 1975 season, which opens Friday night when the Trojans host Duke. The receiver from San Bernardino was a Rose Bowl hero.

Diggs wants to lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He hadn't caught a pass all day and Shelton Diggs kept telling himself, "I gotta do something right for a change."

So when he lined up on the right and heard quarterback Pat Haden call the signals, Diggs could think of only one thing: "This is my last chance to do something right. I better do it now."

This wasn't just any ball game. It was the Rose Bowl game and it was Diggs' University of Southern California team against Ohio State. The score was 17-16 with the Buckeyes ahead. There were two minutes left and USC was lining up for a do-or-die two-point conversion attempt.

"It was supposed to be an in pattern," said the sophomore flanker. "But I started to run into the linebacker, so I made an out move." Haden rolled to the right and threw the ball.

"I was running a snake pattern and when I changed directions at the last second, I knew Pat would see me. He's got great anticipation."

Diggs cut sharply back toward the center of the field as Haden released the ball. The pass was low. Diggs said, "I knew it was going to be close."

"But, no, I didn't think about having to dive for the ball. I just reacted. I knew I had to get to it, one way or the other."

The result is history. The 6-foot-3, 195-pound Diggs cradled the ball in both arms as he hit the sod deep in the end zone, giving the Trojans two points and an 18-17 victory.

"Last year was tough for me," said
(McKay) and Anthony (Davis) were the stars of the team and I'm really a leader. I like to be a leader, but last year I couldn't.

"Not only that but I didn't get thrown to a lot. Pat and Johnny had played together for a long time and they knew each other. Pat and I never got our timing down."

Diggs, blessed with speed, quickness, strength and great hands, caught just eight passes in nine games and knew he was No. 2.

"There were times when I'd go down field and beat my man and the pass to Johnny was incomplete and I was tempted to go back in the huddle and say, 'Hey, I know I can beat that man.' But I didn't do that because I was just a sophomore.

"But this year may be different. I hope it is. I think I'm going to feel like one of the leaders. I know I'm going to have to give 100 per cent, you know, run 40 yards on every play, but now when I come back to the huddle, I can talk."

Diggs has been unlucky in his career at USC. He caught just four passes as a freshman because of a number of minor injuries and capped the season by suffering a shoulder separation in the 1974 Rose Bowl game, causing him to miss spring practice the next season. He missed three games in 1974 with a foot injury and missed several days of spring drills with a broken left finger, an injury which still limits his catching ability.

Diggs and this year's No. 1 quarterback, Vince Evans, "came out here every day during the summer to work on our timing. He'd throw 'em and I'd catch 'em for hours. We know each other pretty well, and I think our timing will be the big thing this year.

"At least I think I'll be the No. 1 target and that's important."

Diggs ackonwledged that USC's famed I formation has made great use of tailbacks and has reduced the passing attack to a secondary weapon. Last year, with Haden and Coach John McKay's son making aerial connections, passing received a bit more attention.

In fact it was a 38-yard Haden-to-McKay bomb that scored the touchdown last Jan. 1, setting up Diggs' heroic catch.

"We've just got to show the coaches we can pass," said Diggs. "Vince has a great arm—he throws very hard. I think we'll be all right."

Diggs admitted he felt confused by USC his first season. Here he was, a wide receiver in a run-oriented attack. His background had been as a runner.

"I really like to run the ball," he said. "All my life I've been a tailback, so when we run the end-around, I like that."

His 12 career catches for the Trojans have gone for 289 yards, an average of 24 per catch. And he's carried the ball 17 times for 98 yards for a 5.8yard average on the flanker reverse.

"He's big, fast and a good blocker," said McKay when spring drills started. "There are no bounds to how good he can become—if he stays healthy."

Board out at Coliseum

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams and the Oakland Raiders may find it tough to get on the scoreboard Thursday night because someone broke into the Coliseum press box and took a hammer to the computer equipment that runs the big board.

Charles Colbert, 19, of South Los Angeles was booked for investigaion of burglary Tuesday after police found him asleep in a press box chair amid all the clutter of smashed equipment, officers said.

Officials estimated damage at up to $1.5 million.

Besides the computer equiptment officials said teletype and videtape machines were also broken.

Jerry Nielsen, assistant manager of the Coliseum, said "there is a chance" the damage could be repaired by this weekend.

"It's our biggest weekend in terms of football," he said. "It's the only three-game weekend of the season."

After the Rams host the Raiders in a National Football League game Thursday night, Duke plays Southern California Friday night and Iowa State meets UCLA Saturday night in college football games.

Another spokesman, Glen Mon, said, "We are looking for a temporary replacement, and we hope to be able to find something satisfactory. But with the computers out, the main scoreboard can't function."

McKay foresees new division

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association, hoping to better manage its major sports programs, will soon discard its three-division setup and establish a new four-division format.

That's the opinion of Southern California football coach and Athletic Director John McKay, who feels it's one way for major colleges and universities to have more control over their athletic budgets.

"I'm certain they'll set ap another division," said McKay Tuesday. "It would probably be the top 75 schools in the country."

McKay, discussing college sports financing, said he didn't feel colleges could continue to operate at present levels under the same financial system that exists today, but he doubted that the top 75 schools would leave the NCAA and form a super conference.

"We can't keep doing what we're doing now, and there are only two solutions: to bolt the NCAA and set up another organization, or to go to the university presidents and ask them is there some way you can give us the money." He said the NCAA had done a lot of good recently, especially in the area of reorganizing.

A resolution by Long Beach State President Stephen Horn to the recent NCAA special convention on economics advocated that about three-quarters of all television revenue be divided up among all NCAA schools playing football. McKay said such a plan would only be self-defeating.

"Notre Dame plays next Monday night at Boston College on national TV," saidMcKay. "Now, that probably means $300,000 to Notre Dame, but then they have to come right back the next Saturday and play at Purdue. Well, if they had to give up all that revenue, they'd tell the NCAA they can have their Monday night game—they just wouldn't play it."

He said the Monday-Saturday setup is physically very hard on the players, and were it not for the great revenue involved, any team would turn down such a schedule. But television, he said, "dictates an awful lot of schedules because of the money involved."

The new four-division setup, he theorized, would have a number of major conferences in the new top-dog division, as well as a few independents, like Notre Dame.

"San Diego State dropped out of the PCAA probably because they realize that this is coming and they want to be part of the new Division I, or whatever they call it," he said.

McKay said the present Division I would be be split and presumably the two divisions formed out of it could operate under different rules.

McKay said this wouldn't solve all of the financial woes of the major universities today, but it might help to define the areas of need.

He said he didn't know what good it would do to drop sports like golf, which require very little money to operate. And the cost of running a golf program at a very small school and at a large school are almost the same.

Super Bowl is old news

Vikings hope to return

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings have been pro football's best cold weather team, but they haven't been able to win the warm weather game in January.

"We hope to be good enough to get back to the Super Bowl," said Minnesota Coach Bud Grant. "Right now we can't even think about what has happened to us at the Super Bowl. Besides, there's nothing worse than old sports news."

At a glance

1975 finish—First in NFC.
1975 record—10-4.
Team's strong points—Quarterbacking headed by Fran Tarkenton and the offensive line.
Team's weaknesses—Unproven receivers to replace All Pro flanker John Gilliam, who is playing in the World Football League. Also must improve upon special team deficiencies, particularly in the return and punting areas.
New faces—Rookie punter Neil Clabo and rookie return specialist Mike Strickland.

Grant is a strong leader and his teams personify his personality — efficient, calculating, imperturbable, and normally victorious.

"You've got to have the talent to win football games," said Grant. "And we've got the players."

In the last six years, the Vikings have posted a 64-20 record with three National Football Conference titles and five divisional championships in the NFC's frigid Central Division.

"I think we have three major additions this year in the return of Bobby Bryant and John Ward and our new punter, Neil Clabo," said Grant. "But on the other hand, I don't know how we're going to make up for John Gilliam's experience, but it's not like we're going with rookies there."

The Vikings will open the season with youngsters Jim Lash and Sam McCullum at their wide receiver posts. McCullum, a ninth-round draft pick from Montana State in 1974, inherits Gilliam's post.

Lash, who is beginning his third season, caught 32 passes last year on the opposite flank from Gilliam, who left the Vikings to go to work for the nowdefunct Chicago Wind of the World Football League.

"We'll be stronger if our second-year players keep coming on," said Grant.

That group prominently includes McCullum, tight end Steve Craig, safety Randy Poltl and linebackers Fred McNeill and Matt Blair.

The 6-foot-3, 231-pound Craig is in a battle with veterans Stu Voigt and Doug Kingsriter for the regular tight end job.

McNeill has enjoyed a brilliant preseason at linebacker and on the special teams. He began the season as a backup for 33-year-old Wally Hilgenberg, who probably enjoyed his best season in 1974.

Blair played quite often as a rookie last season behind Roy Winston, who is in his 15th season with the Vikings.

Poltl appears to be the heir—apparent at free safety where Paul Krause continues in his 12th season.

As Grant continues to move new blood into the line-up, he has probably turned the one-time defensive club into more of an offensive team.

"In terms of experience and playing together, the offensive line is perhaps our most solid unit," he said. "And we've got Tarkenton at quarterback and are good in numbers at the running back position."

The 35 - year - old Tarkenton enters the 1975 season within range of nearly every career passing record in the NFL.

He has already passed for 35,846 yards and 266 touchdowns and rushed for another 3,521 yards and a remarkable 5.9 average.

"Tarkenton will probably go down as the greatest quarterback of all time," predicts Grant.

The key man in Tarkenton's offensive gimics is 207-pound running back Chuck Foreman.

In two seasons, Foreman has rushed for 1,578 yards and caught 90 passes for another 948 yards and scored 21 touchdowns.

He will be joined by veteran Dave Osborn, Oscar Reed or Ed Marinaro at fullback while Brent McClanahan, who has enjoyed an excellent preseason, will be the backup halfback.

Mick Tinglehoff, who is supposedly too old and too small, will be at center for his 14th season. The 240-pound Tinglehoff held off the training camp challenge of John Ward, who is coming back after a two year absence with a broken leg.

Ed White and Andy Maurer are set at the offensive guards with Charlie Goodrum and All-Pro Ron Yary at the tackles.

Dr. Fred Cox is back for his 13th season of kicking field goals and extra points.

The front four is the same with Doug Sutherland and everybody's All-Pro, Alan Page, at the tackles and veterans Jim Marshall and Carl Eller at the ends.

Middle linebacker Jeff Siemon is only 25 and has an able backup in Amos Martin.

The secondary gained a regular when cornerback Bobby Bryant returned after missing the 1974 season with a broken arm, but strong safety Jeff Wright won't be able to play for a couple of months because of a knee injury.

Nate Wright, who enjoyed his finest year last season, joins Bryant, Krause and Terry Browns in the regular secondary.

Clabo has been the sensation of the preseason averaging 47 yards a punt to give Minnesota its best kicking game in several years.

Borlya to start Saturday

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Borlya, the second-year sensation from Stanford, will be the Philadelphia Eagles' starting quarterback Saturday in the preseason finale with the Atlanta Falcons.

Coach Mike McCormack, announcing Tuesday that Borlya has bumped 13-year veteran Roman Gabriel out of a starting job, also said he would lead the Eagles in their regular-season National Football League opener against the New York Giants.

"It's been obvious that Michael has moved the club better than Gabriel," said McCormack. "Again, I don't think it's been all Gabe's fault, but Mike has a certain spark. I think he's ready."

Borlya, 24, started the final three games of the 1974 National Football League season, leading the Eagles to victories over the Giants, Green Bay and Detroit. The spurt allowed Philadelphia to finish with a 7-7 won-loss record.

For the preseason, Borlya completed 41 of 85 passes for 506 yards and four touchdowns. He was intercepted two times and sacked five. Gabriel was 29 for 70 for 232 yards and one TD. He was intercepted five times and sacked seven.

Borlya took his promotion philosophically.

Gabriel, acquired from Los Angeles in 1973, also took the demotion like a pro.

Shorter says track athletes are pros

WASHINGTON (AP) — "We're all professionals," says Olympic gold medal winner Frank Shorter. "There is no distinction between amateur and professionals in track and field."

Shorter, winner of the marathon in Munich in 1972, said, however, that U.S. amateur athletes aren't treated as well, even with illegal subsidies, as their European counterparts, especially those in Western Eruope.

Asked during the opening session of hearings by the President's Commission on Olympic Sports how he would have been treated after winning the gold medal had he been from a Communist country, Shorter replied: "I would have rather been a Finn."

"Had I been a Finn and won a gold medal," he told the 22-member panel investigating amateur athletics. "I would have had my house built for me and an auto company would have given me a car, all tax free. I would have gotten endorsements and subsidies such as $2,000 to set foot on a track. Had I been a businessman, I would have had all sorts of cash flow coming into my company."

What did you receive in the United States after winning, Shorter was asked by Donna deVarona, a commission member who also is a gold medal winner in swimming.

"I haven't even received my Olympic ring from the committee yet," he replied. "I won the Sullivan award which I really appreciate. I always thought only swimmers won that award."

Scrimmages next for SAL

Coaches have questions

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

After two weeks of football practice, San Antonio League coaches all seem to be playing a game of 20 questions.

Since none of their squads have seen game-type competition, the local grid mentors are sporting a lot of question-marks around with them.

Answers to all those questions will start to come Saturday, as the eight SAL schools tangle in pre-season scrimmages. Since the hitting for real will start next Friday, it's obvious that now is the time for the locals to settle on who's going to play where, and what formations they are going to be playing out of.

Pomona High head coach Mike Clifton is not too worried about where to play his personnel, but the past couple weeks have produced a few grey hairs for Clifton and his staff over the offensive formation the Red Devils will utilize this fall.

"I changed our offense around last year at the Ganesha game in mid-season," recalls the Pomona skipper. "At the time it was a desperation move to keep us in contention, and of course it worked so well that we made the playoffs."

If Clifton sounds a little vague about what exact formation he's referring to, it's because he is. It's not that hard to describe, but Clifton and his aides have never taken the time to give it a tag.

The coach of the two-time defending SAL champs explains his offensive alignment thusly: "We line up our fullback (which will be Hank Zibell again this fall) directly behind the quarterback and about a yard back of him. Our two slot backs line up on either side of Zibell, but at a distance from him, sort of like upbacks position themselves in a punt return formation. Then we use two tight ends.

"I don't know if anybody has ever used it before or not. It's kind of like the offense that Notre Dame uses occasionally but they don't position the backs quite the same. I don't know what to call it, all I know is that it was very effective for us last year."

Clifton's what-ya-call-it formation, as the Pomona mentor is the first to admit, worked well last year because of the hard-driving Zibell at fullback and the darting Raymond Butler at one of the slotback spots.

Butler is gone on the Citrus JC this year, but Clifton feels he has a better backfield since fleet runners Charles Cole and Harold Walker join Zibell in the backfield.

"Right now, it looks like Mark Soto will be our quarterback," notes Clifton is rounding out the potential Pomona backfield. "Soto is a senior and saw some game action last year so we are hoping he can make things work."

"I'm really excited to see it in a game, as we have been trying to iron the bugs out of the formation in practice. That's why our scrimmage Saturday will be an important one from a coaching standpoint."

The Devils will be squaring off against Eisenhower High in San Bernardino at 9:30 Saturday morning in one of the SAL scrimmages on tap for that day.

The other scrimmages involving SAL schools should also prove interesting. Chino will be squaring off against Alta Loma at 4 p.m. at Chino High, while Claremont will face Chaffey High at 7 p.m. at the Tigers' Graber Field: Damien takes on host La Puente at 7 p.m., while Garey will battle North at UC Riverside, also at 7 p.m.

Ganesha gets its feet wet for 1975 vs. Northview at Covina Stadium at 7 p.m., while in two Saturday morning contests Montclair hosts Pacific at 9:30 a.m. and Upland travels to Bishop Amat for a 9 a.m. matchup.

Offense stands out in S.D. grid camp

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Correspondent

Saturday will mark the first inter-school scrimmages of the season for the five valley entries in the Hacienda League, and so far the reactions of the coaches as they try to fine-tune their squads for the coming season range from delight to disappointment.

Coach Bob Baiz of San Dimas is the most optimistic of the lot. "Our defense is supposed to be our strength," he said of a unit which features nine returning starters from last year's young team.

"But so far in practice," he went on, "it's been the offense that stands out. We have six returning starters on the offense and where we lost kids we've come up with players that are bigger and faster."

Baiz is pleased that he is able to maintain fairly distinct offensive and defensive units. He has just three players going both ways at this point—Steve Campbell (split end and safety), Don Edwards (center and middleguard) and Sonny LaFargue (tackle).

The offensive backfield also has Baiz smiling. "Steve Loumagne has been very sharp at quarterback," he said, "and all three running backs look good." That trio consists of tailback Fred Carter and fullbacks Roosevelt Johnson and Bob Pleasant.

The competition between Johnson and Pleasant for a starting role is one of three position battles that indicate depth to Baiz. Mike Lee, up from last year's JV team (which posted a 7-2 record) is pressing veteran Edwards for the middleguard job, while newcomers David Garrison and Bob Tatalovich are dueling to be LaFargue's partner at defensive tackle.

Biaz will get a good look at all his candidates for starting positions Saturday when the Saints travel to Charter Oak for a scrimmage at 8 p.m.

Ontario's Doug Brooks is likewise pleased with the practice sessions he has seen. "The kids have really been hustling," he said. "They look good."

Brooks says the best surprise of the preseason has been the performance of Larry Cutbirth — who will apparently take away Ramon Flores' starting role at quarterback. Cutbirth broke a leg during Ontario's third league game last year, but is completely healed now.

Fullback Doug Brooks Jr., however, is still bothered by an injury he suffered last year which required an operation during the off-season.

Brooks is looking for Saturday's 6 p.m. scrimmage at Riverside Poly to be informative. "I hope they throw a lot so I can get a look at our defensive secondary—it's pretty green," he said. Safety Freddy Vigil is the only returnee in the secondary.

Pete Lopez, whose Bonita team landed the Hacienda League title last year, is perhaps the least enthusiastic of the five coaches at this point.

"We've been pretty spotty so far," he said. "We've made some good plays but we've looked poor on the others. I guess you could say I'm displeased overall."

Adding to Lopez' problems is the loss of linebacker Ralph Chalifoux, who will miss two weeks with a shoulder separation.

The coach is happiest with the play of quarterback Sanford Coggins, running backs Scott Johnson and Bobby Bidari and Defenders Bruce Hines and Steve Benoit.

"We've had trouble moving the ball," said Lopez, whose Bearcats will entertain Costa Mesa in a scrimmage Saturday at 11 a.m. "But the defense is always ahead of the offense at this point. It's just a matter of time and patience until we get things going."

Alta Loma's Tom Cook is generally happy with the progress of his team, especially that of his lineman — Cliff Houtz, Mike Thacker, Jerry Barba, Gary Ornelas, Garry Diaz and Mike Couch.

Cook is also expecting big thing from flanker Rob Ward. The junior speedster wrenched a knee in practice last week, but the coach hopes he will be ready to go for Saturday's scrimmage at Chino at 4 p.m.

Coach Ken Gunn of Walnut can't decide whether he's pleased or disappointed with what he's seen in practice.

Gunn is still not set on a starting quarterback, though he gives a slight edge to Kevin Loggins, a junior who played backup for the varsity last year. "But Pat Flaherty, a kid just up from the frosh team, is pressing him pretty hard," said Gunn.

The seventh-year coach will take a look at the two QB prospects Saturday when the Mustangs entertain Bassett in a 9 a.m. scrimmage.

Angels' boss not pleased

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick Williams, who has seen better days as a manager, can't be blamed if at times he expects too much.

His California Angels had scored a 5-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night, but Williams wasn't totally pleased because "they made it close with two runs they shouldn't have."

Nyls Nyman singled past Bruce Bochte at first base with one out in the seventh and Williams thought Bochte should have "made the play even though the ball was hit hard."

And Brian Downing followed by dumping a single to left. Williams thought left-fielder Dave Collins broke back on the ball instead of in. Both runners eventually scored on a single by Jerry Hairston.

"Maybe I'm asking too much of them and I'm thinking in another era," said Williams who managed the Boston Red Sox to a pennant in 1967 and the Oakland A's to a pair of world championships.

However, Williams was pleased with the relief pitching of left-hander Jim Brewer. After Hairston singled home two runs off winner Ed Figueroa, 13-12, Williams called on Brewer who retired the last seven batters with ease to gain his third save of the season.

"It was a great relief job and he had a good screwball," said Williams.

White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner agreed and added "We saw some screwgies we haven't ever seen before."

Wilbur Wood, 14-19, suffered the loss and had most of his trouble with the bottom of the batting order as Mike Miley drove in two runs and scored one on a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly and Andy Etchebarren had a pair of singles, drove in a run and scored another.

The winning run, however, came in the top of the seventh when Lee Stanton walked, stole second and scored on a double by Bochte.

The Angels stole three bases to run their season total to 205.

Nyman, Downing and Jorge Orta had two hits each for the Sox while Pat Kelly doubled in a run and Bill Melton doubled and score another.

The two teams close their two-game series tonight with Jim Kaat, 20-11, going against Frank Tanana, 14-7.

T. T. tourney set at Chaffey

Chaffey College will be the site of the 27th Annual Pacific Coast Open Table Tennis Championships this weekend, the first time the Pacific finals have been held in the local area.

The tourney, which decides state championships in some 28 categories, is the largest competition of its kind ever in this area and is certain to be one of the best attended.

Sanctioned by the United States Table Tennis Association, this year's tourney is sponsored by the Upland Table Tennis Club with cooperation from the Upland Parks and Recreation Department and host Chaffey College.

Many of the best table tennis players in the U.S., and possibly some world-ranked performers, are expected to be on hand as the tourney swings into action at 8 a.m. Saturday morning.

All championship events will be held Sunday, with the major ones slated to start at 7 p.m. All tourney action will take place at the Chaffey gym.

Three locals are among the top-ranked players expected to be in action at the two-day tourney.

Mary McIlwain of Alta Loma, a veteran table tennis competitor and U.S. National Senior Women's Singles champion in 1968, is favored in the Women's Senior Division at Chaffey.

Also in action will be young Doug Kirby of Montclair in the 11-and-under division. Doug will be playing in his first Pacific Coast Open tourney but could well take it all in his division. He is already the 11-and-under California State champ and recently won the Santa Monica Open.

Montclair's Hanna Butler should also do well at the tourney. Miss Butler, slated to compete in the Open Singles division since no girls' event will be held at Chaffey, is ranked number two in the State in her age group.

Injuries strike at NFL

By Associated Press

National Football League owners may be paying four fewer salaries a year, but with players dropping right and left from injuries this preseason, coaches are nearing their wits' end with 43-man rosters.

"I'm selfish. I'd like to have as many players as possible for my team," says Coach Charlie Winner of the New York Jets. "Right now I've got 19 guys who are injured in one way or another.

"In practice today, I had only one running back—Steve Davis—who could run. So we had to walk through all our plays.

"I had only five defensive backs who could run and three wide receivers, so you can see that if we were going into a league game, we'd be in a difficult situation."

Most teams in the NFL are in the same rocky boat—playing with skeleton crews while the injured skeletons heal.

Miami Coach Don Shula was a member of the committee which cut rosters from 47 to 43 because of "the economics of the sport.

"I sat in when those rules were made. After they're made, you abide by them. You can't bend the rules to fit your own particular situation," said Shula.

That's not to say he wouldn't like to. Shula was brought to the painful decision of placing linebacker Nick Buoniconti and safety Dick Anderson on the injured reserve list, rendering them ineligible for the entire season because of the new roster rules. Previously, a player could be placed on injured reserve and brought back before the season ended.

No longer.

"This year, he's gone for the season as far as you're concerned," says Winner. "That leaves you two choices: count him on the active roster and play short for a time, or put him on injured reserve. If you get people hurt at key positions, you're in trouble with rosters the way they are."

That means the New Orleans Saints are in trouble. Quarterdack Archie Manning is out for a month with a chipped elbow. The New England Patriots are in trouble; quarterback Jim Plunkett underwent surgery Sunday for a shoulder separation and will be lost for six to eight weeks.

Likewise the Atlanta Falcons, without defensive end Claude Humphrey through a knee injury; likewise Buffalo, which has lost defensive backs Tony Greene and Robert James.

Further evidence was supplied by Ed Garvey, Executive Director of the NFL Players Association. In a news release Tuesday, Garvey said he had surveyed 21 of the 26 player representatives and that "they indicated that their head coaches and their staffs favored the 47-man squad or some arrangement for this total.

"They feel that with additional injuries during the season that will keep players out one or more games, (there will be an) affect on the quality of football played for the fans. It could hurt (a team) seriously if two players at the same position were injured and had to miss a game or more," said Garvey.

Big names gone in cuts

By Associated Press

It was the Stock Exchange at midday. It was rush hour in midtown.

It was cutdown day in the National Football League.

Players retired, went on waivers, or were otherwise discarded with the rapidity of machine gun fire Tuesday as coaches frantically pared their rosters to the 46-man limit.

And some big names fell victim to old age, poor health, or the simple inability to cut the mustard.

Tight end Marv Fleming, the only player to appear in five Super Bowls, was cut by the Washington Redskins. Center Bill Curry of the Green Bay Packers retired, as did defensive back Cornell Green of the Dallas Cowboys. And veteran linebacker Bobby Bell was placed on waivers by the Kansas City Chiefs in major moves by coaches who get to do it all again next Tuesday, when the final trim to 43 players is due.

Fleming, a 13-year veteran, had played in two Super Bowls with the Packers and three more with the Miami Dolphins.

Curry, an 11-year man, had played with Fleming on the Packer team that beat the Kansas City Chiefs 35-10 in Super Bowl I eight years ago. He had been away from the Pack for eight years with the Houston Oilers and Los Angeles Rams before returning to Green Bay in a trade this year.

Green ended a 13-season career and gave Dallas Coach Tom Landry pause to remember the player's first day at training camp those long years ago.

"He put his hip pads on backwards and wondered why he was getting all that pain in front," recalled Landry. But Green went on to become all-pro at strong safety and cornerback, intercepting 34 passes and once playing 182 consecutive games. He'll become a Dallas scout.

Bell asked to be placed on waivers. "He's not sure what he wants to do," said a team spokesman. "He may retire or he may try to get with another team."

If there's room, that is. There were enough bodies shifted Tuesday to stock a lot of teams for a long time. Running backs and draft choices changed hands like bargains at a bazaar.

The Chiefs acquired defensive lineman Randy Beisler and a draft choice from San Francisco in exchange for defensive back Nate Allen. The 49ers also sent cornerback Frank Oliver to the Buffalo Bills for a draft pick.

Orioles not dead birds

By Associated Press

A funny thing is happening to the Boston Red Sox on the way to the American League East pennant.

They're slipping—and the Baltimore Orioles could have the last laugh.

The Orioles, all but given up as dead birds less than a week ago, kept their fluttering hopes alive with a 9-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday night.

Coupled with Boston's 3-2 defeat in 10 innings at Cleveland, it moved the Orioles within five games of the top—the closest they've been since July 8.

And it raised Baltimore hopes of repeating last year's performance.

"It's impossible to say how many we can afford to lose," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "Last year they were nine up on us and we beat them by seven. That's 16 games we made up in a month, and we made up nine in 10 days. It all depends what Boston does. They slumped at the end last year, but they haven't had a real slump since."

The Orioles and Red Sox both have 19 games left, including two against each other in Boston next Tuesday and Wednesday.

"If we don't get rained out before then, I'll pitch (Jim) Palmer and (Mike) Torrez against them," Weaver said, referring to the two aces of his staff.

While the Red Sox and Orioles were trying to decide the outcome of the American League East, the Oakland A's strenghened their chances in the AL West with a 2-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals in 14 innings.

Elsewhere, the California Angels whipped the Chicago White Sox 5-4; the New York Yankees defeated the Detroit Tigers 9-6 and the Texas Rangers took a doubleheader from the Minnesota Twins — 3-0 and 4-2.

Lee May and Dave Duncan keyed a pair of four-run rallies and Doyle Alexander pitched a four-hitter, leading Baltimore's rout of Milwaukee. The victory was the 10th in 15 games for the surging Orioles.

"The fact that we have veterans who have been winners could be advantageous," said Weaver. "The big thing is the fact that they have been winners before keeps them from giving up. They know how they would kick themselves if they lost games now and then saw Boston go into some sort of monstrous slump."

Indians 3, Red Sox 2

Alan Ashby's run-scoring single in the 10th led Cleveland over Boston. George Hendrick doubled and eventually scored on Ashby's hit to left. The Indians' victory gave them a 9-5 edge over the East leaders, the only AL team to hold the upper hand over Boston this year.

"These things happen," said Boston Manager Darrell Johnson. "We've caught Cleveland twice in a hot streak. Fortunately, they're the only team we've done that with."

A's 2, Royals 1

Bill North's run-scoring single with two out in the 14th inning gave Oakland its big victory over Kansas City. The victory boosted the A's lead to seven games over the Royals in the American League West.

A two-out error by Kansas City shortstop Fred Patek opened the door for the A's winning rally. Bert Campaneris, who reached base on Patek's miscue, stole second and raced home with the gamewinner on North's dramatic hit.

Gene Tenace, who had a tworun homer in Monday night's 82 Oakland victory, hit his 23rd homer of the season leading off the bottom of the seventh, tying the score at 1-1.

Deny teams will move

By The Associated Press

It was difficult to sort fact from fiction today after a published report that baseball's franchise committee would recommend that the Minnesota Twins move to Seattle and the San Francisco Giants shift to Toronto.

Committee members appeared as mystified regarding the story published Tuesday in the Toronto Star that the committee would suggest the moves at a meeting in Kansas City on Sept. 24.

"I called the American League office and asked them what the hell was going on," said Minnesota Twins Owner Calvin Griffith, who added that the committee had not contacted him on a possible move.

"I haven't heard anything like that," said New York Mets Board Chairman M. Donald Grant, a committee member who labelled the story "erroneous."

"I flatly deny this story," said Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "The franchise committee has not made any reccommendations and there's no guarantee it will happen in Kansas City."

That's where conflicts begin to arise. Griffith said: "There's no quesion they'll be meeting on this."

Giants Owner Horace Stoneham told The Associated Press: "We're not ready to sell, and if and when we are, the Giants will be sold in place. They are not going to leave San Francisco."

However, Stoneham was quoted by the San Francisco Examiner as saying: "If the new owners want to move, that's not my concern. The Giants will be sold and—that's right—there will be no stipulation that they can't be moved."

"I don't know where they got anything on Minnesota going to Seattle," added Griffith.

Writer Neil MacCarl's story quoted a well-informed U.S.-based source who asked not to be identified.

"If there was anything to it, you'd sure think I'd know what we were going to do," said Griffith.

TIGHT BATTLE — This duel between Grand National champ Kenny Roberts (1) and Gary Scott (64) may well be re-enacted Oct. 5 and 6 at the Champion Spark Plug Classic at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Mosley retires

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Mosley, who started racing championship cars at the age of 20 and later survived two serious crashes at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, announced Tuesday he is retiring.

"I want to save my famly and my happiness," he said in a telephone call to his chief mechanic, Jud Phillips, from his home in Fallbrook, Calif.

Mosley, now 28, appeared in eight Indy races and his best finish was eighth in 1968, his rookie year.

He was seriously injured in both the 1971 and 1972 races after mechanical failure sent his car into the fourth-turn wall.

"It's really a relief," he said of the retirement. "I wasn't happy doing it and it's something I had to do. I've wanted to quit for a long time but I didn't because there were so many people that wanted me to keep going."

Ironically, Mosley's last race was at Milwaukee in August where he outlasted former Indy winners A.J. Foyt, Johhny Rutherford and Gordon Johncock for his third championship car victory.

L.B. Prix adds 3 drivers

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jody Scheckter, Jean-Pierre Jarier and Chris Amon have joined the field for the $102,000, Sept 28 Formula 5000 race through the streets of Long Beach.

The trio brings to eight the number of Formula 1 drivers who have entered the race to gain experience for the March 28 Long Beach Grand Prix over the same course.

Scheckter of South Africa will race a Lola T332 for Carl Hogan of St. Louis as David Hobbs team mate. He won the U.S. Formula 5000 series in 1973 but has been competing in Europe on the Grand Prix circuit exclusively this year.

Jarrier, a Frenchman, is the No. 1 Grand Prix driver in the UOP Shadow stable.

Amon, a New Zealander, has been one of the ranking Grand Prix drivers for a number of years.

Other Grand Prix drivers entered in the Sept. 28 race are Mario Andretti, Jackie Oliver, Vern Schuppan, Brian Redman and Hobbs.

Auto racing

Al Unser added to IROC field

RIVERSIDE — Al Unser, a two-time Indy 500 winner and the third most victorious driver in USAC history, has been named as the final driver for the 1975 International Race of Champions.

Unser, the 36-year-old brother of defending IROC champion Bobby Unser, will be making his first appearance in the three-year-old series which matches 12 of the world's top drivers in identical Chevrolet Camaros.

The first of four races in the IROC will be held Saturday on the two-mile high-banked oval at Michigan International Speedway.

Besides the Unser brothers, both of Albuquerque, N.M., the IROC field includes A. J. Foyt, Mario Andretti, Brian Redman, Richard Petty, David Pearson, Bobby Allison, Benny Parsons, Emerson Fittipaldi, James Hunt and Jody Scheckter.

The second and third races of the $212,000 series will be held October 25-26 on the road course at Riverside, Calif., and the fourth race will be held next February on the 2½ mile tri-oval at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Al, who along with Andretti has been racing for several years on Parnelli Jones' Viceroy team, has won more USAC championship car races (28) than anyone but Andretti and Foyt.

In 1970 and 1971 he became only the fourth man in history to win the Indianapolis 500 back-to-back. He also won the USAC championship in 1970 and he was the national USAC dirt track champion two years ago.

A week ago, Al won his first major road race, beating Redman and Andretti in the Atlanta Formula 5000 Championship and now ranks second to Redman in season standings for that series.

With Al's contribution, the IROC field this year can boast eight Indy 500 wins. Foyt has won three, Bobby and Al two each and Andretti one.

Each of the four IROC events will be weighted equally this year with the winner of each event receiving 12 points and each position down being worth one point less. Only the top nine drivers in the point standings after three races will continue on for the fourth race at Daytona.

The winner of the IROC championship will earn at least $50,000.

Cyclists set for OMS duel

The perennial battle for the American Motorcycle Association's Grand National Championship between Californians, Kenny Roberts (from Villa Park) and Baldwin Park's Gary Scott looks like having its climax in the very last race of the season . . . the champion spark plug motorcycle classics at Ontario Motor Speedway on October 4th and 5th.

Roberts, the Yamaha factory team leader, has captured the title for the past two seasons while Scott has occupied the Cinderella runner-up spot for no less than three years in succession.

This year, however, things are different. Scott, on an all-American Harley-Davidson team bike, holds the points advantage and midway through the year seemed uncatchable.

The tenacious Roberts, however, had other ideas. He closed the point gap with a win in the recent Laguna Seca road race (only other West Coast road race of the year in the Camel Pro series tour) and then pulled a masterful surprise win out of the bag on the Indianapolis mile dirt-track recently.

One reason for Scott's lead is the horsepower advantage that his Harley enjoys over Robert's Yamaha dirt-trackers but for the Indy mile Kenny had one of his 120bhp four-cylinder water-cooled road race engines shoehorned into a flat-track frame and snatched the win in the last few feet of the very last lap.

Several of the monster Yamaha fours (which will be running 180mph in road race guise at Ontario) showed up at Indy but Roberts was the only rider capable of mastering one. And even he admitted to being "scared stiff" of the awesome horsepower on a loose-surface dirt-track.

Prior to the champion spark plug motorcycle classics there are two more mile dirt track events where Kenny will have to screw up his courage and try and white-knuckle the beast to more valuable points.

If he can do this and continue to whittle down the margin between Scott and himself, then the odds are on a three-in-a-row Championship streak for the 23 year old star.

Yamaha's road racing machinery is currently the tops and Roberts has the talent to wring every last ounce of speed out of the streamlined 180mph projectiles.

The champion spark plug motorcycle classics will feature two days of International road racing with stars from nine countries clashing in both the Lightweight (250cc) race and the big one of the weekend . . . the Formula 750 race, that will be run in two 100 mile segments.

Confirmed entries have been received from all of the American factory teams plus World 250cc Champion, Walter Villa, who is flying in to spearhead the Harley-Davidson team alongside Gary Scott.

Stott holds slim lead

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ramo Stott, always a contender but never before a champion, holds a slim lead in the battle for the U.S. Auto Club stock car driving title with only one race left this season.

Stott, from Keokuk, Iowa, leads four-time stock car king Butch Hartman, South Zanesville, Ohio, by 2,210 points to 2,135, with 250 points going to the winner of the 200-mile race Sept. 21 at Trenton, N.J., International Speedway.

If Hartman wins, Stott must finish third or better to keep the title.

Jimmy Caruthers, Anaheim, Calif., has won the USAC Championship Dirt division over Tom Bigelow, Arnie Knepper, Billy Cassella and Bill Engelhart.

Sleepy Tripp, Costa Mesa, Calif., previously put the midget division title out of reach.

Indy-type racers affected by ruling

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U.S. Auto Club, unable to come up with a suitable alternative, has frozen current engine specifications for at least five years.

But that, and the board's action to require a simple powerrestricting valve, could result in major changes next year in Indianapolis style racing.

"We would have liked to tried something else," said USAC Technical Director Frankie DelRoy. "But nobody who was going to help us on testing gave us an engine to work with.

"Everybody said they were willing to help, but they lied. So we had to make the changes with the valve."

The 21-member USAC board Monday night voted to require a valve controlling engine manifold pressure at 75 inches. Such a valve set at 80 inches is now used for qualifying.

"That should put the Cosworth V8 engine in business next season," DelRoy said. "I expect to see Cosworths on Dan Gurney's cars, and probably Parnelli Jones', Roger Penske's, and McLaren. Maybe even A.J. Foyt or George Bignotti."

A bitter fight has raged between advocates of stock blocks, the costly $35,000 fourcylinder Offenhausers and highly competitive V8 powerplants developed by Foyt.

"The pressure relief valve should knock about 50 horsepower off everybody's engines," DelRoy said.

Nearly every side has advocated reducing the costs of racing, and put a damper on speeds which were climbing at an alarming rate.

"They (USAC) tried to save everybody some money, but what they wind up doing is putting a lot of the 'little people' in racing out of business," said master mechanic George Bignotti. "It's not going to bother somebody like me so much, because I can afford to test until I find something that's competitive."

Bignotti said keeping current 1.8 miles per gallon fuel allotments and lowering manifold pressure restrictions "will make all present engines obsolete in two years."

He added, "What they've done is open the back door for something like the turbocharged Cosworth engine."

Larger, non-turbocharged Cosworths power most Formula I cars.

Bignotti has helped develop a new Offenhauser that he says should be ready to sell next season at a cost of about $20,000. That's roughly equivalent to the Cosworth price tag.

Southland racing

SAN BERNARDINO — The Orange Show Speedway will be hosting late model stock car racing Saturday night on its quarter-mile asphalt oval. Sharing Saturday's bill with the late model stocks will be the hobby stocks. Time trials will begin at 6 p.m. with racing slated to get underway at 7:30 p.m.

GARDENA — Ascot Park will feature dirt-track motorcycle racing on Friday and sprint cars on Saturday. Friday's motorcycle action gets underway at 7:30 p.m. as does Saturday's sprint car competition. Feature race Saturday night will be the inaugural running of the California 100 Sprint Car Championship on the half-mile dirt oval at Ascot.

SAUGUS — Saugus Speedway has a full card of stock car racing on tap for Saturday night beginning at 8 p.m. Six heats, a semi-main and three main events are slated for oval racing fans, while a destruction derby has also been added to the card. Main events will include sportsman, limited stock and figure 8 competition.

EAST IRVINE — Orange County International Raceway will hold Fun and Grudge drag racing this evening beginning at 5:30 p.m. and will also feature AMC Motocross racing tonight. On Friday open Motocross competition will begin at 7:30 p.m., with a 45-race card on tap. Saturday the East Irvine facility will host E.T. bracket semi-pro drag racing with gates opening at 1:30 p.m. and time trials beginning at 2 p.m.

VALENCIA — Indian Dunes Park will feature motorcycle racing on all three of its dirt tracks Friday night, with action getting underway at 8 p.m. Class "C" short track cycles, NMA minicycles and AME motocrossers will be in action.

MOORPARK — Valley Cycle Park has a daylong program of motorcycle racing slated for Sunday on its 1½ mile European-style obstacle course. The first heat is scheduled to leave the starting gate at 9:30 a.m. and upwards of 300 riders, representing all novice and professional riding divisions, are expected to see action.

Do Packer fans expect too much from Starr?

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Clean cut, articulate, always proper and a football folk hero in Wisconsin, Bart Starr has an image problem.

At a glance

Green Bay Packers

1974 finish: Third in NFC Central.

1974 record: 6-8.

Team's strong points: anticipated improved leadership under new Coach Bart Starr; defense which ranked fifth in NFL last year; superb fullback in John Brockington and one one of the league's best placekickers in Chester Marcol.

Team's weaknesses: lack of depth, especially at wide receiver and linebacker; lack of speed at wide receiver and running back.

New faces: rookies Bill Bain, guard-tackle, and Willard Harrell, running back.

Because of his remarkable record of success, Starr worries that fans may expect too much too soon from him as new head coach and general manager of the Green Bay Packers, the team he quarterbacked to five National Football League championships in seven years in the 1960s.

"I'm just learning how to coach. I need all the time I can get," said Starr, whose tactical brilliance could hypo an offense which ranked 10th among the 13 National Football Conference teams and scored only 210 points—94 by placekicker Chester Marcol—last year.

"We're thinking in terms of building for the future—a solid foundation," he said. "We're more concerned with that this year than wins and losses."

"We feel a solid foundation is very important," he said. "Gimmicks and gadgetry and frills aren't solid. The temptation to use them is great, but we won't do it."

Dan Devine, Starr's predecessor, didn't help the building process last fall when he traded first, second and third-round draft picks of this year and a first and second in 1976 to Los Angeles for 35-year-old quarterback John Hadl.

Starr lost two players of All-Pro caliber this summer when linebacker Ted Hendricks, who had played out his option, signed with Oakland and guard Gale Gillingham retired. Compensation from Oakland for Hendricks still is to be determined and could relieve a critical shortage of depth at several positions.

Most urgently in need of help is the offensive line, where guard Bill Lueck has been traded, tackle Dick Himes played hurt most of last year and center Larry McCarren has been inconsistent.

Bill Hayhoe, the other tackle, had appeared headed for stardom until he broke his leg midway through the 1973 season. He broke it again a year ago and missed all of last season, and recently was declared lost for 1975 after a third break.

Bill Bain, the Packers' top draft choice, probably will start in Hayhoe's spot, although the coaches would have preferred to let the rookie gain experience more gradually.

Hadl, while showing no traces of arm troubles he was said to have had at Los Angeles, nonetheless has had an inconsistent exhibition season. Much of the problem has been the line's failure to consistently fend off opponents' pass rushes.

Hadl's passing targets include Rich McGeorge, considered one of the NFL's better tight ends. However, most of Green Bay's wide receivers lack sufficient speed to run deep patterns.

Offensive line breakdowns were blamed in part for John Brockington's failure to rush for more than 1,000 yards for the first time in his four-year pro career last season. He gained 883, but averaged only 3.3 yards per carry.

Brockington is likely to miss the blocking ability of traded MacArthur Lane, for whom no standout successor has emerged at halfback. Rookie Willard Harrell, a preseason sensation, adds needed speed but at 180 pounds probably will be restricted to spot duty and kick returns.

Except for Hendricks, the starting unit of the defense which ranked fifth in the league last year returns.

The front four of Clarence Williams, Mike McCoy, Alden Roche and Dave Pureifory or Steve Okoniewski has proven effective against the run, but needs improvement in the pass rush.

The coaches are high on the potential of Tom Toner as Hendricks' replacement, but the third-year linebacker lacks game experience. He played defensive end in college, started only three games at linebacker as a Packers rookie and missed all of last season with a broken clavicle.

Middle linebacker Jim Carter, who suffered a hairline leg fracture early in training camp, is expected to be ready for the start of the regular season but may need time to round into shape.

Fred Carr is more than adequate at right linebacker, as are Ken Ellis and Willie Buchanon at the cornerbacks and Jim Hill and Al Matthews at safeties.

The Packers' schedule, which includes two games with Minnesota and single contests with Denver, Miami, Dallas, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles, is one of the toughest in the league.

Lions enjoy playground

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Just two years after groundbreaking, a peat bog has been converted into the beautiful $55.7-million Pontiac Metropolitan Stadium, the new playground for the National Football League's Detroit Lions.

At a glance

1974 finish: second in NFC Central.

1974 record: 7-7.

Strengths: Play of tight end Charlie Sanders, defensive backs Lem Barney, Levi Johnson and Dick Jauron, tackle Rockne Freitas, defensive tackle Herb Orvis.

Weaknesses: No running attack, few outstanding receivers, linebacking lapses, tendency to commit penalties, failure to capitalize on mistakes.

New faces: Veteran center Jon Morris, acquired from New England; rookie offensive linemen Steve Myers of Ohio State and Craig Hertwig of Georgia, both All-Americans; rookie wide receiver Dennis Franklin, former Michigan quarterback; guard Lynn Boden, No. 1 draft choice from South Dakota State.

But what was also needed two years ago was a machine to rebuild the team itself. The Lions haven't been a title contender lately and, if anything, it appears they have regressed heading into this season.

Detroit, runnerup in the National Conference Central Division the last six years, has looked terrible in losing four of its first five preseason games.

Suddenly it must be transformed into a team than can challenge Minnesota for the division. That prospect seems remote.

Just how long the beauty and newness of "PonMet" will keep the anger of Lions' fans in abeyance remains to be seen.

"When the season begins, you will see a lot of things come together in a hurry," offered veteran Lion cornerback Lem Barney, one of the few truly outstanding players on the squad.

"I don't know why it happens that way, but it does," he continued. "I think we can be a real team. Wait and see."

Coach Rick Forzano hasn't said anything nearly as optimistic.

After Detroit's last loss, 22-14 Saturday to Cincinnati, Forzano ripped into his players in a candid display that perhaps was geared toward shaking them up a bit.

"We did play poorly and the fans deserve to boo," he said.

"I don't see anything that looked good at all. I thought our defense was terrible. I thought our tackling was bad. We dropped passes. We were offside. We had penalties. We were just a bad football team today."

Forzano might have to record that quote to play back during his post-game interviews the rest of the season. There's not much to indicate that assessment can be drastically altered before the opener against Green Bay at Milwaukee on Sept. 21.

The Lions follow that with a game at Atlanta, then host Dallas in a Monday night national television game Oct. 6—the "official" debut of PonMet. The patchwork, fiberglass fabric roof is scheduled to be completed by then. It will be inflated with giant air blowers around the top of the stadium.

Greg Landry is Detroit's quarterback, having won the job from Bill Munson, who has been bothered by injuries. Landry has never lived up to the potential expected of him in his seven years at Detroit.

The Lions' running attack is almost nil and they've had to move 5-foot-10, 200-pound halfback Altie Taylor to fullback since power runner Steve Owens hasn't yet recovered from knee surgery.

Perhaps the brightest note in exhibition play has been the performance of wide receiver Dennis Franklin, the rookie who was a star quarterback for the University of Michigan.

No. 1 draft choice Lynn Boden of South Dakota State could possibly be a starter, while rookie linemen Steve Myers of Ohio State and Craig Hertwig of Georgia, both All-Americans could see a lot of action.

Center Guy Dennis quit, but offensive tackle Jim Yarbrough returned after quitting briefly.

Tight end Charlie Sanders remains the team's prime star-caliber player on offense, while cornerback Lem Barney owns that distinction on defense.

Other plusses include defensive tackle Herb Orvis, cornerback Levi Johnson, safety-punt returner Dick Jauron, offensive tackle Rockne Freitas, kicker Errol Mann and punter Herman Weaver.

McLain takes Memphis job

MEMPHIS (AP) — Denny McLain, 31, former American League Cy Young award winner, was named general manager of the Class AAA International League Memphis Blues Tuesday.

Blues' President Dr. Bernard Kraus said that McLain "will add something which has been missing from our general manager's office, namely an enthusiastic attitude..."

McLain has spent the last two years as a play-by-play radio announcer for the American Association's Iowa Oaks.

Government tests for unemployment statistics criticized; may be revised

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Does that 8.4 per cent unemployment rate depict the real state of affairs in the job market today or is it another of those statistics that seem to float, unanchored to reality?

Criticism of labor statistics isn't uncommon. Academics, labor leaders, businessmen and others maintain there are defects of definition, concept and technique that result in an inacurate picture.

A bit surprising is the position taken by Julius Shiskin, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The debate, he says, is healthy. And by inference he suggests the criticisms might possibly have some validity.

Conceding there are "widespread points of view" on the accuracy of government jobless surveys, Shiskin said in an interview that he has recommended that a blue ribbon committee be appointed to review concepts.

If Labor Secretary John Dunlop agrees, Shiskin said he hopes the committee will be formed before the year is out. Existing concepts are the product of a similar committee's work 13 years ago.

The call for a re-examination comes at a critical time. The government relies on at least two surveys for its figures, a survey of households and one of employers. During the summer the two surveys varied on the number of jobless.

Shiskin minimizes the differences in the two sets of figures, both of which he said are used in the final compilations. "Quite often there is a divergence," he said. "It's a natural kind of thing. We were not alarmed."

The differences, he said, are usually short-lived. In fact, the August jobless figures showed the divergence was cut sharply. But, the critics ask, why should differences exist at all if the concepts are correct?

Asked if the household survey might have found fewer jobless individuals than would be the case because unemployed workers were away on vacations, Shisken answered that the possibility was taken into consideration.

But one critic, Albert Sindlinger of Sindlinger & Co., which compiles its own jobless figures from surveys of 1,125 households a week, currently has one million fewer employed and one million more unemployed than the government.

Sindlinger is critical of government techniques. "When they find nobody home they go next door until they do. And the reason that family is home is because the breadwinner has a job and can't be away on vacation."

This, he said, distorts the employed figures upward, the unemployed downward.

Sindlinger, a pioneer in the development of consumer confidence as an economic forecasting tool, maintains that other concepts and methods also are defective. Is a jobless auto worker considered unemployed? Not always, he says.

"You have to be actually looking for work in order to be considered unemployed," he said, observing that "a lot of automotive workers are unemployed but not looking for work because they've got guaranteed incomes."

The very definition of unemployment, it seems, is itself the cause of further confusion. Shiskin points to one: a student who cannot find a summer job is considered jobless in the same sense as a head of household.

Some critics, Shiskin said, believe such students should be dropped from the jobless lists. But others maintain that since total household income is down because of the situation the student should indeed be counted.

More controversial is the matter of "discouraged" workers, who aren't counted. When a long-term unemployed worker gives up trying he is dropped from the list of unemployed. He is, so to speak, erased.

Critics claim you can't erase him and that eventually he will reappear to further distort the figures. That is, when the job market improves he reemerges as a job seeker. He was there all the time, the critics say, and should have been counted.

Shiskin concedes there is reason for debate and admits it is very difficult to determine who is and who isn't a job seeker. Many people would like a job, but only at a certain pay and in a certain place, he said, adding: "That isn't the real world."

What determines who is to be counted, who ignored? "It's very subjective," Shiskin answered. "How many discouraged workers there are we don't know.

Some also might question the definition of employed. In the household survey used by the government, unpaid workers in a family business are considered employed. But in the survey of firms, only those on payroll are counted.

And then there is the matter of "statistical quirks" or "flukes," often associated with seasonal adjusting.

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 10, the 253rd day of 1975. There are 112 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1813, an American naval force under Oliver Perry defeated the British in the battle of Lake Erie in the War of 1812.

On this date ...

In 1608, John Smith was elected governor of the Jamestown colony of Virginia.

In 1775, 5,000 Acadians were banished from Nova Scotia.

In 1846, Elias Howe of Spencer, Mass., received a patent on his sewing machine.

In 1898, Empress Elizabeth of Austria-Hungary was assassinated by an anarchist in Geneva.

In 1907, the British colony of New Zealand became a dominion.

In 1939, Canada declared war against Germany.

Ten years ago: United Nations Secretary General U Thant held conferences with the disputing sides in the India-Pakistan war.

Five years ago: Vice President Spiro T. Agnew denounced the Democratic Congress as reactionary, derelict and dominated by cave-dwelling leftists.

One year ago: President Ford weighed the possibility of pardoning those convicted of crimes in Watergate and related scandals.

Today's birthdays: Golfer Arnold Palmer is 46 years old. Former baseball star Roger Maris is 41.

Thought for today: Show me a hero and I will write you a tragedy. — novelist F. Scott Fitzgerald.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, George Washington wrote his brother: "We are well and in no fear or dread of the enemy." He said he wished for nothing more than to see the enemy out of its strongholds.

Joyce Brothers

The stronger sex

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a 13-year-old girl and, more than anything, I'd like to be an astronaut when I grow up. My older brother says this is silly and that even if I were smart enough, they wouldn't use me because I'm a girl and men don't want females up there. He says you have to have a lot of emotional strength and that women get too mixed up and probably couldn't keep track of everything — S.P.

Dear S.P.: As I'm sure you know, the Russians have already had a female astronaut and by the time you're grown, I feel certain that Americans will have overcome the last remnants of prejudice against women.

Your brother might be interested in knowing, for instance, that several years ago a University of Texas psychologist watched a team of ten aquanauts in an undersea lab for seven months, and he found that on most measures, the female aquanauts not only matched the men, they outperformed them. Robert Helmreich, who directed the behavioral studies for Tekite 11 reported that people who were puny in childhood, grew up in small towns and came from small families, handled the stressful situations best. Women generally had fewer problems adjusting to the stress than males did. On this program, four scientists and one engineer were women.

Even the researchers are not quite sure why those who grew up in small towns, or came from small families tended to perform better. They did find a strong relationship between getting along well with others and doing a good job: those who were outgoing and friendly seemed able to do a better job.

The psychologists theorize that growing up in a small town may help because it's like living in a goldfish bowl. Maybe people early in life get used to dealing with the stress of living with others whereas in larger cities people are often isolated in a large group where they don't have as much opportunity to acquire a higher sense of their own abilities and confidence.

Other studies have revealed that women are not always more emotional than men. Although men have long thought of themselves as having better control of their emotions and being less subject to temperamental outbursts, recent studies of hundreds of men and women fail to support this view. They found that while women are more easily irritated by little things, they are much better able than the average man to remain calm in a major crisis. Men are much more apt to fall apart over a broken or unhappy love affair. A woman may scream at a mouse, but in a real disaster she'll probably be comforting and reassuring to the man. The fact that women outlive men may say something about their capacity to endure stress and crises.

Tests by behavior scientists at California State Polytechnic College revealed that women seemed to have the most active imaginations and the most abundant flow of new ideas. Unfortunately, they are often not encouraged to express these ideas. This is changing, however, and by the time you and your brother are adults, you may realize your ambition.

Adrianna Morris is wed in Upland

Miss Adrianna Morris of Upland and Kenneth Jones of Upland were married recently in St. Joseph Catholic Church in Upland.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Morris of Upland and the son of Mrs. Edna Jones were married in a double-ring ceremony read by the Rev. Peadar Brennan.

Honor attendant was Mrs. Julianna Morris of Ontario.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Florianna Hanna of Ontario, Debbie Jones of Upland and Miss Deanna Di Censo of Upland.

Standing as best man was Larry Robertson of Ontario.

Ushers were Ron Robertson of San Dimas, and Eddie Korgan and Greg Swailes, both of Ontario

Flower girl was Karri Robertson of San Dimas and John Morris of Upland was ring bearer.

Following the rite, a reception was held at the hall of the church. When the couple returns from a wedding trip to Mission Bay, the newlyweds will establish a home in Lemoore where the groom is stationed at Lemoore Navy Base.

Kappa Deltas set meeting on Thursday

Pomona Valley chapter of Kappa Delta Alumnae Association will open the fall season at 7:30 p.m. Thursday with a meeting at the home of Mrs. Joseph Shields, 861 Atlanta Court, Claremont.

Reports on the national convention held in June will be presented. All Kappa Deltas are invited and may call Mrs. Shields, 624-1841, for information.

Quality protein

"Prime" meat does not provide better-quality protein than lesser grades of meat. The grade of meat refers to eating quality rather than to protein or nutritional quality.

GOP women attending meet

Two members of the Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club will attend the 18th National Federation of Republican Women biennial convention Thursday through Saturday.

Delegates are Mrs. Paul F. Weisend and Mrs. Jack Fulton.

The three-day event will be held at the Dallas Convention Center, Dallas, Tex.

Speakers will include President Ford, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, U.S. Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, Republican National Chairman Mary Louise Smith, former Texas Governor John Connally and former California Governor Ronald Reagan.

The Pomona Valley Republican Women will assist in staffing the Republican booth at the Los Angeles County Fair under the direction of Mrs. Hollis Page, member of the local club and Fair chairman for the Los Angeles County Federation of Republican Women.

Juniors assist police

The Claremont Junior Woman's Club is aiding the Claremont Police Department by presenting burglary prevention meetings.

Mrs. Michael Rick, safety chairman, is setting up neighborhood day and nighttime coffees to inform citizens about ways to prevent office and home burglaries.

PROJECT IDENTIFICATION is presented by officer Larry Widger and the film is narrated by Raymond Burr. Citizens are asked to use the Project Identification home engravers to mark their personal property. The project has proven to be successful in the return of stolen property.

The Claremont Juniors recently presented two engravers to the police department to encourage more citizen participation in the project.

For information on having the program presented to clubs, contact Mrs. Rick at 621-4100.

Financial planning course set

Beginning Sept. 29, UCLA Extension will offer a weekly course on financial planning for women. Offered will be "how-to" information to those women who are heads of the household, manage money and join in financial discussions.

There will be nine lectures in the series covering such aspects of money management as how to increase income through investments, how to protect personal capital and how to minimize tax liability.

The program is open to the public and will meet on Mondays from 12:30 to 3 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall, Westwood United Methodist Church, 10497 Wilshire Blvd., Westwood. Fee for the series is $65.

Further information can be obtained by calling (213) 825-4520.

Catholic Women meet Thurs.

The Ontario Deanery, Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, will meet on Thursday at Our Lady of Lourdes parish hall. Mass will begin at 11:30 a.m. with a luncheon and business meeting following in the Father Joseph Mackey Memorial Hall.

Mrs. Bernard Mc Sweeney, chairman of the Enthronement of The Sacred Heart, will be in charge of the meeting.

Gayle Grove wed in Texas rituals

The First Presbyterian Church in Mount Pleasant, Texas, was the setting for the marriage of Miss Gayla Grove of Dallas and John Thomas Leftwich of Mount Pleasant, Texas.

The couple was married by the Rev. Thomas H. Schmid in a double-ring ceremony followed by a reception held at the Mount Pleasant Country Club.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin L. Grove of Pomona. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Leftwich of Mount Pleasant.

Mrs. Dennis Gillespie of Alta Loma was honor attendant. Serving as best man was Howard Leftwich of Mount Pleasant.

The bridesmaids were Miss Betty Hetherwick of Little Rock, Ark., Miss Kerry Krouse of Dallas, Mrs. Palmore Currey Jr. and Mrs. W. L. Means; both of Texas.

Flower girl was Miss Melinda Gillespie of Alta Loma.

Ushers were Palmore Currey Jr., William L. Means Jr., of Mount Pleasant, Richard M. Adams of Houston, and David McHam of Dallas.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Cozamal and Cancun in Mexico and will be at home in Mount Pleasant.

White Shrine men's night scheduled

The meeting of Pomona Valley Shrine, Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, will be conducted by the men members on Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Pomona Masonic Temple.

Harvey Wilkin is chairman for the evening which will conclude with refreshments in the dining room.

For stress

It's important to remember that the need for protein is increased during and following periods of stress such as surgery, high fever, severe burns, infection, or other "wasting diseases." These result in actual tissue breakdown, requiring extra amounts of protein in order to rebuild or replace the destroyed tissues.

AAUW charts brunch

The Pomona Valley Branch, American Association of University Women, will hold a membership brunch with the theme of "The Spirit of Seventy Six" on Saturday at the home of Mrs. David Armstrong, 929 Miramar, Claremont.

New and current members are invited to attend the brunch from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Mrs. John Mason will present a program on the plans and goals for the group in the coming year. Interest groups include: Book Review, Status of Women, Fellowship, fund raising, Bridge, and Scholarship.

The estimated population of Iran is 31,837,000, made up of Iranians, Kurds and Azerbaijanis.

BPW Club will meet Thursday

The Montclair Heights Business and Professional Women's Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the music room of Suntown Convalescent Hospital, 9620 Fremont Ave., Montclair.

September has been designated as Membership Month, according to Mrs. William Carlson, president. All business women in Montclair are invited to the meeting.

The program chairman, Mrs. Arthur Fies, has arranged for a speaker from the Claremont Colleges ROTC program to discuss the role of women in today's armed forces.

Persons wishing additional information may call Mrs. Carlson, 621-4751.

Chili con carne has a romantic history

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — A robust pot warrior from the frontier past is joining the war against ever higher food prices in thousands of the nation's kitchens today.

It is chili con carne, conqueror of cheap meat cuts, all of the Southwest, and once the hot pepper courage of the poor.

There are many chili recipes, but all of them must trace their ancestry to bi-cultural city of San Antonio where the dish was born to sustain the lowly and to praise both God and Texas.

The great "bowl of red" they called it when the first padres built the first missions. Then, as today, in its primal versions, it beaded the brows of its eaters, formed dew upon upper lips, and stimulated an utterly reasonable desire among dinner partners to nibble each other ears.

San Antonio's chili, and subsequently the world's is commonly held to be a Mexican concoction. It is true that it owns a parental Mexican heritage as does the city itself. But it is folk-fact that the dish did not come north across the border. It originated in the local adobe huts or jacals of the founding mission campgrounds.

Any dates of origin are clouded, but in 1828, one J.C. Clopper, a rover from Cincinnati, came through San Antonio en route to that wiregrass emptiness which was later called Houston. He wrote at length about chili con carne. He called it a stew made by the poorer classes "with nearly as many peppers as meat."

According to Santone historians, that "stew" consisted of "bite-sized beef cooked slowly with the pulp of chili peppers, crushed oregano, ground cumin seeds and fine-chopped garlic cloves." There was debate concerning the presence or non-presence of suet.

There is always debate about chili. In some circles, the fall of the Alamo is attributed to a Mexican sniper whose lucky shot busted the last clay potful of chili in the mission fortress.

By 1840, San Antonio enjoyed a lively export trade in chili. It shipped "big red" in brick form. The brick, hard as the heart of a Mexican duena, was made of dried beef, fat, dried chili peppers and salt. It was made edible by boiling, and boiled it was whereever men travelled the long, harsh trails of the Southwest. Quite possibly, it was the predecessor of the U.S. Army's C-ration.

Obviously it was not a dish for the effete. Its basic formula had not yet been subject to all the cookery whims of innovators such as President Lyndon B. Johnson, whose Pedernales River chili included tomatoes and onions and excluded suet. The fundamental dish was certainly not chili verde con carne made with fresh green chili pepers — which really have to dry out before they can detonate. And the primal recipe did not contain sweet peppers, parsley or monosodium glutamate.

San Antonio's early export brick was probably "jailhouse chili."

Almost until the year 1900, chili was outlaw diet in nearly all the jails of the Lone Star State. It was cheap, filling, and in the hands of carcel cooks it could make cactus-fed longhorn meat at least as tender as the toughs it fed. Western lawbreakers even ranked jails by the quality of chili served behind their bars.

But the best chili, and long before there was a United States, was eaten in San Antonio by starlight or by torchflame on the city's plazas. It was served by folk-heroines called "chili queens" who doled out the "red" from clay pots to customers who sat at long wooden tables. According to memories of men still around, each "chili queen" was a lissome, sloe-eyed maiden. What else? It is better to recall heartbreak than heartburn.

And chili is a romantic dish as well as nutritious one. True enough, it can help any homemaker stretch a food budget, but it does so with guitars, with spices, and echoes of frontier passions in a time fraught with soybean burgers.

A famous San Antonio recipe known as Argyle chili makes a most courageous dish as follows. One pound each of lean beef and pork. Cut into cubes with salt, pepper and flour. Fry in bacon fat until brown. Remove from fat and fry two onions chopped with cut up green red peppers. Add flour to same fat to make gravy. Add can of tomatoes, two teaspoonfuls chili powder, one teaspoonful cumin seed. Add meat and simmer until tender. Additional water may be needed before done.

Mexican women were given the right to vote in a presidential election for the first time in 1958.

Economy meals can be made glamorous

A food expert who trains restaurant managers from around the world says that both economy and pizzaz can become "naturals" in any kitchen.

Jim Harrison, a 22-year veteran of the restaurant business and food and beverage instructor at Holiday Inn University near Memphis, Tenn., knows what it means to cook on a budget. But, he's also learned how to make economy meals look glamorous and taste like a gourmet delight.

One of Jim's favorite low-cost eyebrow-raisers is a recipe he calls Sky-High Pork Chops. Hamburgers, tuna and other economy meats can always turn into a casserole when monotony strikes, but pork chops take a bit more thought.

Be sure to buy extra-thick pork chops for this dish, planning one chop per person. Brown the meat and transfer it to a baking dish. Now you're ready to build a tower of succulent pineapple rounds, sauteed pepper and onion rings, fluffy white rice and rich tomato sauce that is guaranteed to "wow" any family and leave your grocery budget intact.

SKY HIGH PORK CHOPS

Double-thick pork chops (1 per person)
Canned pineappple rounds
Green pepper (small)
Onion (medium)
Quick-cooking rice
Condensed tomato soup

Salt, pepper and flour the pork chops and brown in skillet with small amount of cooking oil. Place browned pork chops in casserole dish. Cut onion in ¼-inch slices; saute until golden brown, place one slice on each pork chop. Top onion with one pineapple round. Top pineapple rounds with ¼-inch ring of green (bell) pepper. Secure pepper, pineapple and onion to pork chop with toothpick. Prepare rice according to package instructions, using only 2/3 of the steaming time (4 minutes). Cool. Spoon rich into a mound in each pepper ring. Prepare condensed tomato soup with ½ can milk and pour over five-layered pork chops. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Serve with chilled rose wine and green salad.

Cyclamate industry holding breath over FDA's decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials plan to decide in January whether to lift the controversial ban on the use of cyclamates as an artificial sweetener.

The decision will be an effort to end arguments spanning the last six years on whether there is a link between cyclamates and cancer in rats.

If scientists fail to establish a link, Food and Drug Administration officials say cyclamates could be used commercially in diet soft drinks and food next year.

It would take at least four months after the FDA decision to meet requirements for public comment and publication, so cyclamates would not likely appear on grocery shelves before the middle of next year.

Meanwhile, as scientists weigh new cyclamate research along with that which generated the ban in 1969, they are studying similar research which suggests a link between cancer in rats and the other major artificial sweetener, saccharine.

The FDA decision on whether to ban saccharine, the principal replacement for cyclamates in diet products, is not expected by FDA officials before 1977.

The FDA's decisions on the artificial sweeteners depend on research with animals fed extremely high doses of the chemicals — the equivalent of more than 1,000 diet soft drinks a day for a human being. These studies are being examined under rigorous standards by scientists inside and outside the FDA.

FDA officials now say highlevel Nixon administration officials rushed through the cyclamate ban in 1969 without allowing normal scrutiny of supporting research.

The debate over FDA standards and procedures concerns not only bureaucrats and scientists: production of low-calorie foods and diet soft drinks is a billion-dollar-a-year industry.

An estimated 20 million Americans drink diet sodas each day, and millions of other eat diet foods sweetened with saccharine.

The cyclamates decision awaits findings of a scientific panel working under auspices of the National Cancer Institute and reviewing all research on cyclamates and cancer in animals.

FDA officials say privately the panel's decision, due in January, will be adopted by FDA.

In preparation for that report, the FDA is trying to decide related issues, such as whether the chemical can cause organ damage.

Even with a decision finding there is no cancer link, FDA sources say some limits may be imposed on the possible future use of cyclamates, perhaps like the present but little-known one-gram-a-day-a-person limit on the use of saccharine.

If the panel concludes cyclamates cause cancer, the chemical will remain banned.

If the panel fails to reach a conclusion, the FDA still will make a decision, FDA sources say.

"Whereas we have to make a decision, scientists don't feel the same kind of necessity," said one official.

More than three years ago, the FDA commissioned a committee at the National Academy of Sciences to review all saccharine research much as the cancer institute panel is now studying the cyclamate research. Late last year, that panel concluded it could not decide whether saccharine causes cancer in rats.

The National Academy of Sciences panel recommended, and the FDA agreed, that a decision should wait until a comprehensive series of studies by the Canadian government on saccharine is completed about 18 months from now.

Saccharine, which is 300 times sweeter than sugar, has been in use since 1879, and cyclamates — 30 times sweeter than sugar — have been used since 1944. Both have been subjects of research for years.

Before 1969, both chemicals were studied by various National Academy of Sciences panels and by outside researchers. Most of these studies suggested that some limit be imposed on the daily intake of these sweeteners, but a limit high enough to permit considerable consumption of diet soft drinks.

On Oct. 13, 1969, the FDA was told that a study by an independent laboratory under contract to Abbott Laboratories Inc. showed bladder tumors in four of 240 rats fed a combination of 10 parts cyclamate and one part saccharine as part of their diet.

Five days later, after a hurried series of meetings with officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the rushed meeting of a National Academy of Sciences committee, cyclamates were banned.

"The decision went somewhat around the FDA ... It did not receive the kind of staff work that these kinds of problems usually receive," said Richard Ronk, head of the FDA division of food and color additives.

For several reasons, there now are serious questions about basing such a major decision on the tests by Dr. Bernard Oser. The test was not designed to detect cancer-causing activity and was not designed to conclude anything about an individual chemical.

Dessert secret is in sauce

The success of a meal is often determined by the dessert . . . since it's the last thing eaten. And often the unique and elegant desserts that come to your rescue are comparatively simple to prepare and serve.

Rhine Butter Sauce makes just such a dessert.

Made with imported German white wine from the Rhine valley, the sauce reflects the characteristics for which German wines have long been known . . . light, fruity bouquet and soft, refreshing flavor.

Rhine Butter Sauce turns ordinary pound cake into a gourmet dessert. And, when served as a dip for fresh strawberries, it provides a truly elegant ending to any dinner.

Creamy and rich, Rhine Butter Sauce can be made in advance and stores well in the refrigerator for several weeks.

A perfect complement to this new dessert is Sekt, the sparkling wine from Germany, which embodies the same fruity, full flavor found in all German wines.

RHINE BUTTER SAUCE

2 whole eggs
2 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
2/3 cup Rhine wine
½ pound butter, melted

In top of double boiler, beat eggs, egg yolks, and sugar until thick, 3 to 5 minutes. Slowly beat in wine and butter and continue beating until blended. Then place over simmering water and cook and stir until thickened. This will take about 10 to 15 minutes. Cool. Serve as a sauce over pound cake or fruit or as a dip for cookies or fresh fruits.

Apple polishers getting big crop to work on

A bumper crop of apples is ripening in orchards across the nation and the large supplies should mean lower retail prices for the fruit through the coming year.

The Agricultural Marketing Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture predicted that this year's apple crop will be almost 174 million 42-pound boxes, an increase of 13 per cent over last year.

While bad weather has threatened harvests of other crops, from corn to onions, the apple growers have been lucky.

"This year it just seems everyone had good weather," a USDA spokesman said.

Authorities in the state of Washington, the country's top producer, expect a fresh apple crop 19 per cent larger than last year's; growers in New York State, the second largest producer, say they should harvest their biggest crop in half a century.

James Garlik, assistant commissioner of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, said more of the 1975 crop than usual would probably be sold for eating fresh, because many of the big apple processors have supplies left from last year.

"The price of apples for the consumer is going down some and the quality is going to be up," Garlik said.

The Washington State Apple Commission said the average price of a bushel of apples (equal to 42 pounds) was $7.50 at the wholesale level for fruit from the 1974-75 crop. They expect the average wholesale price for the 1975-76 crop to be about $6 a bushel, a drop of 20 per cent.

That does not necessarily mean a 20 per cent drop in the price consumers pay, however. Transportation, packaging, labor and storage costs all add to the bill. USDA figures show that in the fourth quarter of 1974, apples were selling at about 31 cents a pound. The farm value was a little more than a dime.

The New York-New England Apple Institute in Westfield, Mass., said consumers should expect to pay about 79 or 89 cents for a three-pound bag of apples in stores this fall. Prices will be higher later in the season because the apples being sold will reflect storage costs.

"One of the big costs of storage is electricity and you know where those costs are," said Robert Goldman of the Connecticut Department of Agriculture.

The large crop also is expected to cut prices of items made from apples. Irving Silverman, an Easton, Conn., orchard owner, said that cider, which was selling for up to $2 a gallon last year, may drop to $1.50 a gallon this year.

While consumers may cheer the lower prices, the size of the apple crop is causing a few problems for growers. In some areas there is not enough labor to pick the crop. And officials in New York expressed concern that low prices paid to farmers might put some of the state's 1,300 apple growers out of business.

The USDA says the average American ate almost 26 pounds of apples last year. Almost 16 pounds were eaten fresh. The rest were consumed frozen, dehydrated, in the form of juice or as applesauce.

Chicken casserole —freedom

These crisp edged days of fall are so activity-packed we feel we are on a time budget. In fact, even our informal entertaining is dominated with casserole cookery. Dishes of this kind release you from the stay-home-and-cook syndrome. Such a one is this intriguing Dutch - influenced frozen hash browns and bread cubes stuffing with chicken. Prepare it early and join the crowd at the game.

This casserole has a lot to offer. The combination of a traditional potato and bread stuffing is updated with the deft readiness of frozen hash browns. For a quick thaw of the potatoes, put them in a strainer. Pour boiling water over them and drain immediately. Let stand for fifteen to twenty minutes. Then separate and add to the bread cubes, cut and toasted while the potatoes thawed. This seasoned mixture forms the base for chicken breasts that bake right along with the stuffing. If the casserole must stand for a while, cover it with aluminum foil to keep it moist.

Now as every hostess knows, conversations at this time of the year are dominated by sports. And the excitement of instant individual re-plays can keep dinner in a holding pattern longer than planned. There's no problem with this casserole. Just go ahead and ready the tossed green salad and heat the herb-buttered bread. Then, as your guests wander to the table, bring the casserole right from the oven.

CHICKEN WITH DUTCH POTATO STUFFING

1 package (12 ounces) frozen shredded hash browns
8 slices day-old white bread
½ cup butter or margarine
4 half breasts of chicken, skinned and boned
1½ cups chopped celery stalks and leaves
1 cup fresh frozen chopped onions
1 (10¾ ounce) can condensed chicken broth
2 teaspoons ground or whole celery seed
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup chopped parsley
2 slices bacon

Thaw and separate potatoes. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Toast bread lightly and cut into half-inch cubes to measure 5 cups. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a Dutch oven. Add chicken breasts and brown slowly for about 5 minutes, turning once. Remove chicken and keep warm.

Melt remaining butter in the Dutch oven. Add celery and onion and saute 3 minutes. Add potatoes, toss lightly and cook 2 minutes longer. Add broth, celery seed, salt and pepper. Heat to boiling. Remove from heat and add toasted bread cubes and parsley. Toss well to blend.

Turn into a shallow 1½-quart baking dish. Arrange chicken on top, pushing lightly into stuffing. Cut bacon slices in halves crosswise, and place one piece on each chicken breast. Bake for 25 to 30 minutes, until bacon is crisp and chicken tender. Makes 4 servings.

Hard boiled

If you hard-cook an egg in the shell too long or at too high a temperature you may find that there is a dark layer between the yolk and the white when the egg is shelled.

Industry worried by FDA

"The decision to select out cyclamates was not justified because of the combination of substances under test," Oser told the cancer institute panel as it reviewed his study in July.

On saccharine, the FDA was told in late 1971 that a Wisconsin study found that four of 40 rats fed a very high dose — equal to about 1,000 diet soft drinks a day — developed bladder tumors.

The FDA response was to slap the gram-a-day limit on saccharine consumption — about seven soft drinks — and ask the national academy for an evaluation of the research.

Various critics have contended that the cyclamate ban was a hasty decision.

"It was an emotional, almost irrational decision," said one food industry official who asked not to be identified.

Others disagree.

"They had no choice. . . at the time, the studies showed definite carcinogenicity," says Gilbert Goldhammer, consultant to the subcommittee of the House Government Operations Committee that oversees the FDA.

Abbott — once a major producer of cyclamates — asked the FDA in 1973 to allow the sweetener back on the market.

The FDA asked the cancer institute for the panel to evaluate all the available research.

The study by Oser as well as more recent research by the FDA staff is undergoing careful scrutiny. The FDA study — of both saccharine and cyclamates — detected no tumors in the rats fed cyclamates, but did find tumors in eight of the 96 rats fed saccharine.

But the national academy panel said it found that the FDA study did not prove that saccharine is linked to cancer — because of the failure of the study to meet some of the stiff standards the committee set.

Ralph Nader's Health Research Group has sharply criticized the FDA for not moving on saccharine.

"The FDA lost its guts after the cyclamates issue," says Anita Johnson of the Nader organization.

But Ronk, whose division is responsible for the upcoming decisions on both artificial sweeteners, disagreed.

"It is a legal requirement that the FDA try to settle contentious arguments between scientists," he said. "It's a diffficult problem to solve."

The oversight committee aide, Goldhammer, accuses the FDA of favoring the industry.

"There is foot-dragging ... They are more concerned with protecting the product than the users," Goldhammer said.

Ronk replied to such criticism, "We have a strong responsibility to be equitable under the law."

"A single result in one person's laboratory is not the final word."

Japan fishing boat captured

TOKYO (AP) — A patrol boat believed to be North Korean captured a 50-ton Japanese fishing boat in the northern part of the Yellow Sea today after killing one of the nine crewmen and seriously wounding another, the Maritime Safety Agency reported.

Educated, trained refugees have it rough finding work

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Because of language and other barriers, many well-trained and well-educated Vietnamese refugees living in the Minneaplis-St. Paul area are having little success in finding jobs comparable to those they held in their native land.

A judge who sought work was asked if he knows how to weld. A skilled ear, nose and throat specialist was unable to find work in any metropolitan area hospital. A former teacher is doing piecemeal sewing in her home for $3 an hour.

Most of the 1,000 Vietnam refugees who resettled in the area have good educations and training. Their plight in finding suitable jobs was related recently at a job seminar organized by the Vietnamese American Association of Minnesota (VAA).

"In this room are people with three and four degrees who are out fixing hamburgers," said Guy Wegener, a labor relations representative of Red Owl supermarkets.

Wegener said that as far as' the job market goes, many companies have affirmative action only "on paper."

Energy in off-coast hot spots

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Super-heated water and steam trapped off Texas' Gulf Coast could help solve the nation's energy problems, the U.S. Geological Survey says.

The government agency, in a report issued this week, said water and steam under great pressure off the coast contain dissolved methane and natural gas.

The report said there are several places off the country's shores where high temperatures are found close enough to the surface to permit water and steam tapping. But most of the other areas don't have the natural gas advantage found off Texas, the survey said.

That gas could be "a valuable by-product if sufficient quantities are present," the survey said.

Scientists involved in the study said if the geothermal energy available to this country is fully utilized, the hot water and steam could produce 42,000 megawatts of electricity continuously for 100 years.

That estimate was based on geothermal energy recoverable at present cost levels to twice present cost levels, the study said.

Current U.S. capacity for electrical production from all sources is 400,000 megawatts, the researchers said.

The researchers said their estimates are preliminary because relatively little is known about the size of geothermal systems, temperatures and potential.

The survey said just under 10 per cent of the geothermal resource estimate can be tapped now, but improved techniques could make the entire resource base accessible.

Scientists said other deposits of water and steam at somewhat lower temperatures — at or just above boiling — also are present off U.S. coasts. They said such cooler deposits "have potentially great usefulness for non-electrical purposes such as space heating and industrial processes."

Scientists from the Energy Research and Development Administration assisted the U.S. Geological Survey in making the geothermal estimates.

Mountain lion needs a home

ESCONDIDO (AP) — The Humane Society has a mountain lion named Bogie they'd like to part with.

If they can't give him away pretty soon, they say they'll have to destroy him.

The four-year-old lion was captured three weeks ago in Riverside County after it attacked an elderly man.

Society director Bill Huskey said the mountain lion is a "very endangered species" and the society will donate Bogie to 'a bonafide organization' able to care for it."

But the San Diego Zoo, San Diego Wild Animal Park and a number of national parks already have turned thumbs down on Bogie and time may be running out.

"This cat is definitely on death row," said Huskey.

Segregation isn't licked yet, integrationists say

By Dolores Barclay
Associated Press Writer

Those long involved in fighting for integration see as much school segregation today as 21 years ago when the Supreme Court declared separate facilities for black and white students unconstitutional.

The civil rights leaders, interviewed recently about the status of school integration, said the nation still faces an uphill struggle to fully integrate southern public schools and end de facto segregation in the North. They added, however, that the quality of education for southern black children has improved slightly.

"We certainly do not have integrated schools," said Dr. Kenneth Clark, a retired City University of New York psychology professor.

Clark, who testified in the 1954 Brown vs. Topeka Board of Education case in which the Supreme Court ruled "separate but equal" schools inherently unequal, distinguished between desegregated schools and integrated ones.

Legal Mandate Needed

Desegregated schols require only a lègal mandate, he said, adding that the South now provides good examples of desegregated schools.

Integrated schools require psychological, social and human concerns so that race becomes a positive factor in learning, Clark said. The best examples of integregated schools are private schools in the North, he said.

Dr. Martin Deutsch, a professor of early childhood education at New York Universty who worked with Clark in preparing for the Brown case, said the number of schools that have become integrated since 1954 "is not that significant."

It is difficult to tell how many schools remain segregated since most integration suits are against school districts, not individual schools. According to the U.S. Office of Civil Rights, a federal suit was filed against districts in 17 southern and border states in 1973 and another suit was filed last month against districts in 33 southern and northern states.

James Farmer, a founder of the Congress of Racial Equality and now president of the Council on Minority Planning and Strategy, noted at least one reason school integration has not come about.

"In the early '60s, it was assumed that if we could get black children into those classrooms that were largely white, they would have a higher quality education, because white parents had more political and economic power," he said.

It didn't work, Farmer said, because white parents took their children out of public school and sent them to private schools, some of which, in the South, were created just to avoid integration.

Last year in Summerton, S.C., for example, three white children attended public schools with an enrollment of about 2,000, while more than 400 whites attended the private Clarendon Hall Academy.

Economic Factors

Clark noted, however, that the number of white youngsters in such academies is decreasing "because of largely financial factors."

"White parents are no longer able to afford private academies for racial reasons," he said.

Enmeshed in the integration problem is the question of whether the quality of education has improved since schools became desegregated.

Those interviewed, conceding it was difficult to measure, said that learning in the United States has deteriorated over the past two decades but that southern black youngsters had been given an educational boost.

"In terms of the miserable conditions before the (Brown) decision, the basic quality of education for black children has improved," Deutsch said.

"It is undoubtably better," agreed Winifred Green, director of the American Friends Service Committee's Southeast Education Program in Atlanta, Ga.

"Prior to 1965, there was no federal aid of any significance to elementary and secondary education" in southern schools, she said. "But since Title 1 and other programs, there's been more money. It has improved the quality of education, and that goes hand and hand with desegregation."

Miss Green said she went to all-white public schools in her native Jackson, Miss., before desegregation. "Now the quality of education is so much better than when I went through those schools," she said.

But still more needs to be done, those interviewed said.

Textbook Alteration

Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, pointed to the need to alter textbooks so they are not designed with only white youngsters in mind.

And Farmer saw a major problem in the residential patterns of northern cities that have resulted in segregated schools.

"De jure segregation, that is, segregation based on state and local law, is almost over, but it was replaced by de facto segregation, segregation based on residency," he said.

Efforts to overcome residence patterns by school busing have met with hostility, and Clark said that type of hostility is a good reason for integration of schools.

"People who are educated under a racially homogeneous situation are contaminated by racism and will seek to perpetuate the racism that contaminated them," he said.

In the Brown case, he added, most of the arguments were made in terms of the academic retardation of black youngsters. This might have been a mistake, he said.

"We should have made equally clear not only the academic, but the moral and ethical retardation of white children under segregation in a multiracial world," he said.

Short-order cook cooks 111 hours

PITTSBURG, Kan. (AP) Peggy Snider's cooking will put another category into the Guinness Book of World Records.

A short-order cook for 16 years, she launched her record setting effort at 6 a.m. Thursday over the griddle of an all-night restaurant. Except for one five-minute break, she cooked continuously for 111 hours until 9 p.m. Monday.

A mother of three children, Peggy had hoped to continue until 9 a.m. Tuesday, but she was forced to quit when friends became concerned that her feet, ankles and legs were swelling.

She not only chalked up a record but also became the first to record such a record for nonstop cooking.

"You can do it if you put your mind to it," she said.

Teacher given probation for murder plot

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — A teacher who pleaded no contest to soliciting the murder of her husband has been placed on three years' probation and ordered to spend 200 hours in a work-service program.

San Bernardino Superior Court Judge Roy Chapman also directed recently that Margaret Eckard seek psychiatric care.

Mrs. Eckard, 47, a Colton teacher, offered an undercover sheriff's detective $1,500 last March to kill her husband, court records showed. The couple was undergoing divorce proceedings at the time.

Oil-rich Nigeria finding that money doesn't buy paradise

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — "This nation is being strngled by its own prosperity. It's like a newly wealthy man switching from a meager diet to a rich one. His arteries start clogging up and he is in danger of suffering heart failure."

The African diplomat was bewailing the endless frustrations and complications of life in the capital city of Black Africa's richest and most populous nation.

As he talked, a nose-to-tail stream of cars inched its way along the road outside. In the sea lanes leading to Nigeria's most important port in Lagos more than 280 ships, laden with commodities essential for Nigeria's existence and growth, queued for berths. Many have been waiting for two or three months.

In the crowded, vibrant streets of the city, a new breed of Nigerian entrepreneur who has managed to cash in on the nation's massive oil wealth rubs shoulders with peanut vendors and impoverished inhabitants of shanty towns who are finding it daily more difficult to make ends meet as the cost of living soars.

There are constant shortages of milk, gasoline, beer and other items of daily life here despite the fact that last year Nigeria earned $8.8 billion dollars from oil.

Lagos is not entirely representative of life in the rest of the country. But it is here that the dreams, aspirations and fears of the nation crystallize. And over the past few months many residents of the capital have been predicting that something had to give.

Late last month their forecasts came true. As he attended the organization of African Unity summit in Uganda, Gen. Yakabu Gowon was ousted as Nigerian head of state. After nine years of uninterrupted power he was toppled by a handful of dissatisfied brigadiers and colonels who no longer felt he had the authority or capacity to rule.

The new military rilers, headed by 38-year-old Brig. Murtala Muhammed, charged that he had become isolated from the people and was allowing the direction of state affairs to drift to such an extent that the nation's 65-70 million people were again threatened by "bloodshed and chaos."

Ironically it was Gowon himself who faced a far more dangerous situation when he became Nigeria's new leader in July 1966. Earlier that year an army coup toppled the politicins who had unevenly ruled Nigeria in the six years since it achieved independence from Britain.

In the counter-coup that followed Gowon emerged as compromise leader of a country torn by tribal animosities and headed straight for civil war.

Faced with the secession of southeastern Biafra, which contained most of Nigeria's vast reserves of oil, Gowon mobilized a 200,000-man army which over three years of bitter fighting crushed the rebels. He likened his role to that of President Abraham Lincoln during the American Civil War.

His stature as an even-handed leader was further enhanced after the war by the magnanimity with which he treated the defeated Biafrans. Amnesty was the order of the day.

Nigeria is a conglomeration of some 250 often quarrelsome tribal groupings, divided by religion and culture.

The arid, windswept north is predominantly Moslem, but Christians predominate in the tropical south. Other Nigerians follow their traditional religious customs.

It was Gowon's repeatedly stated desire to weld them irrevocably into one nation. Even his critics agree that he laid the foundations.

Part of the key to his success was Nigerian oil. Fueled by international increases in oil prices, Nigerian coffers were flooded by foreign exchange. Last year earnings from oil quadrupled to about $8.8 billion.

In the United States, Nigerian oil made from 25 to 30 per cent share of the imported fuel. But this year falling demand for oil worldwide is expected to cut Nigerian revenues by some $2 billion.

It was the spurt in oil revenues that earlier this year allowed Gowon to award massive pay hikes to civil servants and also launch an ambitious $48 billion, five-year development program. It was designed to create an industrial revolution, boost stagnant agriculture towards self-sufficiency and open up equal opportunities for all Nigerians. When he launched the plan Gowon said he wanted to remove "want in the midst of plenty."

But the pay increases, ranging from 30 to 130 per cent, sparked a series of strikes for similar awards in the private sector, which were met under government pressure.

Yet at least 90 per cent of the nation, reliant on a hand-to-mouth existence from the land, derived little benefit.

As the minority went on spending spree, inflation soared from 13 to more than 30 per cent.

In Lagos a tin of milk shot up in price from 15 to 30 cents and a packet of sugar from 20 to 32 cents. Similar increases were recorded around the nation.

In addition, as newspapers here have been pointing out in the past week, disillusionment with Gowon's government was further accentuated by a string of broken promises.

These included undertakings to return Nigeria to civilian rule next year, to replace or reshuffle Nigeria's governors then under fire for corruption, and to create new states to make the existing 12 more representative of local aspirations.

The new rulers have made it clear that dissatisfaction with Gowon's leadership of the armed forces together with what they considered his indecision over general affairs of state triggered the coup. What is not yet clear is whether a group of disgruntled colonels acted first and later brought in the brigadiers or whether all acted in concert.

The new head of state, Muhammed, his number two, Brig. Olusegun Obansanjo, and new External Affairs Commissioner (Minister) Col. Joseph Garba were all close to Gowon. This makes it appear that to some extent at least the coup was a "palace revolution."

Any initial fears that Nigerians may have had that the coup was a grab for power by northern tribesmen have been dissipated by Muhammed's decision to annul the results of the 1973 census and to include a wide spectrum of regional representatives in the supreme military council and among the governors.

The army promised a "new direction for the nation," and most Nigerians welcomed Gowon's removal. They are biding their time, however, before embracing the new rulers.

One Nigerian summed the situation up this way: "We are in the position of a man sitting back with his arms folded. We are awaiting events. We very much want the best for our country. We hope the new military rulers will not let us down. We hope they will overcome the crisis of rising expectations and unfulfilled desires."

A prince's royal repast on a pauper's budget

Things a little rough at the castle these days? What's that you say, the budget is so tight that you had to let the cook go and last month you couldn't even afford algacide for the moat? Fear not!

Two new recipes from the R. T. French Company in Rochester, New York will help you prepare a royal repast on a budget before you can say, "lower the drawbridge!"

Million Dollar Meatballs are adapted from a favorite Greek recipe. Spinach and cheese combine flavorfully to stretch the meat. The special sauce for the perfect Grecian touch is quickly stirred together with an envelope of brown gravy mix and a hint of tangy lemon. Served over piping hot noodles, Million Dollar Meatballs are truly fit for a king.

For those days when your knight in shining armor returns home from the wars earlier than expected, Meatball Chowder is the answer. No need to brown the meatballs. Simply add them to the hearty potato chowder which you make with packaged scalloped potatoes. This filling chowder is ready in just half an hour.

Serve either recipe with cole slaw, cornbread and milk with fresh fruit and coffee for dessert.

MILLION DOLLAR MEATBALLS

2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup soft bread crumbs
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 package (10-ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed
1 pound ground beef
3 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 envelope (¾-ounces) brown gravy mix
Cooked noodles
1 pound ground beef

Combine eggs, crumbs, and cheese in mixing bowl. Drain spinach well; add with beef to egg mixture and mix lightly. Shape into meatballs. Brown in fat in large skillet; pour off excess fat. Stir in 1¼ cups water, lemon juice, and contents of gravy mix envelope. Simmer, uncovered, 15 to 20 minutes or until meatballs are cooked. Serve with noodles. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

MEATBALL CHOWDER

1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
1 pound ground beef
1 package (5⅝-ounces) scalloped potatoes
1 package (10-ounces) frozen mixed vegetables, partially thawed
1 cup undiluted evaporated milk

Combine egg, crumbs and salt. Add ground beef; mix lightly. Shape into small meatballs. Combine seasoning mix from package of potatoes with 5 cups water in large pan; bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Add potato slices and meatballs. Cover and simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add vegetables; simmer 10 minutes longer, until tender. Stir in milk; heat gently. Makes 6 servings.

In summer, relax and enjoy life

Summer means different things to different people. However to many it does mean fun in the sun and "beaching" it whether at a lake, river, ocean or pool. The over-all atmosphere of the summer season is casual and relaxed. This same atmosphere should carry through to mealtime and "steamers" provide a quick, easy and delicious summer meal.

Clams steamed in beer are a great meal-time treat. The mellow brew not only flavors the clam itself but also deliciously seasons the broth in which the clam is dipped.

Homemade cole slaw with a bear-seasoned dressing is a natural accompaniment are pitchers of ice cold beer.

CLAMS STEAMED IN BEER

4 dozen soft shell clams in shell
Salt and pepper
1½ teaspoons seafood seasoning
¾ cup beer
Melted butter or margarine

Wash clams thoroughly and place in pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and seafood seasoning. Add beer, cover and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and steam approximately 15 minutes or until shells open wide. Drain clams and reserve liquid. Strain liquid. Serve hot clams in shell with a bowl of clam liquid and melted butter or margarine for dipping. Serves 4.

BEER COLE SLAW

1 medium head cabbage
½ cup beer
1 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
1 teaspoon vinegar
Paprika

Shred cabbage. In separate bowl mix all ingredients, except paprika. Toss cabbage with dressing. When ready to serve, sprinkle with paprika.

Ocean ridge

The Mid-Ocean Ridge is a continuous underwater mountain chain that winds through all the world's ocean basins. A major portion of the Mid-Ocean Ridge is the 12,000-mile long Mid-Atlantic Ridge, lying almost halfway between North America and Europe. Here violent volcanic eruptions occur and molten rock constantly wells up through the rift as the floor of the Atlantic spreads outward, carrying Europe and North America aparty by nearly an inch a year.

BLACKBERRY CREAM PUFFS

This filling for cream puffs has the fragrance and tang of the exotic blackberry. The puffs may be made ahead of time and filled just before serving to keep them tender and dry. To make the filling, dissolve a 3-ounce package of blackberry gelatin in 1 cup boiling water. Stir in 1 cup cold water and chill until slightly thickened. Fold in 1 cup heavy cream, whipped and chill until firm. To serve, stir the filling until smooth. Remove the tops of the puffs, and spoon 1/3rd cup of filling into each one. Replace tops. A sprinkling of confectioners sugar on top of each completed cream puff gives a professional touch.

Wildlife refuge grant clears state Senate

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation to provide $900,000 for the purchase of Madrona Marsh for a wildlife refuge and public park in Torrance has cleared the state Senate.

The 27-0 vote Monday approving Assembly amendments sent the measure to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Sen. Robert Stevens, R-Los Angeles, said the bill involves 54 acres of the marsh and noted that the Assembly amendments appropriate State Beach, Park, Recreational and Historical Facilities Fund of 1964 money to the Department of Parks and Recreation.

The Senate last June passed the bill to appropriate the money from the state Environmental Protection Program Fund.

"It may turn out the money may not be there, and if so, we'll look elsewhere," Stevens said.

The money would be passed along to the city by the Department of Parks and Recreation during the next three fiscal years.

Assembly amendments also prevent the Madrona Marsh allocation unless money from the same fund is available to purchase Baldwin Hills Regional Park.

Stevens and Ralph Dills, D-Gardena, are Senate authors of the legislation.

It is SB 431.

Iron Age

The Iron Age is usually considered by archaeologists to be a period of some centuries immediately following the time when iron began to replace bronze as the principal material for implements and weapons.

This special cookie for Jewish holidays

As September gives way to October, Jews throughout the world celebrate Succoth or Feast of the Tabernacles.

The word succoth (variously spelled Sukkoh, Succos, Sukka, etc.) means small huts and is a reminder of the primitive dwellings in which ancient Jews lived during a 40-year period of wandering in the wilderness. Succoth or Feast of the Tabernacles might well be regarded as the Jews' counterpart to the Pilgirms' Thanksgiving: It celebrates the autumn fruit harvest as it reminds one of the wandering Jews of long ago.

As on most holidays, traditional food is served. Mandelbrot, a crispy, crunchy almond cookie redolent in this version with cinnamon, orange and lemon, seems perfect with fresh pears or fruit compotes. Sliced pears, apples, grapes and oranges — splashed with a little wine, if you wish — make a delightful combination of fresh fruits to serve with Mandelbrot.

When you taste Mandelbrot, you'll know this is not a once-a-year recipe. Your family and friends will enjoy these cookies no matter what the occasion or season.

Note that two bakings are required. Do the first baking a day or so ahead, if you wish, and store the cookies in the refrigerator or freezer; then give them the final baking shortly before serving.

MANDELBROT

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
½ cup vegetable oil
1 teaspoon almond or vanilla extract
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 tablespoon grated fresh orange rind
1 teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind
3 cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup slivered almonds
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons sugar

In a large mixing bowl, beat eggs until thick and lemon-colored. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add oil slowly while continuing to beat. Mix in extract, orange juice, orange and lemon rinds. Sift together flour, salt and baking powder, then mix with almonds. Add to egg and sugar mixture, about 1/3rd at a time, mixing well.

For easier handling, chill dough several hours or overnight. Turn out onto a well-floured board; dip your hands in flour, then knead about a dozen turns. Divide dough into two or three pieces and pat each into strips about 3 inches wide, 1 inch thick and about 10 to 12 inches long.

Place strips on well-oiled and floured shallow baking pan (10½" x 15½" x 1" is a good size). Bake at 350 degrees 40 to 45 minutes or until golden brown. Remove at once to board and while still warm cut with a serrated knife into ½ inch slices. Let slices cool; re-arrange on baking pan, turning in their sides. Sprinkle with mixture of cinnamon and sugar and bake at 400 degrees until delicately browned. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

Medi-Cal bill vetoed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has vetoed legislation to give aged Medi-Cal recipients one free physical examination per year.

In his veto message Monday, Brown said Medi-Cal recipients 62 and older are already entitled to two medical visits a month "at which time their doctor may diagnose, examine and prescribe whatever is needed…."

Assemblyman Lawrence Kapiloff, D-San Diego, sponsored the bill.

Added Brown: "I have concluded that the additional benefit provided in this bill cannot be justified."

It is AB 342.

Poet Beulah Bell publishes at 88

MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP) — Poet Beulah Bell first broke into print with a protest song. Now, after a 57-year hiatus, she's publishing again.

"The first thing I wrote of any note was in '18," the 88-year-old black woman says. "It was a protest song during the war. I called it the 'Negro Soldier Blues.'"

Unlike most latter day war-protest songs, this one was for fighting — and the right of blacks to do some of it. Then 32, Mrs. Bell dashed off the eight-verse song after the U.S. Army refused to induct her brother for World War I. It was a time, the song notes, for setting people free at home and abroad.

Renamed "The Friendly Adjutant-Protest Song," it's among 60 pieces published in "Two Roads," a 75-page, softbound volume Mrs. Bell paid to have printed.

"I can't take it with me," she says. "It don't cost too much. I guess I'll make it back."

Sales, she says, are going rather well. Copies are distributed through area groceries and drugstores.

Divided into sections titled Sacred, Young Love, Family and Patriotic, her poems reflect her rural heritage with homespun language, simple rhythm and often a touch of earthy humor.

Born in Cape Girardeau, Mo., Mrs. Bell attended school through the ninth grade and made education her profession.

"I studied up on some subjects so I could pass the teachers' exam and I taught school," she said. "That was about 1907 I guess."

"It was a country school down at Rock Ledge. If somebody didn't take me in a horse and buggy I'd have to ride a freight train, in the caboose. Some very amusing things happened."

There was the time, she says, she was chased to class by a pack of wild hogs, something which seems funnier now than it did at the time.

Later she married and moved to Mount Vernon where she was active in the church, the school and civil rights efforts. She organized the forerunner of the local PTA and reared two children. Through the years she continued writing as a hobby.

"I had to go on the state when I was a little older, when my husband and son passed," she says. A welfare caseworker noticed a stack of her poems on a table one day and encouraged her to see an outlet.

"I had quite a few poems piled up by that time," she says. "That must have been along about '64."

A deal with a New York publisher fell through "but I didn't stop at that," she says.

NEW TASTE IN BURGERS

For a slightly crunchy, extra-special taste, serve hamburgers between toasted halves of English muffins. Besides texture, English muffins provide a unique flavor that enhances foods served with them. Pictured here are 3 of the attractive and tasty ways to garnish muffin burgers. At left, strips of mozzarella cheese are criss-crossed over the burger and topped with pimiento-stuffed olive slices and parmesan cheese. In center, the burger is topped with French fried onion rings, catsup and a dollop of roquefort cheese. The burger at right sports a slice of cheddar cheese, a slice of fresh tomato and 2 raw onion rings.

Norway keeps rein on oil field boom

OSLO, Norway (AP) — In five years Norway will be one of the world's major petroleum exporters. But the country has chosen to bridle the bonanza, and get rich as slowly and gracefully as it can.

A blend of practicality, idealism and righteousness will hold down production, limit explortion and keep a very tight rein on how much of the expected profits of $3 billion a year are sluiced back into the economy once the oil production target level is reached in 1980.

Some Norwegians, including Finance and Foreign Ministry officials, have said that their approach, rejecting quick growth and profits, could serve as an example to the West. Others, less inclined to give lessons, say Norway is acting the only way it can to avoid drowning in its oil wealth.

The riches are these: with barely 20 per cent of its continental shelf explored, Norway will be producing 630 million barrels of oil a year by 1980. The figure is a self-imposed limit, which will be six times Norway's own needs, and about 10 per cent of Western Europe's projected consumption.

In the area of initial production, in the North Sea below the 62nd Parallel, the Ministry of Industry has estimated that Norway's reserves put it on a par with Venezuela and Algeri. Although the government has been extremely cautious on estimates of how much oil could be found above the 62nd Parallel, where test drilling will begin in 1977, some experts say there is likely to be three or four times as much as below and others have projected that the reserves could be as great as the entire Middle East.

"We could be going very much faster and we've been criticized about our selfishness by some people," said Trade Minister Einar Magnussen in an interview. "Of course there could be much more exploration and much more drilling. We haven't run computer projection on exactly on how rich we could get how fast. But it's obvious. The problem is' of course, that we'd tear our society apart in the process."

The Norwegians see their new wealth as a threat to the traditional areas of activity, like fishing and farming, that they consider socially important. The difficulty comes because Norway, with a population of four million, has had only 0.8 unemployment in 1975 and new jobs would pull people away from the fishing boats and farms and tend to depopulate the north of the country.

At its peak, the oil industry will employ about 30,000 people. Magnussen says it is not the industry itself but spending the profits that provides the danger because government projections show that for every $230 million put into public improvements 19,000 new jobs are created.

This would be more jobs than people available, and would not only strt drain on fishing and farming, but probably take workers out of the textile and furniture industries and kill their competitiveness.

Norway could import foreign workers, but the official position is that the country does not want to import anyone to turn them into a second-class citizen. There is also no small amount of unspoken racism involved in bringing in workers from southern Europe and North Africa.

With its employment dilemma, Norway will hold down its revenues, spending half of the yearly profits of $3 billion in private consumption, a quarter in the public field, with the rest going into paying debts and making foreign investments.

Since the oil is expected to last between 100 and 150 years, the foreign investments will provide future wealth without directly involving the Norwegian economy.

The relatively slow pace will also let Norwegians take over virtually all the expert jobs in the oil industry, many of which have been held by Americans, Britons and Frenchmen.

The idealism and righteousness that have also contributed to the get-rich-slowly approach complement the practical sides. They are exemplified in statements like these:

Magnussen: "We have always lived on the outskirts of Europe and have felt we're not so much a part of things. Norwegian people want cars and television sets, but they also talk more about the country. They want to protect it. The people think our pace is the right one. The idea of keeping the country together is not an abstract one. Nor is the idea of not endangering the environment — we really utilize it in our daily lives."

Anders Sjaastad, information director of the Norwegian Foreign Policy Institute: "Since we had a great deal of hydroelectric power, the oil question was put into a broader perspective here than it might have been elsewhere. We talked more about its disadvantags than the money, perhaps. And the question was asked again and again 'why should we rush to get rich?'"

But there has been criticism of the government's approach, although the polls give it 60 per cent approval. Trouble in the shipbuilding industry, partially attenuated because the biggest shipbuilders have gotten into the construction of oil rigs, has led to some calls to speed things up. Resistance among fishermen in the north, fearing pollution, is dying down and fears of turning society upside down seem to be lessening as well.

Yet there are people who say Norway has sold out entirely and the rush of oil and money is too great. Lars Lyland, general secretary of the Liberal party, believes the program will bring more problems than Norway needs.

"We still have the chance to show everyone how you can have a less mercantile, less materialistic society. We can still use our brains and not be overwhelmed. We can spread the oil out over many generations and give a quarter of the revenue to the underdeveloped world. We're going much too fast."

It is estimated that 29.6 million Americans are disabled.

Take advantage of fall vegetable bounty

There's a nip in the air and color in the trees and country farm stands abound with fall produce. Baskets overflowing with fruits and vegetables remind us of the goodness waiting to grace our tables.

Make vegetables an important part of your fall menu plans. From soup to desserts, vegetables add variety and great eating pleasure to family meals.

Many doctors are recommending that we eat more vegetables, fruits and whole grain cereals and reduce our intake of fatty meats. Such modifications in eating habits are advised in order to reduce intake of cholesterol and saturated fat and thus help lower blood cholesterol levels. So there is another good reason for enjoying your vegetables!

In keeping with this philosophy of sensible eating, you can use a polyunsaturated margarine in all your cooking to help further reduce saturated fat and cholesterol intake.

The recipes here demonstrate the versatility and delectable flavor of fresh vegetables. Creamed Spinach Soup is a lovely way to start dinner on a crisp fall evening. Wholesome and rich in flavor, this savory soup will soon be a family favorite Vegetables also make tempting entrees and Italian Eggplant Parmesan is an excellent example. Side dishes, too, can be noteworthy when prepared with imagination and flair. Brussels Sprouts and Apples combines two fall favorites for a unique taste treat.

Luscious breads, muffins, cakes and pies can also be prepared with vegetables. This moist carrot bread, delicately spiced with cinnamon and sprinkled with raisins, is simply delicious. Crowned with a crunchy pecan topping, Squash Pie offers an unusual blend of textures and flavors that's guaranteed to be a hit. You can use fresh or frozen squash, so this scrumptious dessert can be enjoyed anytime of year.

Let good taste and good nutrition abound on your table as vegetables highlight fall menus.

CREAMED SPINACH SOUP

1/3 cup corn oil margarine
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup thinly sliced celery
3 tablespoons unsifted flour
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 quart skim milk
1 cup drained cooked chopped spinach

Melt margarine in large saucepan. Saute onion and celery until tender. Blend in flour, salt and pepper; cook until bubbly. Remove from heat, gradually stir in skim milk. Return to heat; cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Add spinach, simmer 2 to 3 minutes longer. Makes 4 servings.

EGGPLANT PARMESAN

8 tablespoons (1 stick) corn oil margarine
¼ cup chopped onion
2 cans (8-ounces each) tomato sauce
½ teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed
½ teaspoon salt
1 large (1½ pound) eggplant, peeled and cut in ½ inch slices
1 pound skimmed milk Mozzarella cheese, thinly sliced
3 teaspoons grated Parmesan cheese

Melt 1 tablespoon margarine in a saucepan. Saute onion until tender Stir in tomato sauce, oregano and salt; simmer 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Set aside.

Brown eggplant slices in remaining 7 tablespoons margarine.

Spread ¼ cup of the prepared tomato sauce in the bottom of a shallow 2-quart casserole. Place half of the eggplant slices in casserole, top with half of the remaining tomato sauce, sprinkle with 1½ teaspoons Parmesean cheese and top with half of the Mozzarella cheese slices. Repeat with remaining ingredients.

Bake at 375 degrees about 30 minutes or until bubbly and cheese on top is golden brown. Makes 6 servings.

BRUSSELLS SPROUTS AND APPLES

1 quart Brussels sprouts, washed and trimmed
Boiling water
¼ cup (½ stick) corn oil margarine
½ cup chopped onion
1½ teaspoons caraway seed
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
3 cups pared, cubed apples
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Cook Brussels sprouts in boiling water to cover until tender crisp. Drain and set aside.

Melt margarine in a large skillet. Saute onion until tender; stir in caraway seed, salt and paprika. Add apples and cook for 2 minutes, stirring frequently. Add cooked Brussels sprouts and lemon juice; mix well. Cover and simmer 5 minutes; stirring occasionally. Makes 8 servings.

CARROT BREAD

2½ cups unsifted flour
½ cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
¾ cup cholesterol-free egg substitute
½ cup (1 stick) corn oil margarine, melted
½ cup water
1½ cups finely shredded raw carrots
1-3rd cup dark seedless raisins

Combine flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, soda and cinnamon in a bowl. Add egg substitute, melted margarine, water, carrots and raisins. Stir until dry ingredients are moistened. Batter will be lumpy. Turn batter into a greased and floured 9x5x3-inch pan.

Bake at 350 degrees, 50 minutes or until done. Let cool in pan or wire rack for 10 minutes. Remove from pan and complete cooling on wire rack. Makes 1 loaf.

SQUASH PIE

1 cup unsifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup (1 stick) corn oil margarine
2 or 3 tablespoons ice water
1 cup cooked butternut squash (fresh or frozen)
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
½ cup cholesterol-free egg substitute
½ cup skimmed evaporated milk
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
⅛ teaspoon ground ginger
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
Pecan Topping (recipe below)

Combine four and ½ teaspoon salt in a bowl. Cut in margarine with pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles coarse meal. Stir in ice water; mix lightly. Form dough into a ball.

On lightly floured board, roll out dough to fit an 8-inch pie plate. Transfer to plate, trim and flute edge. Carefully line with aluminum foil, fill with rice or dried beans. Bake at 375 degrees 10 minutes. Remove foil.

Combine squash, brown sugar, egg substitute, skimmed evaporated milk, cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon salt, cloves, ginger and nutmeg in blender container. Blend until mixture is smooth. Pour into pastry shell.

Bake at 375 degrees 30 to 35 minutes or until knife inserted 1-inch from edge comes out clean. Cool on wire rack. When pie is cool, evenly spoon Pecan Topping over pie, then broil 5-inches from heat for 2 minutes.

PECAN TOPPING: In a small bowl blend together ½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar and 3 tablespoons softened margarine. Stir in ½ cup chopped pecans.

Stan Kenton hates country music

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music is "a national disgrace," jazz musician Stan Kenton said, adding that he hates almost everything Nashville stands for.

"I hate country and western music. It is ignorant music and perverted music. I abhor it," Kenton said in a telephone interview with the Nashville Banner.

The Banner contacted Kenton Thursday in Cedar Lake, Ind., following reports that he spoke out against country music and Nashville during a recent interview in Los Angeles.

"I hate almost everything Nashville stands for. The country and western music is an absolute national disgrace and the lowest form of contemporary music," the musician said.

Kenton, 63, said he does not want to "start a revolution" in Tennessee, but he added he felt someone ought to speak out against country music.

"It has utter lack of sophistication," he said. "It has no charm whatsoever. It is music for the masses."

Kenton said the only reason the public is buying country music albums is because "it's being shoved down their throats."

The orchestra leader said the only way to combat country music is to begin teaching young people the value of music.

"Start them young," Kenton said. "Make them develop musicial tastes. Then they wouldn't be turning to this stuff."

Kenton is the second wellknown jazz musician to publicly criticize country music. In January, jazz drummer Buddy Rich said he felt country music "appeals to intellectuals with the minds of 4-year-olds."

Stir fry as they do in China

Stir-frying, typically Chinese, is a quick-cooking method in which vegetables retain their crispness and nutrition and meats are cooked quickly. It's an ideal method for those summer months when you don't want to spend hours over a hot stove yet still want a good meal.

Beef and Beans flavored with the mellow brew is a delicious dish for your first stir-fry attempt. Flavored with the mellow brew, this rich velvety sauce also has the taste of fresh ginger, soy and a sprinkling of green onions on top. Beef 'n Beans take on a most unusual and tasty flavor when enhanced with these spices. Serve on a bed of white rice, have glasses of ice cold beer, and your meal is complete.

BEEF-BEANS-BEER

½ pound fresh green beans
½ pound top round steak
2 teaspoons cornstarch
¼ cup beer
½ teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon salad oil
2 thin slices fresh ginger root
3 tablespoons salad oil
Chopped green onion tops

Sliced beans into 1-inch pieces. Cook in boiling water approximately 2 or 3 minutes. Drain, saving 1/3 cup of liquid. Cut beef into strips (⅛x1½x¾ inches). Combine cornstarch, beer, sugar, soy sauce, oil and ginger root. Toss beef in this sauce until well-coated. Heat 3 tablespoons oil in large frying pan or wok. Add beans and stir-fry approximately 4 minutes over very high heat; remove from pan.

Remove meat from marinade; add beef to hot oil in frying pan and stir fry, until browned, about 3 minutes. Return beans to pan with marinade and 1/3 cup of bean-cooking water. Cook, stirring until sauce is thickened. Serve and garnish with green onion tops. Serve 2 or 3 persons.

Imagination helps in cooking for 2

Cooking for two can be extremely imaginative with the help of fruits and juices. For example, a split chicken breast cooked with orange juice and maraschino cherry juice takes on an added flavor to pique almost any jaded appetite. The chicken is served with egg noodles and a cherry sauce. Add a mixed green salad or your favorite cole slaw and corn muffins for an attractive, tasty meal.

MARASCHINO CHERRY CHICKEN DINNER

1 jar (4 ounces) red maraschino cherries
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 chicken breast (about 7 ounces), split
1½ cups water
3 chicken bouillon cubes
¼ teaspoon thyme, crushed
¼ cup orange juice
¼ teaspoon grated orange peel
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup hot cooked wide egg noodles
Parsley for garnish

Drain cherries reserving 3 tablespoons maraschino cherry syrup. Cut cherries into quarters. Set aside. In a medium skillet, melt butter. Add chicken; brown well on both sides. Add water, bouillon cubes and thyme. Heat to boiling. Stir to dissolve bouillon cubes. Reduce heat to low; cover and simmer 45 minutes, or until chicken is tender, turning occasionally.

Remove chicken to serving platter; keep warm. Skim off any excess fat from broth mixture. Add orange juice and orange peel to broth mixture in skillet. Stir reserved cherry syrup into flour until smooth; add to mixture in skillet. Heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in cherries.

To serve, arrange noodles around chicken. Garnish with parsley. Spoon some of cherry sauce over noodles and chicken. Pass remaining sauce. Makes 2 servings.

When you take a foil-wrapped loaf of French or Italian bread from your freezer and heat it, open the ends of the foil so the crust has a chance to crisp.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GAS COMPANY

If you're wasting energy, cut it out.

Tack this up. It'll remind you of some of the things you should be doing to save natural gas.

1. Forget about such things as firepits, patio heaters, and tiki torches.
2. Make sure your house is well-insulated. That'll keep it cooler in summer and warmer in winter.
3. Set your cooling thermostat no lower than 78°.
4. Cover pots and pans when cooking.
5. Plan oven dishes that you can cook together.
6. Turn down the thermostat on your water heater.
7. Run your dishwasher only with a full load.
8. When you wash dishes by hand, don't run the hot water continuously. Use a stopper in the sink.
9. If a hot water faucet leaks, fix it.
10. Take a fast shower instead of a slow bath.
11. Install a water flow control device in your showerhead to save hot water.
12. Wash and dry only full loads of laundry.
13. Turn off your decorative gas lights or call us and we'll be glad to come and shut them off for you.
14. Make energy conservation a part of your lifestyle. There is an energy shortage and we have to live with it.

Energy is our business.
Conserving energy is everyone's business.

Group to stage 'Norman'

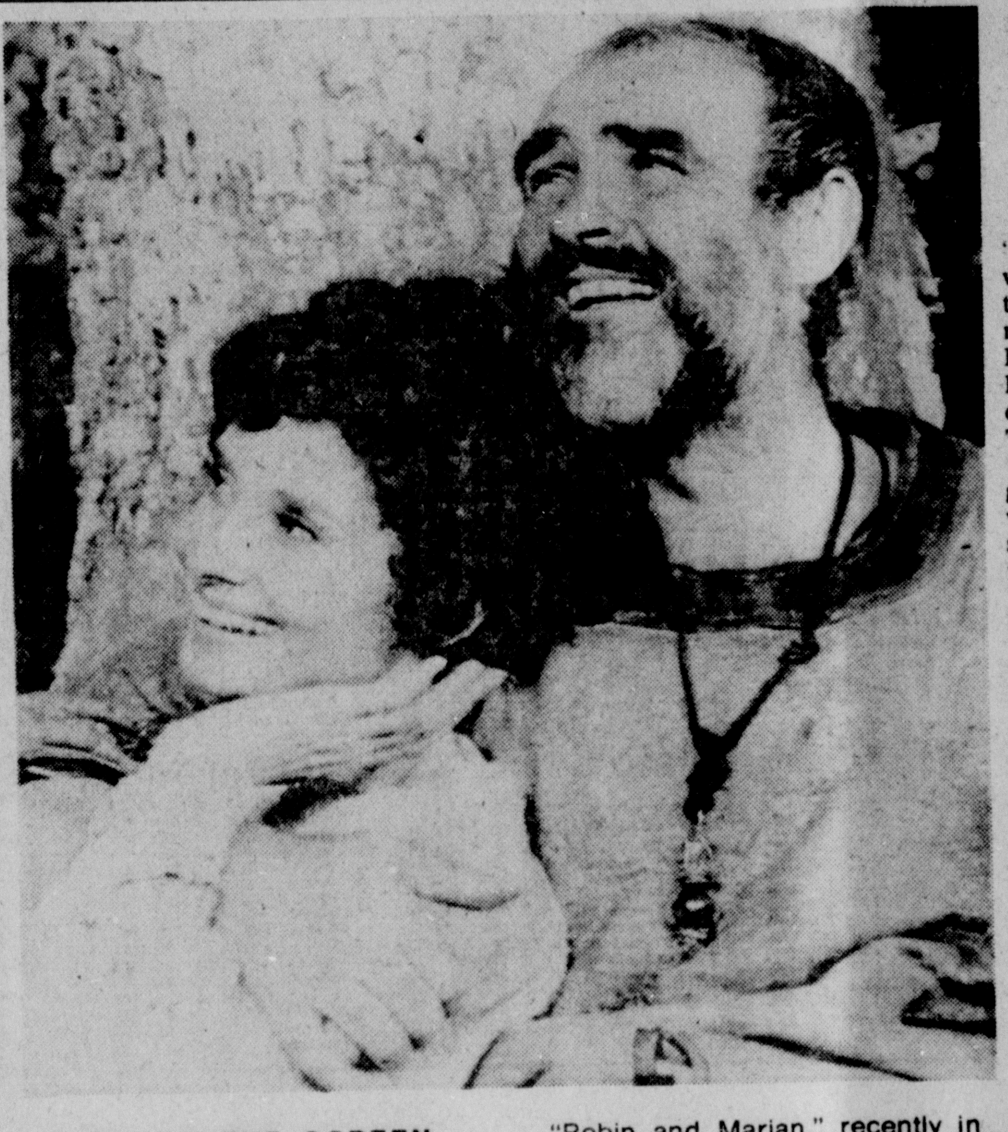
The Fontana Mummers will present the comedy, "Norman, Is That You?" in the theater at 16286 Foothill Blvd. starting Sept. 19. Curtain is at 8 p.m.

The play, directed by Bill Stice, tells of a middle-aged dry cleaner whose wife runs off with his brother. He turns to his son, Norman, for sympathy but is further distressed to find that Norman has become a homosexual. The authors are Ron Clark and Sam Bobrick.

The dry cleaner is played by Dick McCarty, and Moran by Steve Foreman. Others in the cast are Ann Salpas, the mother; David Scott-Collett, the roommate; and Bonnie Hershberger, a streetwalker.

Pat Breyman is assistant director and Bill Sneed technical director.

"Norman" will play Thursdays through Sundays for four weekends. Reservations can be made at 823-7062.



BACK ON THE SCREEN — Audrey Hepburn and Sean Connery celebrate the completion of the new Richard Lester film, "Robin and Marian," recently in Monte Urbasa, Spain. It was Miss Hepburn's first movie in eight years, and she said, "I loved it."

'The Concert'

3 superstars glitter

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Concert," the two-week summit sessions of three deans of popular music — Frank Sinatra, Ella Fitzgerald and Count Basie — opened on Tuesday at Broadway's Uris Theater.

Miss Fitzgerald was great. As soon as Sinatra warmed up and began to seem at home on stage, he was better than his "comeback from retirement" last year.

With tickets priced $40 to $15 in the nearly 2,000-seat theater, all 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday performances are sold out. A few seats are left for midnight shows on Fridays and Saturdays. The engagement ends Sept. 20, to be followed by one-night stands in Philadelphia, Cleveland and Chicago.

Sinatra, in his usual break for a monologue and drink of "tea with honey" from a coffee cup, said, "I remember at the old Paramount Theater, people saying, 'Forty cents! For what? Some skinny kid in a jacket without lapels.'" Otherwise, he made a few mild, good-humored jokes about New York's problems and no nasty digs at anybody.

The evening began with three crisp numbers by the Basie Band. Then Miss Fitzgerald walked on and pounced on "Too Close for Comfort," tearing it apart with vocal excitement. She followed that with Duke Ellington's "Do Nothing Till You Hear from Me," making it a slow, thoughtful ballad, sung with much care. She broke it up again with a wildly uptempo "Sweet Georgia Brown," sang a medley from Broadway's "The Wiz" and ended with oldtime blues mastery on "Ain't Nobody's Business if I Do."

Sinatra came on after the intermission. At first, he seemed almost tense. He was singing and moving well, doing a few neat dance steps in time with the band's instrumental bridges, but he didn't seem quite comfortable and the little click from professionalism to star quality didn't come quickly.

He got into it with his fourth song, a rousing "My Kind of Town," but seemed to tense up again as he followed that with a series of love songs, clipping some of the phrases unexpectedly short. But with "Nice and Easy" he hit the stride a Sinatra fan would wish and stayed there. From then on, he sounded relaxed and mellow, his voice in and out of the low register, singing a high note transposed down to make it sound like it should have been written that way and holding notes and phrases much longer than he did a year ago. "Pennies from Heaven" was vigorous; "Send in the Clowns" set a poignant mood and the audience demanded a reprise of his "I've Got You Under my Skin."

The evening ended with a few mellow duets by Sinatra, 59, and Miss Fitzgerald, 57, in one of which he sang "the lady is a champ" and bows to a standing ovation in which they were joined by the 71-year-old Basie.

Choir sets auditions

Auditions for the Claremont Boys Choir will be held at the Claremont Presbyterian Church, 1111 N. Mountain Ave., from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Sunday, from 7:15 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, and from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and 2 to 3:30 p.m. Sept. 20.

The chorale, conducted by Christopher Trussell, is open to boys in grades four through six. They must be accompanied to the tryouts by a parent or guardian and be prepared to sing "America" or a song of their choice.

The choir, organized in 1972, is a non-profit, nondemoninational group. Information on the choir can be obtained at 626-1031 in the afternoons and at 624-8964 in the evenings.

USC training students to become social workers for senior citizens

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California is training students to become social workers specializing in the problems of a rapidly growing group of Americans: the elderly.

The field is so new that students entering the first class of the Leonard Davis School of Gerontology at USC this fall will be getting training for jobs that don't exist yet.

"They may be getting educated ahead of where the world is," said the school's assistant dean, Margaret E. Hartford. But Miss Hartford, 57, expects the world to catch up.

"I have a hunch that once they know we're in business, all kinds of agencies will be wanting our people."

The current U.S. population of about 210 million includes 21 million persons 65 and over. The school says that the aged are the fastest-growing segment of society and that by the year 2,000, there will be some 30 million 65 and older.

And contrary to what many people think, Miss Hartford said, about 95 per cent of the elderly live in normal circumstances, not nursing homes.

The special problems of the aged touch all areas: housing, leisure, retirement, nursing, sexuality, legal considerations, psychology, financial management and politics.

The USC curriculum calls for the gerontology students to delve into psychology, social work and business administration, acquire sensitivity to the special needs of the aged and emerge ready to help "senior adults."

Students will wear blindfolds and ear plugs to experience the decreased capacities of the aged. They will visit senior citizens' centers and nursing homes. Some of the training is similar to that physicians undergo to become specialists in gerontology.

At the Leonard Davis school, begun with a $2 million endowment from Davis, a New York insurance executive, students can earn a bachelor's or master's degree or a certificate.

The latter is a program taking about a year to complete for persons already working in some related field such as nursing who want specific training in gerontology.

As the school prepared to open Sept. 15, about 50 applicants — aged 20 to 50 — had been accepted for the master's program and a dozen for the certificate course. About 80 undergraduates had signed up for some gerontology classes, of which about 15 planned to major in the field.

The full-time faculty of the gerontology school includes, in addition to Miss Hartford, Dr. William Albert, 34, assistant professor of gerontology-social work; Dr. Robert Wiswell, a former Atlanta Braves baseball player, assistant professor of gerontology-social work, and Dr. Stephen Zarit, assistant professor of gerontology-psychology.

Wiswell specializes in using exercise to help the elderly be active and alert.

Alex Comfort, who is a noted gerontologist but is best known as the author of "The Joy of Sex," said that the school's emphasis on the social aspects of aging is appropriate.

"Only 25 per cent of the disability of old people is medical," Comfort said in an interview. "The remaining 75 per cent is social, political and cultural.

"The expectation that old people should go crazy makes them crazy. They have had the same trip put on them that blacks and women did."

The opening of the school was greeted with enthusaism by such workers in the field as Mrs. B.J. Spitler, Southern California regional manager for the California Office on Aging.

Would her office be interested in hiring gerontology graduates?

"Indeed we are," said Mrs. Spitler. "We see this school as being very worthwhile. Having good feelings about older adults is one thing, but it won't be of any use unless you have the knowledge base to apply them."

The school is housed in the same near-new building that contains the Ethel Percy Andrus Gerontology Center, where scientists and doctors in a variety of fields of social gerontology carry on their studies. USC has been involved in gerontology research for about 10 years.

A 26-year-old USC employe who is considering enrolling in the school says that she is especially attracted because "the people are so positive and enthusiastic. There are people of all ages working together, believing that 'old is beautiful.'

"And the newness of the field is exciting, too. It's like getting in on the ground floor of something that's going to keep getting more important all the time."

The school's admissions program has a poster showing a bearded young student giving a white-haired lady a ride on his motorcycle.

"It's a rare opportunity for getting into a brand-new field," said Miss Hartford.

"Once people are really exposed to aging adults — for example, I lived in a senior citizens' home for several months when one of my parents was dying — they realize what a challenge the work can be."

Detroit residents satisfied

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit gets high marks from the people who should know.

A six-month survey of a cross section of residents of Detroit and its suburbs reveals some surprising findings, including:

By 10 to 1 they are satisfied with themselves.

By 84 per cent to 16 per cent they are "very happy" or "pretty happy."

By more than 6 to 1 they give a positive rating to their police protection.

The study, undertaken by the University of Michigan Institute for Social Research, is the first attempt to survey the quality of life in an urban region.

It showed by margins that often reach 10 to 1 that Detroiters, both black and white, as well as suburban residents expressed satisfaction with their community, their neighborhood, their job, their marriage and family life, their health, their amount of leisure time and how they spend it and their income and standard of living.

Q. "WHAT IS AN EMU?"

The emu (pronounced EE myoo) is a large Australian bird that looks something like an ostrich.

Standing about 6 feet tall, this brown-colored bird is the second-largest bird in the world. Only the ostrich is larger.

Like the ostrich, the emu has tiny wings and cannot fly. But it has long, muscular legs and can run up to 30 miles an hour to escape an enemy.

Emus live on open plains where they feed on berries and green plants.

The mother emu lays 7 to 12 dark-green eggs in a flat nest of grass and leaves. The egg of the emu is about six inches long and may weigh 1½ pounds or more.

The father emu sits on the eggs until they hatch and then takes charge of the young, which follow him around.

The emus' fondness for wheat has not made these friendly birds popular with the farmers of Australia, who resent having these 100-pound birds topple their fences and eat their crops.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
